CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Opens season with interesting addresses on the coal situation and on the Labor Problem

The Newton Chamber of Commerce held its first meeting for the season Thursday, over 100 members sitting at Temple Hall, Newtonville, last week. The meeting was held at 6.30 P. M. President F. L. Richardson was toastmaster and the principal speakers were Mr. George E. Copeland and Mr. Geo. B. McElwain. Mr. Copeland gave an interesting address on the coal situation in which he emphasized the statement that the men engaged in the coal business were honorable business men, entitled to the respect of the community, and were men who realized they were in a public utility business. Coal, he said, was a mammoth industry with a supply of 3 1/2 trillion tons of which we have used out one-half of 1 per cent. Its distribution is a tremendous problem due to labor and transportation conditions. Practically all the anthracite coal in the country comes from an area of 460 square miles in Pennsylvania and nearly a hundred million tons are mined annually. The strike curtailed this production by 40 million tons and the speaker said that we must use substitutes. A pinch time is coming and the logical thing to do is to use substitutes. The supply of coke is small, wood is not available, there is but little petroleum coke, and while channel coal is satisfactory there is not much of it. Bituminous coal is the most available and Mr. Copeland said that 75 per cent of the homes in the country use this coal and that it is entirely practicable. The bituminous situation here is rapidly adjusting itself, the lack of cars being the chief difficulty. While the production of anthracite is good it cannot be increased on account of the capacity of the coal breakers and as these cost nearly a million dollars each, the number is not likely to be increased. Seventy-eight per cent of the coal, he said, was mined by the railroad companies who sold their product on a stabilized basis. The independent companies, he stated, sold their production more on the basis of supply and demand. In 1920 he said 74 per cent represented the cost at the mine and freight, 15 per cent the operating expense, 8 per cent the administrative expense and but 3 per cent was profit. That profit he said, was wiped out in 1921 and would probably be eliminated also in 1922. Mr. Copeland was kept busy at the close of his remarks in answering questions largely aimed at the price. He said the mine price had been fixed by the Pennsylvania Fuel Commission at $8.50 to $9.25 per ton. That wages had increased 184 per cent from 1914 to date.

Mr. McElwain spoke on the fundamentals of the Labor question, calling attention to the pendulum-like motion of the ebb and flow of business conditions and the characteristic labor features of prosperity and depression. The giving up by employees in times of prosperity and by employers in times of depression. This back and forth swing will always be a battle between the employer and the employee for while in many ways their

Newton closes its season with tie game with Brookline, after losing to Waltham

Newton is still talking about the Waltham game. And the sad part rests in the fact that there is nothing worth talking about from a Newton standpoint.

Never did a Newton eleven rise to such heights and sink to such depths as did the Orange and Black team which bowed to Waltham last Saturday. Not disappointment alone, but utter disgust, was written on the faces of thousands of Newton supporters, when in that hideous fourth period they watched Lowery and Co. rollick through a Newton team whose morale was shattered and broken. Pitiful is too weak an adjective to describe the Newton breakdown.

We shall not go into details over last week's affair. You must be fully as sick of it as ourselves. We imply say that Lowery was solely responsible for the Waltham win. He gave as fine an exhibition of football as Clafin Field has seen since the days of "Hank" Garrity. There was nothing that Lowery didn't do and there was nothing that he did do which wasn't stamped with the mark of excellence. "Too much Lowery" is the easiest way to describe Newton's collapse.

Walter McQuiston was the one redeeming factor in the Newton performance. "Mac" played smart football against Waltham and next to Lowery himself we believe McQuiston was the best man on the field.

Clafin Field held the greatest crowd in its history. More than six thousand people saw the game from inside the canvas with another thousand viewing the contest from nearby vantage points. It was a typical Newton-Waltham crowd. The cheering of both schools was immense, and the spirit of intense rivalry was ever present. The game itself was clean at all times.

Since the game we have heard several would-be critics give forth with much self-assurance the knowledge that the Newton team was "yellow." There is no need to answer such childish allegations. You know and we know the type of person who would make such a statement and it is to be regretted that such specimens should be in any way connected with Newton. "Yellow" is indeed the word for them.

Coach Dickinson's remark to his men, as one by one they trooped sadly from the scrimmage as the game was drawing to a close, is one which should be given to every Newton supporter. Dickinson's remark was couched in the two simple words, "Forget it!" And the sooner Newton does so the better.

Our choice for a 1922 all-inter-scholastic eleven is printed below. We have seen the strongest teams of the State in action and we consider the following men to be the elite of the schoolboy gridsters. We have no apology to offer for the team. It needs none. You may not like it but you can't deny its strength. (It will be noted that we have placed Lydon as end rather than halfback, and Lowery as halfback rather than quarter.)

SCHOOL NOTES

Edited by Dorothy Drake

Albert Edgar Angier School

The Thanksgiving Day exercises were held at morning assembly, Wednesday. Marion Frost was the leader and announcer. Among those who took part were, Alice Johnson, who recited, "The Landing of the Pilgrims"; Betty Bierer, Ruth Charlton, June Prouty, Margaret Howatt, Norman Lockwood. Grades seven and eight sang as a chorus a Thanksgiving Prayer, with William Pelham and Helen Sheehan singing the solo parts. Mrs. Benson led the children of the first grade in choral work. Ethel Richards played the piano; Mary Middleton led the Lord's Prayer; Eleanor Burnham read the Scripture; Nancy Hazens, the Salute to the Flag, and Donald Charlton conducted the school ensemble singing.

The Angier football team held its letter day this week when the entire school, together with many of the alumni and parents, were present. Mr. Crowell acted as chairman of the meeting and among the speakers were Coach Donald Houghton and Malcolm Hill of the class of 1921. Hayward Woolston '22 and Henry Johnson '21 led the cheering. Those who will wear the School "A" as a result of the remarkably successful school record this year are: Captain Frank Spain, Manager Roger Haddock, Gordon White, Hamilton Yardley, Wesley Walton, Robert Turner, Edwin Jones, Robert Rinehart, William Pelham, Thomas Leach, John Rosenfeld, Captain-elect Charles Leach, Dick Crocker, Dunbar Holmes, Richard Robbins, Floyd Robbins, Gilbert Adams, Palmer Congdon, James Marsh, Lee Woolston, Joseph Cotter, and Kenneth Cady.

After the hall exercises, the entire school was surprised by the gift of a chicken dinner in the school dining room, which the parents of the boys had prepared. Mrs. Wilfred O. White was the kindly spirit responsible for this added tribute to the splendid work of the boys. At the dinner, Mrs. White expressed for the parents, their delight and pride in the success of the team. At this time, the team gift was presented to the coach, as a token of their thanks to him.

Bigelow School

The Thanksgiving Exercises given at the school on Wednesday were of unusual interest, the entertainment being furnished by the four upper grade clubs.

The program included music by the school orchestra, the reading of the Governor's proclamation by Mr. Chase, recitations by Evelyn Whittemore, and Virginia Stokes, a scene—the First Thanksgiving—acted by the members of the debating club, and an original story written by Frances Alteiri of the English Club.

A radio concert was also enjoyed, the set being contributed by Franklin Huntress, William Sweet and William Sutcliffe of the Science Club.

The program ended with the singing of "America."

Burr School

The Wilbur Teachers' Club met last week Tuesday, at the home of Mrs. Littleton on Melrose street. Messages of sympathy were sent to Miss Taft who is ill.

Under the direction of Miss Higgins the 7th grades presented a Thanksgiving play called "The Thankful Heart" before the entire school Wednesday.

Every class in the Burr School has contributed vegetables and food for needy families and organizations.

Grades 7 and 8 have been having great fun in their Thanksgiving play.

Twenty-five fine Christmas cards have been made in the science classes and tested out on the grounds of the school.

Grades 8A and 8B are to have a spelling match on Wednesday, December 6.

Grade 2, has succeeded in reducing the red column in room 7-1. This largely due to their splendid work record.

Williams School

The Kindergarten held a Thanksgiving party this week.

Grade 4, has ten on its Arithmetic honor roll. This means perfect papers in some cases for two and three weeks.

Grade 1 has been making free hand drawings of the "Majestic."

One number not on the program of Thanksgiving exercises, which surprised Principal Winslow, was the presentation to him of a leather traveling bag by the members of the 7th and 8th grades who are leaving to enter the new Junior High next Monday. Charles Mackin made the presentation, reminding Mr. Winslow of the spirit which Stearns pupils intend to take with them and of the high regard in which they shall always hold him. Mr. Winslow responded, thanking the pupils sincerely for their good wishes to him.

Lasell

Josephine Curry of Brooklyn, N. Y. has been chosen leader of the Glee Club and the accompanists: Marjorie Gifford of Orange, N. J., and Helen Shrover of Chicago. As for the past three years the club will have at its conductor Charles E. Griffith, Jr. who also is the leader of the orchestra. Members of the Dramatic Club, are busy rehearsing for the two plays which will be given on the evening of December the 9th.

On the afternoon of December the 8th, the Woodland Park pupils will give their first piano recital of the school year.

The Thanksgiving recess began on Wednesday of this week, and ends Monday, December the 4th.

Ralph Waldo Emerson School

The Thanksgiving gifts of five dollars to the school by "Mary Redcross" is much appreciated. The gift is one of a series of more than a half dozen from the same source.

Miss Morgan's fifth grade made its third "gold star" week last week with a 100 per cent in attendance. At the assembly last week John Sullivan gave a recitation of the poem entitled "Loyal Hearts." This week at the assembly Marion Shaughnessy and Frances Warren entertained with a piano duet. All three pupils are in the graduating class.

Last week was the best week on record in respect to the care of the teeth. Eight classes made a perfect record for the week. Between 200 and 300 brushes have been sold since we started last year. Free paste, has been given with each brush.

A Thanksgiving entertainment was given to the entire school in the Hall on Wednesday forenoon, at 10:45 o'clock. The entertainment was furnished by the pupils from the several grades. The program consisted of the reading of the Governor's Proclamation, the singing of several appropriate songs, individual and group recitations, and three plays representing scenes and incidents in the history of the Plymouth colony.

Mason School

Thanksgiving stories are in the order of the week in Room Five. To add interest to these, the children are making a model of the settlement at Plymouth in 1622, on the sand table.

In Room 20, the boys and girls are busy reading Hiawatha. Parts of it they are learning, and much enjoy writing from memory what they have learned.

On Nov. 17, in the Mason Hall a health play was given by the sixth grade girls. The name of the play was Tom, Dick, Harry, and the Pirate Chest. The following took part: Elizabeth Giles, Tom; Betty Murphy, Dick; Ann Stratton, Harry; Teh Pirates were Florence McGourty, Jane Cobb, and Elizabeth Walworth.

Thanksgiving Exercises were held in the Mason Hall Wednesday at eleven o'clock.

A play, given by the seventh grade, songs, and flag salute made an interesting program.

High School Notes

The Junior Varsity season came to an end recently, marking the first year of this successful movement to give the smaller boys of the school a chance to play football with others of approximately the same size.

This step was taken by Coach Dickinson for the purpose of getting a greater number of boys to play the game and to develop material for the varsity team.

This team received the special attention and instruction of Coach Dickinson and was given the same fundamentals to work upon as did the varsity.

At the beginning of the season 77 candidates reported and 52 remained throughout the season; many will get their letters.

The Annual Declaration of the Technical H. S. will be given in the school assembly hall on Thursday afternoon and Friday evening, Dec. 7-8.

A play given by the various classes, music and singing will make up the program. There will be dancing in the gymnasium after the entertainment on Friday evening.

The proceeds from the Declaration go to the library which is supported almost entirely from contributions and from the Declaration.

The 1923 track team will begin to practice in the near future, under Coach Dickinson and Coach Roberts. The schedule is arranged as follows:

Jan. 12, Interclass at Newton; Jan. 26, Brookline at Brookline; Jan. 26, Alumni at Newton; Feb. 2, Lynn English at Boston; Feb. 9, Brookline at Newton; Feb. 17, Greater Boston meet at Huntington; Feb. 23, Medford at Huntington.

As a greater part of last year's team will be on hand it is expected that a winning team will be produced.

On Monday, Nov. 27, the Vocational High School held a meeting in the assembly hall.

The meeting was entirely in charge of the Senior Class, and Charles O'Donnell, President, presided over the program.

A Bible reading followed by the Governor's Proclamation, along with several musical and literary selections completed the program.

The Newton High Schools had special exercises on Wednesday, Nov. 29 prior to the Thanksgiving vacation.

The Harvest Carnival, the first social event of the year for the Classical High School promises to be a success.

The Student Council has prepared an elaborate program consisting of dancing, vaudeville and an entertainment by the school talent.

Single Quartet—De Mille, Appeton, Auryansen, Case, Jones; Vaudeville—Ann Schipper, Florence McKeon, Edith Curtiss, Frances Holmes and Helen McKeon; Monologue—Jack Cashman; Monologue—Mary Reynolds.

The faculty adviser, Miss McGill, has urged everyone to attend as it is a sort of reception to the Alumni as well as a good time.

On Tuesday morning the senior English class of Miss Richardson's enjoyed a talk given by Robert Spencer, President of the Forum.

SECURING A PASS-PORT

About three weeks ago, after having decided to go with my wife to South America, as far south as Buenos Aires, and taking the first steps to secure passage by the steamship, I was warned by the steamship agency through which I secured my tickets that the most important thing to do was to get a pass-port. I began to ask him questions and he in a general way said "It's perfectly easy all you have to do is to do what follows!"

1st. You must secure a certified copy of your birth at City Hall. You must go to Room 311 in the Post Office Building, Boston, and make out your application for a pass-port and attached thereto must be two copies of your photograph, and if your wife goes with you, of hers also; must leave with the Clerk's Office, $10.00 to pay for the fee; must have a friend go with you who has known you at least two years to swear to your identity and then the papers are forwarded to Washington with the assurance that the pass-ports should be mailed to you within one week.

The steamship company always advises that you get in touch with the Congressman from your District and ask his good offices in securing a more prompt return of the pass-port. Hon. Robert Luce, the Congressman from this district was so good to me that I got my pass-port in five days.

In connection with the application for your ticket you discover the following:

If you are going to Rio de Janeiro you have to furnish to the Brazilian Consul, after receiving your pass-port, certificate from the Board of Health of the town or city in which you live to the effect that you have been vaccinated within a reasonable time and that the result was satisfactory.

2nd. If you go to Buenos Aires, in addition, you have to go to the Chief of Police of the city or town in which you live and secure a certificate written on the letterhead of the department, certifying that you have not been under arrest for violation of any laws, within five years prior to that date. In going to Buenos Aires you have to further supply evidence that if you are over sixty years of age that you will not become a charge upon the Argentine Republic. If you have a return ticket that requirement may be waived.

In securing the pictures to be attached to your application for a pass-port, if you are in good health and able to get about, (which was not my case,) the expense is small. It cost me $11.00 to secure the pictures as the photographer had to come to my home to take them. You may say here, "Why didn't you wait until you got well before having the pictures taken?"—but if you plan for a trip to South America and must have the pass-port before you can go, speed is a necessary item and right here let me say, plan ahead far enough, if possible apply for your pass-port at least three weeks before the day of sailing.

These certificates of vaccination, etc., have to be taken to the respective Consuls representing the countries you are visiting and be visas before you can go aboard the steamship. It is wise as a result to get your pass-port as early as possible and then take them to the Consul representing the country you are visiting in the nearest city to where you live. For instance, living in Newton, go to Boston. Do not wait until you go to New York to have this work done by the representatives of these countries in New York City because they will do nothing for you unless you call upon them two or three days before the steamship sails.

The wife is included in the pass-port of her husband and traveling with him does not have to have a separate pass-port. She does not have to supply a birth certificate and does not have to sign or swear to the application for pass-port.

For information, I would like to say that the Brazilian Consul is James McKay D'Almeida, 244 Washington street, Boston.

The Argentina Consul is Joseph J. McLean, 92 State street, Boston Mass. Without preliminary knowledge, seeking for a pass-port is like riding out into the country to visit a friend in the suburbs after dark. Having asked the conductor to call the street which you wish to stop at, and his answer being, "We will reach there shortly,"—you know just how it is yourself—you keep going to the door, asking him if we have reached this street and that is the way with the pass-port business. Every time I got pretty well along, something new was thrown in my way and it seemed to me as if it was an ever-ending game of investigation.

The pass-ports as issued are good for one year and can be renewed or extended in a foreign country if desired. You must guard your pass-port as you would your money. It is the only thing that stands between you in a foreign country and trouble.

On traveling by the "Pan American" of the United States Shipping Board line, controlled and handled by the Munson line, the boat sailing from Pier 1, Hoboken, New Jersey. The approximate distance from New York to Buenos Aires and return is 12,000 miles.

In the circulars issued by this company every American is urged to patronize the American Line and show their interest in the development of American commerce. You are allowed to carry baggage, if traveling first-class to the extent of twenty cubic feet. Each piece of baggage must be plainly marked with a durable tag, showing the destination of the same and name and address of the owner.

In addition to the tickets and state room charges you have to pay on all tickets in excess of $60.00, a revenue tax to the government of $5.00 for each 1st-class passenger. If you stop in Brazil you will have to pay an embarkation tax which is figured in "troas."

As I understand it, American Express checks are good any where in the world. I further understand that on the steamship, foreign money can be purchased if desired, in exchange for American dollars.

Now that I have my pass-port these troubles that have surrounded me for the past two weeks fall away like mist before the rising sun, but if the above information will be of help to any others applying for pass-ports, the article will not have been in vain.

CONDITIONS OF STREET TREES IN NEWTON

The sophomore class of the Agriculture Department, in the Newton Vocational High School, made a general survey of the street trees in Newton. Each pupil had a certain area to cover, and to report on the conditions of the trees found in that area. The greater majority of the trees were found to have been badly damaged by the ice storm during the winter. In some cases they will never recover, from the loss of their top.

SHOP EARLY

TOYS

The advice to shop early applies with especial force in the buying of toys. Early shopping will save you trouble and disappointment and may save you from disappointing the children. If you leave the purchase of Toys until the last two or three days before Christmas, the assortment may be so broken that you cannot find what you know the children most want. Even if you do find it there may not be time enough left to have Toys packed properly and shipped in time to reach their destination before Christmas morning.

EDITORIAL

Associate Judge Thomas Weston is to be commended for imposing jail sentences on persons brought before him and convicted of operating automobiles while under the influence of liquor. It is only by imposing the utmost sentence the law allows that this menace to every man, woman and child in the community will be lessened, as a mere fine has no moral effect whatever. Fifteen days in jail will be remembered when a fine has been forgotten.

The effect would be far reaching if every police court judge in the Commonwealth would take the same attitude as Judge Weston, on this important matter.

Every one interested in the important matter of transportation facilities in the Metropolitan district should attend the public hearing to be held next Wednesday, at 10:30 A. M. by the Department of Public Utilities at the State House. The hearing will also consider the question of Metropolitan Planning as recommended by the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

The unopposed candidacy of Mr. Daniel O'Connell, for ward alderman from ward 2, will be a novelty in our city election as Mr. O'Connell's previous attempts to secure an aldermanic seat have been unsuccessful. Some one has evidently been asleep at the switch in Newtonville on this matter.

FOOTBALL

This season yesterday morning on Clavin Field with Brookline High as its opponents and curiously enough it was the fourth scoreless tie game for Brookline.

The teams were very evenly matched. Most of the scrimmaging took place in midfield and the game resolved itself into a kicking duel between Metcalf of Brookline and Kohler and Olmstead of Newton. Without long runs, startling shifts or sudden setbacks the game was one of the most colorless of the year, lacking all the features that have made the two teams such drawing cards in the Suburban League. About 7500 attended.

The first period was Brookline's best, although the ball was not carried inside Newton's 35-yard line. The kicking duel began with the blowing of the whistle, and while Brookline did essay to carry the ball a bit, the backfield lacked the punch to break through the Newton line. Newton was first in danger at the beginning of the second period, when Capt. Denning of Brookline blocked one of Kohler's punts and three Brookline players fell on the ball on Newton's 15-yard line. Coach Carroll rushed his dropkicker, Dan Daley, into the game, but Daley booted the leather from the 25-yard line a few feet short. Olmstead punted to Londoner on Newton's 45-yard line and Brookline opened up with the overhead game. A pass, Londoner to Phillips, gained a first down but Londoner called for another punt and the game again became a kicking duel.

Newton started down the field with a lateral and forward-pass attack, but Metcalf intercepted a pass and halted the Orange and Black. The half ended after Olmstead intercepted one of Phillips' passes and ran 30 yards, the longest run of the game. The ball was then in midfield.

The third period was all Newton, and with McQuiston and Kohler carrying Brookline's 26-yard line, Dickinson sent in his drop kicker, O'Donnell, but the line failed to hold and the kick was blocked, Bowen recovering. The period ended with the ball in Newton's possession on Brookline's 25-yard line. Newton kept up the attack in the last period and after a neat forward, O'Donnell to Ryall got within scoring distance again. McQuiston and Kohler advanced the ball for a first down from the 22-yard line and reached the 9-yard line on off tackle plays when Bowen called for another drop. O'Donnell booted the ball straight up in the air and Newton's last chance of winning was spoiled. Both teams resorted to the overhead game for the final few minutes and the game ended with the ball in Newton's possession in her own territory.

Phillips Denning and Metcalf were on their toes every minute for Brookline while Ryall, Johnson, Dewing and McQuiston played faultless football for Newton.

The Good They Do
Depends On YouWest Newton, Mass.,
November 29, 1922.

I am very much interested in the candidacy of the two Harvard men running for the Aldermaine Board from Wards 3 and 1.

Captain Sinclair Weeks, the famous son of a famous father, is the strongest possible man for the place in Ward 3, and should be elected by a large majority. Newton needs such young men as Captain Weeks, and should be proud to be able to call him to the Board.

His war record is only too recently made to need any comment.

Dr. Thomas Morton Gallagher in Ward 1 is the strongest man available. His work on the examining board for Uncle Sam was untiring, and every man received a square deal at his hands. Few will forget it for him.

Both men are strong Republicans but have hosts of Democratic friends. As this contest is really a citizens' affair rather than divided along party lines, and as both men are favored by many organizations, including the Elks, I can see nothing but a landslide for both.

Interests are identical both forget their interdependence at times, for it is an inexorable fact that they will always be competitors in the wage market. Mr. McElwain had no faith in the Golden Rule as a solvent and believed that no formulas could solve the problem. He criticized welfare work as he said that the American workman had backbone and would rather have the money spent on welfare work as wages. Money spent for businesslike reasons was all right but any charitable or philanthropic work should be cut out. He said there was no truth in the supposed increase of red radicalism as his investigation showed that radicalism was never so low as at present. He defended the right of the laboring man to organize as well as that of the employers. He said that there would soon be a new basis of standards of production. Whereas 25 years ago a bricklayer would lay 1,800 bricks a day, he now lays but 650—and thought they were getting away with it. Mr. McElwain claimed that he got it back in the increased cost of his own home. He declared that the workmen of today with their higher wages and shorter hours were no better off than 40 years ago. He believed there should be a rational standard, that work ought to be measured with wages on a basic amount of production and no limit to what a man could earn. Unemployment, he said, ranged from 3 to 5 per cent during prosperity to 8 to 15 per cent in times of diversity. There is no other country he said with such extremes and it was a chief cause of unrest. He believed that unemployment insurance was coming and that it should be a charge on the industry. The fact that labor wants an improved scale of living he believed was our most serious problem, as it must eventually be paid by the industry itself. He believed that the right to strike was fundamental but that it had its limitations and that this right so far as railroads was concerned must be abrogated. He said the railroad men were out to abolish this feature of the railroad act and urged that pressure be brought on Congress to retain this valuable feature. President Richardson spoke a few words in favor of zoning and then called on Alderman White to speak on that subject. Mr. White said that while at first he was diametrically opposed to zoning he was now willing to accept a liberalized zoning ordinance. He thought it was a form of governmental control and that our personal and property rights were being taken away. He wanted a clause inserted giving an owner damages for any injury done by zoning. He said that the proponents of zoning were trying to sell the city a picture but admitted that the ordinance is constitutional to a certain extent. He did not believe the time was ripe for it and that it was based on the personal opinions of those who had appeared before the committee. The Building Code is so strict, he said that it was in fact a zoning ordinance by itself. President Hollis of the aldermen said that the entire board was in favor of a zoning ordinance of some kind.

Mr. George J. Martin told of some of the accomplishments of the street railway committee in improving the crossings over the street railways and Secretary Mowry outlined the work to be taken up during the coming year.

Hyde School

Appropriate Thanksgiving programs were held in the Assembly Hall on Wednesday morning. The presence of Miss Bragg throughout the exercises was enjoyed by everyone.

The sixth grades, under the direction of the Misses Abbott and Taber, furnished the entertainment for the grammar grades. The program opened with a selection by the school orchestra, and singing by the entire assembly. "Bobby Brewster's Rooster" was the play presented. The cast included James Waters, Albert Hutchinson, Evan Collins, Natalie Whitaker, Martha Thompson, Dorothy True, Nancy Ryther, Barbara Nichols, Ellen Cannon, Kenneth Warren, Richard Haggood and Gracia Halladay. The audience applauded most heartily when Bobby Brewster sacrificed his pet rooster to furnish a Thanksgiving dinner for "an old witch" who turned out to be his long lost grandmother. Between the acts Dorothy Swann rendered a very beautiful piano solo.

The program of the primary grades included chorus singing, recitation and two short plays, having historical settings and portraying the spirit of Thanksgiving. It was as follows: America, the Beautiful. All Classes Thanksgiving Song.

Kindergarten Children Story Play, "The Little Lamb Squirrel"

Frances Cooney Miss Jewitt's class, grade 11 Song, Miss Lewis's class, grade 11 Recitation, Louise McNaughton

Miss Perkins class, grade 11 Song, All That's Great and Good

Miss Sampson's class, grade 11 Recitation, Jane Riley

Miss Smith's class, grade 11 Recitation, Carl Goodwin

Albert Swann, John Gallagher, Robert Seaway.

Grade IV, Miss Greene's class The Song of Harvest. All Classes

On Wednesday morning the children of the kindergarten invited the two first grades to a Thanksgiving Party. Each child had a "make-believe" pumpkin pie with his milk, and a little favor. Miss Bragg was the guest of honor. After their lunch of crackers and milk the children sang their Thanksgiving songs and Miss Bragg told a Thanksgiving story. The Assembly Hall now has new light-proof curtains which help greatly in the use of our lantern.

FATHER FARRELL HONORED

Rev. William J. Farrell, who served in France as chaplain with the 104th Infantry, Twenty-Sixth Division, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for risking his life repeatedly in the evacuation of wounded.

Father Farrell, for 16 years curate of St. Bernard's Church, West Newton, was recently transferred to a parish in Wilmington, although he still retains his chaplainship of the Newton post of the American Legion. He is a native of South Boston, a son of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Farrell, and graduated from Boston College in 1898.

He enlisted with the YD division at Boxford, going overseas with them, attached first to the 101st regiment and later to the 104th. He was decorated with the Croix de Guerre for bravery at Seichprey in April, 1918, when, according to his citation, he did more than his share to keep a battery in action all night under heavy fire, when four of the crew had been killed and seven wounded. At that time he was wounded, but refused aid until he had carried one of his comrades to the first aid station in the trenches. He was later wounded again before Verdun.

The present citation is for the Seichprey action, setting forth in part that "in spite of extremely heavy artillery and flanking machine gun fire he ran from shell hole to shell hole until he reached a dying soldier to whom he administered last rites, remaining there until the man's death."

Voted: That the question of the service on the B. & A. R. R. be laid on the table.

Voted: That a Christmas Eve celebration be held, with an illuminated tree and star on the triangle in front of the Congregational Church, that Mr. E. J. FIRST CONCERT

The season's first Associate Membership concert of the First Church was held in Bray Hall, Newton Centre, Saturday, November 25th.

The soloist of the evening was Ethel Walcott Ross whose singing of the Mad scene from "Lucia" with a flute obligato by Verne Q. Powell was so excellently rendered that the audience was compelled to repeat it. She was especially pleasing in her group number, being accompanied by a harp in the singing of "Voi che Sapete" in Italian, "La Serenata" in French and closing with "Robin, Robin, Sing Me a Song" in English. Mrs. Ross has a sweet yet powerful soprano voice which filled the large hall even with the orchestra accompaniment.

The orchestra played Tchaikovsky's "Andante" from the Fifth Symphony and Massenet's "Phedre" with excellent results. The orchestral group comprising the "Swing Song," "Song of India" and "Hungarian Dance No. 5" by Brahms, and the four parts of "L'Arlesienne, Suite No. 1," by Bizet were the most pleasing numbers played by the orchestra.

The closing number of the program, "The Blue Danube," by Strauss, left the audience with the unanimous expression that the concert under Mr. Maclean's interpretation and control was the finest they ever gave.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

Edited by Miss Grace M. Burt

The Woman's Club of Newton Upper Falls came in for its share of compliment at the meeting of the State Federation at Roxbury last week, when Mrs. Grace M. Poole, the Federation president announced that up to date that club is the banner one, boasting that 94 per cent of its members voted at the last election. One hundred per cent registration in all the clubs is one of the aims of the Civics department of the Federation for this year.

Last week's meeting of the Federation was enlivened by bits of rally on the part of the old and new presidents, letting the delegates into the foibles of each, and relieving the austere dignity that is often characteristic of Federation meetings. "A little nonsense now and then is relished by the best of men," and women.

State Federation

There will be organ and violin music, and the Mothercraft film will be shown. Complimentary tickets of admission may be secured by sending self-addressed stamped envelope to Mrs. Miner H. A. Evans, 88 Alban street, Ashmont, Mass.

At Hotel Lenox, at 12.45 P. M., there will be a conference-luncheon for delegates, after which there will be addresses by Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, Mrs. Elmer Blair, of New York, chairman of Public Welfare Department, General Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. E. Charlotte Hamilton, superintendent, Victorian Order of Nurses, Dominion of Canada; Dr. Allen J. McLaughlin, assistant surgeon-general, U. S. Public Health Service. The musical program will be under the direction of Mrs. Mina G. Del Castillo, chairman of Music. A few luncheon tickets at $1.65 each, may be secured from Mrs. Evans.

The club is looking forward again this year to giving some poor children of Newton—about 50 in number from the ages of four to ten, selected by a committee made up largely of teachers—the happiest Christmas of their lives. Everyone who participated in the Christmas Party last year and witnessed the joy of the children will be eager to empty his pockets into the baskets which will be presented on Tuesday evening. Local Happenings

cussed "The Pacific Ocean and its Problems."

The situation between the United States and Japan a little more than a year ago, he said, was becoming genuinely dangerous. Japan was spending the largest proportion of its income upon a naval building program, until it seemed that there was about to be an international navy-building contest between the two countries. Today the situation is almost revolutionarily changed. The treaties between Japan and the United States have been ratified, also those between Japan and China, and are in force, although France and Italy have not yet ratified. Japan is living up to the Washington treaties both in letter and in spirit.

As a result of the Washington Conference all the acute clashes of policies and interests have ceased, and the Pacific is a different place.

Dr. Blakeslee pointed out various spots where possible difficulties may arise—as for example, in Australia, an unopened continent with islands to land-hungry people. Is Australia going to keep out colored labor and be a vacant continent? It is a question how long Australia's white policy will last. In certain of the French islands the natives have been shamefully neglected, from their position they ought to belong to the United States. In the New Hebrides, controlled jointly by Great Britain and France, this joint international administration is a failure. A perplexing problem awaits this country in Hawaii with its Japanese population increasing. Their children born in that island are American citizens, so that it is likely in a few years it will be governed by Japanese Americans. This race issue is the great problem of the nations bordering upon the Pacific—one of the challenges. How are we going to meet it?

At the business meeting the club voted to provide a challenge cup for the tennis club at the Burr Playground.

The club chorus appeared for the first time this season at this meeting, and was in very good form under the leadership of Mrs. Arthur S. Flinn.

At the regular meeting of the Auburndale Review Club held on Tuesday, Nov. 28, with Mrs. George W. St. Amant of Hawthorne avenue, Mrs. W. H. White came to greet the club as a district director of the State Federation. The papers of the morning were given by Miss Jessie J. MacMillan on Shackleton, telling in detail of his adventurous trip to the South Pole regions in 1914; and by Mrs. George Knapp on Grenfell, bringing out vividly his hazardous life, and well rewarding the audience for staying over time. Mrs. Ernest Braithwaite and her uncle, Mr. Turner, gave much pleasure by two piano duets, the 2nd movement from Beethoven's First Symphony, and a Waltz by Moszkowski.

State Federation

Between 1300 and 1400 club women attended the Fall meeting of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs at Roxbury last week Thursday, while a considerable number were turned away owing to lack of room.

Promptly at ten o'clock Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, the new president, called the convention to order. The divine blessing was invoked by the Rev. Arthur T. Brooks, pastor of the Dudley Street Baptist church, where (Continued on Page 9.)

MIR. KENT TO RETIRE

Street Commissioner Stuart reports that William Kent, master mechanic in the Street Department of the City of Newton, has made application for a pension under Chapter 32, Section 77, of the General Laws, and the same has been forwarded to His Honor, Mayor Childs.

Mr. Kent has given 49 years of faithful and efficient service to the City. His first employment was under the late Mayor J. K. P. C. Hyde in 1874 and under Superintendent of Streets A. R. Carter.

Under the direction of the Chairman of the Highway Committee, the late James F. Edmunds, the City purchased one of the best pair of horses ever owned by the City, and they were first driven by Mr. Kent.

In 1876 when the Water Works Pumping Station was built, Mr. Kent was given the position of fireman, which he held until 1881 and served faithfully and efficiently. Then the City of Newton, under the administration of the late Mayor Royal M. Pulsifer bought the first steam road roller that was used in New England. It came over from England, and the machine gave a long service under the direction and care of the operator, Mr. Kent.

For a number of years the City had only one steam roller, but today the equipment in the Street Department under Mr. Kent's care consists of: 5 steam road rollers, one portable air compressor and 5 drills. 1 portable steam boiler, 2 steam drills, 2 steam pumps, 3 gasoline pumps, 1 hoisting engine, 2 stone crushers and equipment, 5 motor trucks, making 22 pieces of machinery.

Street Commissioner Stuart and his predecessor since 1874 have always considered Mr. Kent as the most efficient and faithful employee the City ever had, and in his retirement, the City of Newton is losing a valuable employee and one whose place cannot easily be filled.

AUTO ACCIDENT

As George P. Ewing of High street, Newton Highlands was crossing Boylston street, near Clark street, last Thursday night he was struck by an automobile and killed.

The car, on going down Boylston street in the direction of Wellesley, M. L. Mohor and Donald Ferguson, residents of Clark street, hearing Ewing's cries, ran out and, finding him unable to stand, drove him to the Newton Hospital. He was found to have sustained injuries to his back and spine, the full extent being unknown. Sergeant, later in the evening, learned the number of the car and found it was driven by Mrs. Helene R. Bigsby of Gilson road, Wellesley Hills. Mrs. Bigsby said she hit the man and then turned around at the next cross street. When she got back to the scene Ewing had been taken away.

SNAKE IS FIGHTER

South American Reptile Attacks Man on Sight.

Bushmaster Probably the Most Feared and Worst-Tempered of the Earth's Crawling Creatures.

The worst-tempered snake in the world is the so-called bushmaster of South America, writes T. C. Bridges in the London Daily Mail. There are three sorts of bushmasters, of which the largest, called by the Indians the "surucucu," is a yellow monster ranging, when full grown, from nine to thirteen feet in length.

This creature, which is extremely plentiful in the damp forest, attacks on sight. Without the slightest warning it comes hurtling out of a thicket and drives straight at the intruder. And its bite, to a white man, means a speedy and horrible death. The Indians, however, have some herbal remedy which protects them against the effect of this poison.

Last year a man sent on a message from one ranch in Bahia to another did not arrive. Search was made and his body was discovered with a great "surucucu" wrapped round it.

The brute was killed, and then it was found that the unfortunate messenger's body was one mass of bites. There were literally scores of punctures from the poison-dealing fangs.

The "surucucu" has another peculiarity which, so far as is known, is shared by no other serpent only. This is that it is capable of making a sound, quite apart from hissing. It is described as a low whistling—a sort of "phew! Phew!" If one of these creatures is hidden in a hollow tree—a favorable resort—its presence can be detected by the sound it makes.

The smaller bushmaster is known by the Indians as the "cangafofo." The name means "lover of fire."

Fire, instead of scaring this snake, attracts it, and by campers in wet forest the cooling fire is always extinguished before sleeping. Otherwise the man who goes to relight it in the morning will probably find one of these deadly creatures coiled in the warm embers, and possibly pay for the experience with his life.

In the swamps of Brazil and in every forest pool anacondas abound. Of these, too, there are three sorts.

The largest is the "dermidera," the greatest and most terrible of pythons. It is black in color, and its native name means "the snorer." This is the other snake which makes an audible sound, apart from hissing, a sound comparable with the loud snoring of a sleeping man.

One of these snakes has been killed exceeding 60 feet in length, but trails seen in the swamps seem to indicate the existence of still more monstrous specimens.

Even the smaller anacondas will attack man, and it is highly unsafe to approach a forest pool to drink without first taking due precautions. The anacondas lie in the water, with heads just above the surface, silently awaiting prey.

The Indians of Inner Brazil all speak of another snake which, so far, has not been identified by the naturalist. They call it the "salamandra," and describe it as a sort of bat about 20 feet long, but of enormous thickness.

Best Extinguisher.

Mr. Budger and his wife were continually at variance regarding their individual capabilities of making and keeping a good fire. He contended that she did not know how to make a fire, or how to keep one after it was made. She, on the other hand, maintained that he never meddled with the fire that he didn't put it out—in short, that he was a regular fire dumper; and, as he was always anxious to stir up things in the various fireplaces, she made it a practice of hiding the poker just before it was time for him to come into the house. One night there was an alarm of fire in the village and Budger flew for his hat and coat.

"Where are you going?" asked the wife.

"Why, there's a fire, and I'm going to help put it out."

"Well, my love," responded Mrs. Budger, "I think the best thing you can do is to take the poker with you."

—Everybody's Magazine.

Our Pear-Shaped Globe.

While Dowie insisted that the earth was flat, and his successor, Voliva, sticks to the same opinion, serious scientists now begin to hark back to the theory which Columbus formulated on his third voyage, that the earth is shaped somewhat like a pear.

The eminent geologist Sollas affirms that if the earth is tending to become round, it has not yet become so. It even appears that what is today the moon belonged originally to the stem end of the terrestrial pear, which in the course of violent rotation threw off the moon.

This, says the Petit Parisien, is a theory. It is perhaps as good as any other, but anyway it is well not to get excited over it. Men were just as well off when they believed that the earth was flat and did not suspect the existence of antipodes.

A Neater Crimson Gulch.

"What did you do with the bunch of roughs who came over from Bearcatopolis and said they were going to clean up the town?"

"They had it their own way," answered Cactus Joe. "We gave 'em brooms and scrapers, and organized a posse to see that they made good."

Washington Star.

VOTE NO

Shall Newton remain loyal to the Constitution of the U. S.?

On December 12, the citizens will have a chance to vote for or against alcohol. The expression "certain non-intoxicating beverages" means 2.75 beer and other alcoholic beverages prohibited by United States law.

At the state election on November 7th, Newton voters upheld the Constitution of the U. S.; even though the state as a whole did not.

Last-year our city voted not to grant licenses for the sale of "certain non-intoxicating beverages" and thereby upheld the Volstead Act.

By voting no on the beverage question, we give the local authorities the proper power to co-operate with the Federal officers.

the meeting was held, then the audience sang two stanzas of the State song, "America, the Beautiful," which was followed by the salute to the flag.

Mrs. Frederick S. Fogge, president of the Women in Council, the hostess of the occasion, extended the greeting in which she told of one piece of work done by her club, that of a maternity trunk in which are kept always on hand layettes for needy women. This work was started as a memorial to one of their early presidents, who died at the birth of a child. Four hundred and twenty-six layettes have been furnished by the club, including a total of 5550 garments.

Mrs. Poole, in her response, referred to its being the first time the Federation has met in Roxbury. In touching upon the legislative policy, she stated that the presidents in conference favored continuing to endorse measures; but in so doing they must remember that there are two sides to every question, and with broad vision must be big enough to abide by the will of the majority.

The Federation stands for service. There are many ways of writing that word service. We may write it so poorly that we cannot read it, or so fine that we cannot see it. How are we going to write it this year? In such a way that every one of the letters is in big capitals of gold.

The dates for coming Federation events were announced: the Mid-Winter meeting on February 27, in the high school hall at Somerville; the Presidents' conference at Chelsea on April 16, and the annual meeting at the New Ocean House at Swampscott on May 23, 24, and 25, the Federation being its own hostess. The Council meeting of the General Federation will be held at Atlanta, Ga., May 8-11.

A considerable portion of the morning session was given to the Biennial in Retrospect. Mrs. George Minot Baker, General Federation director from Massachusetts, outlined the business, saying that among the important changes made might be mentioned: the making the Council meeting a business meeting, although officers will be elected and the by-laws amended biennially as in the past; hereafter no club can join the General Federation, which is not already a member of its State Federation; where a state so votes all its clubs may come in as a unit. At present, Iowa, Kentucky, and Georgia, do this, and several others are planning to. The office of auditor was abolished; the accounts will hereafter be examined by an auditing committee. The representation, which was cut down several years ago, has been returned to its former basis, one delegate for each club up to one hundred members, instead of each 200. State presidents in adjacent states are asked to examine their by-laws and to rearrange their convention dates so far as possible, that the General Federation president may be able to attend their meetings in a series without loss of time. The Federation News will be continued for the next biennial period.

Mrs. A. R. Shephardson, president of the Reading Woman's Club, reported the Conference, Mrs. H. W. Hildreth of the Fortnightly, Winchester, the Evening Sessions, and Mrs. Frank P. Bennett, Jr., president of the North Shore Club of Lynn, in a very charming way touched things "Here and There along the Way."

It is the policy of the Federation at its Fall meeting to have presented to the delegates the work of one or more organizations or institutions in which clubs should be interested. This year the work of the Florence Crittenton League was presented by Miss Margaret Pierson, the educational secretary. Miss Pierson stated that there are 133,000 unmarried mothers in the country, and that the League annually takes care of some 12,000. There are 60 local homes in the United States and 3 in Canada; many of the Circles are not only looking after girls when they get into trouble, but also are working along educational and protective lines.

Mrs. A. D. Jones, the fourth vice-president, told of a recent visit to the new General Federation Headquarters in Washington, and described particularly the reception room which the State Federation has voted to furnish as a memorial to Mrs. Julia Ward Howe. It is hoped to raise $2500 through individual subscriptions, of from $1 to $5 or more each. Such gifts should be sent to Mrs. George Minot Baker, at Concord.

The closing speaker of the morning was Mrs. R. H. Enrich, a representative of the Near East Relief. Mrs. Enrich was a missionary in Turkey under the American Board and since 1916 has been engaged in relief work. She made a stirring appeal for America to continue its work of relief, for if it does not 100,000 children will die. Already it has been necessary to cut down the bread ration from four to three and one-half ounces. Some have felt that America's work was done, but Mrs. Enrich in no uncertain tones declared that America's work will not be done until she sits at the conference tables with a voice heard around the world. "The children will die this winter, if we don't fill up the warehouses."

Upon a motion from the floor, which was passed unanimously, a collection amounting to $425.32 was taken for this relief work.

Following the luncheon, which was served in nearby churches, there was an organ recital by Mr. William G. Hambleton, and a group of songs by Miss Alice Huston Stevens, soprano, accompanied by Miss Martha H. Allman, and the presentation of ten new clubs.

Hon. Theodore G. Risley, of the Department of Labor, Washington, made the address of the afternoon, discussing the question, "Shall we let the bars down?"

"Man has always been migratory. Two underlying causes influence men to migrate:—those of a positive nature, offering, as we believe, more than we can ever hope to attain at home, and those of a negative nature, impelling us to escape from conditions believed to be detrimental to our happiness."

Until 50 years ago, he said, we did not give much thought to the problems of immigration.

Since 1820, 35,000,000 immigrants have come to this country, 3,000,000 more than the total population of the country when Fort Sumter was fired upon.

Until the Civil War nearly all of our immigrants were from Northern Europe; today more than 80 per cent come from Southern and Eastern Europe and Western Asia. Of the old immigration only 2.8 per cent were illiterate, but of the new, until the literacy test was adopted, thirty-five per cent were illiterate. There are nearly 4,000,000 foreign-born people in the United States, who neither read nor speak English. There are nearly three million who are unacculturated. We have 1,057 foreign language newspapers published in the United States and more than a hundred languages and dialects spoken. As a result of the great Americanization movement these unfavorable conditions are being rapidly overcome.

The most decisive results of immigration have been in the industrial world. Dr. Risley touched upon the hospitable attitude that should be shown the alien upon his arrival; of the rights and duties of citizenship; of our debt to other countries, but he said we should see to it that those who are allowed to come have the essential physical aspects fit to become the fathers and mothers of the children of this country.

"My conception is that the Government should guard its gateway against the invasion of immoral or insidious characters with the same care that I, as a father, guard my home against the invasion of immoral or insidious characters."

CHRISTMAS SEALS COMMAND HEALTH

Command Health in the homes for our Christmas Seal Nurse goes into the homes where children are very greatly, more than ten per cent underweight. She gets the co-operation of the mothers. The children are examined by the family physician. The children come to the Health Classes once a week. They play the Health Game. "Drink more milk. Eat more vegetables. Sleep longer hours." With some of these slogans they play the game. They watch eagerly the chart line which shows their weight and health steadily increasing.

So splendid a work must be financed by larger gifts. Make out your check to Henry I. Harriman, Treas., 50 Congress street, Boston.

Three-quarters of our quota is kept for our own city. Part buys warm clothing for sick ones going to sanatoriums, or puts milk into needy homes where there is tuberculosis. Most of the money finances preventive health work for children in our city. One quarter of your money goes to Mass. Tuberculosis League and the National Association for fighting tuberculosis and for health educational work in weak places in our State.

Command Health in the Community for your child and mine and all the others. Protection from the spread of disease. We talk to the children only of "Health." To you we say: "Wipe Tuberculosis off the map." We discover special cases of tuberculosis tendency. Building up these children's health means less germs looking for your child. We cooperate and work with all the health agencies. Work for these children protects the community.

RED CROSS GRATEFUL

The Newton Chapter of the American Red Cross desires to thank the people of Newton for the wonderful support and hearty co-operation given them during the Roll Call which closed on Thanksgiving Day, November 30.
Last year Newton's total enrollment was 9757 members. This year Newton's total enrollment is 10388 members. Showing an increase in membership this year over last year of 631.
Large individual membership is the greatest asset the Red Cross has, and the fact that nearly 25 % of the population of Newton are members of the American Red Cross is something to be proud of.
The officers and directors of the Newton Chapter greatly appreciate this expression of confidence and assure the members that it will be our endeavor to render 100% Red Cross service during the coming year.
If you know of any Newton ex-service man, especially a disabled man, who needs help that the Red Cross can render, we will greatly appreciate it if you will let us know or put him in touch with our executive secretary. There are many ways we can be of help and we want to do it.
To the solicitors who, by giving their time and making personal calls, made their results possible, special thanks is due.
The Newton Chapter also extends its sincere thanks to the Newton Graphic for its hearty co-operation and the generous manner in which they have given us liberal space for our announcements, not only during the Roll Call, but throughout the entire year.

Chairman Newton Chapter,

FEDERATION WHIST PARTY

The big social event of the season for the Newton Federation of Women's Clubs will take place at the Newton Club on Friday afternoon, December 15th, at 2.30. In order to secure funds for its annual contributions to the various charities—a task which the Federation has always gladly and proudly set itself—the Philanthropic Fund Committee this year elected to give a Whist Party, and for those who do not care for cards, there will be an Author's Reading by Miss Emma Downing Coolidge.

The affair is not only for all club members, but for all women in Newton—or elsewhere—who would like to aid worthy charities, and at the same time spend an enjoyable afternoon.

It has been found more desirable for the women of Newton to give toward a charitable fund through some social affair than for stated sums to be requested by any canvass, and it is hoped that this effort will be richly rewarded financially, so that other means of raising money will not be necessary this year.

Not only will the whist party be in itself a social event, but the reading will be unique, in that an author will read from her published works. The books from which she will read have received high praise, not only from literary circles, but from audiences before which she has appeared.

DEATH OF MR. AVERY

Mr. Charles French Avery, for many years one of our leading citizens and a man loved and respected by a wide circle of friends and acquaintances, died suddenly from a stroke of apoplexy last Tuesday at Newark, N. J. Mr. Avery had been visiting his daughter, Mrs. Frederick H. Blake of Montclair, N. J., for Thanksgiving, and on Tuesday was calling on a business friend in Newark. He was taken ill while walking up the steps of his friend's home.

Mr. Avery was born in New York city, March 25, 1847, and was educated in its public schools and at New York College.

He early went into the wool business in New York, and eventually became associated with Walter Brown & Co. in that city. One of his associates there was Nicholas Mauger. In time Mr. Avery and Mr. Mauger became associated together in the wool business in New York, and opened a Boston office, which for some time was in charge of William Price, who later went with the Arlington Mills. As Boston began to outgrow New York as a wool centre it was decided to concentrate the firm's business here, and Mr. Avery came over and took charge. Mr. Mauger followed later when the New York office was discontinued. Mr. Mauger and Mr. Avery remained together under the firm name of Mauger & Avery until 1905, when the former

Harriet A. Peabody Helen S. Hutchinson

After nearly nine years of efficient and invaluable service, Mrs. Harriet A. Peabody of Ward III retires from the School Board, declining re-election. She has been the only woman on the board of seven members, and knows the demands made upon time and strength, and the qualities required for the work.

When, as chairman of a citizens' committee for Ward III, she urges the election of

HELEN S. HUTCHINSON

(Mrs. Maynard Hutchinson)

as her successor, her fellow citizens know that she thinks Newton will have in Mrs. Hutchinson an able representative. Those who know Mrs. Hutchinson agree with Mrs. Peabody, those who do not, trust her judgment.

In every ward in the city committees are working with Mrs. Peabody for this candidate about whom a few facts may be of interest:

Helen S. Hutchinson, the daughter of the late Attorney-General Hosea M. Knowlton, was born in New Bedford, Massachusetts, in 1885, educated in its public schools, graduating from its High School and going from there to the University of California, where she spent three years. Two years were then spent at Radcliffe, where she was graduated in 1908. She was married a year later, and has children in the Newton public schools. Her connection with many phases of the civic life in this community has demonstrated her leadership, her ability, and her willingness to serve.

A partial list is given below of the men and women willing and glad to give their endorsement and support.

REOPEN CLUB HOUSE

While all the improvements which have been underway for the past few months on the club house of the Auburndale Club, Inc., have not been completed, the officers of the Club deemed it wise to formally reopen the club house last Friday night. There was a large attendance of members and friends including Speaker B. Loring Young, of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, Mayor Edwin O. Childs and Representative-elect Leverett Saltonstall.

The enlarged quarters were inspected and most favorable comments were heard on the new dance and assembly hall, which will seat over 400 people.

President Austin W. Fisher welcomed those present and called upon Mayor Childs for a brief address. Mr. Childs complimented the club on its new quarters and suggested the advisability of inviting in the boys to visit the club with their fathers as a means of preventing our youth from growing away from their parents.

Dancing and refreshments followed, the ushers being Messrs. Henry L. Goodman, Charles R. Floyd, Herbert Farrier, Myron White, Perley Crosby, George Bacon, William Eaton, Warren Conn, and George Marston.

The officers of the Club are Mr. Austin W. Fisher, president; Herbert B. Morse, vice president; Earl H. Ordway, secretary; and Frances McGill, treasurer. Mr. L. B. Berry is chairman of the Building Committee.

ADULT ALIEN EDUCATION

December 3-9 was set aside this year as American Education Week. The American Legion, the National Education Association, and the Federal Bureau of Education co-operated in an effort to make known to the general public the kind of work that is being accomplished in our schools and the vital need of a personal interest on the part of all citizens in school problems.

As a part of the week's program in Massachusetts some forty communities have been represented at public mass meetings of adult immigrant students and interested citizens. These demonstrations were held in eight of the larger cities under the auspices of state and local departments of immigrant education. These meetings were intended to show what the schools are doing in Americanization and how the aliens respond.

During the war period the country discovered for the first time that the 1910 census figures showed 3,000,000 non-English speaking immigrants in the United States and 350,000 of this number in this state. Massachusetts accepted the challenge by the appointment of State Director in 1918, who set to work to make known to every interested agency and individual the need for a state-wide program in English and Citizenship for adult foreigners.

Public interest was aroused and in 1919 a law was passed which provided that the state would match local communities dollar for dollar for the expenses of instruction to adult aliens. In 1918 Massachusetts was teaching but 3,381 adult immigrants. In March, 1922, 22,242 adult immigrants were actually attending classes in this state. The following figures show this illuminating growth:

3,381 adult immigrants went to school for English and Citizenship in 1919. 9,030 attended the next year. 20,475 were in attendance in 1921. 22,242 were enrolled in the past school year.

The conclusions from these figures are plain. The immigrant, given an opportunity, will go to school, and public interest in the education of the immigrant has not waned since the war. At the present time, every city, 38 in all, and 68 towns have accepted the law and are conducting classes for adult aliens. More than sixty directors and supervisors have been appointed by local school departments as professional leaders of this work. Approximately 1500 teachers were engaged last year and of this number, fully 85% have received special training and certificates from the state office.

In March 1920 The Newton School Department accepted the conditions of the Act of 1919 and appointed a Supervisor of Americanization. Classes in English and Citizenship for the adult alien have been in operation since that time. At present there are twenty-two classes where more than three hundred alien students are being taught to speak, read and write English. The instructor is also instructed in United States history and government in order that he may take his final examination and become a good citizen of the United States.

Y. M. C. A.

Members of the Fellowship Club have had the pleasure within the last few days of hearing George Owen of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, speak on "Ships Past and Present," and Wm. C. Bamburg of the Babson Institute speak on "Personality in Salesmanship." The speaker for Monday evening, December 11th, will be Dr. Charles R. Ross of Newtonville who will speak on "Keeping the Church in the Skyline." Young men are always welcome at the Club meetings.

The Newton Y. M. C. A. team won 3 points in their match with the Boston "Y" team on the Newton alleys Wednesday evening.

A delegation of thirty old boys from the Newtons will journey to Providence Dec. 8, 9 and 10 for the Older Boys' Conference.

The purpose of the Conference is threefold. Inspiration, Information and Demonstration. About 500 older boys from Massachusetts and Rhode Island will attend and will be a gathering that will be hard to duplicate. The selection of the boys from Newton has been rather difficult as we allowed a certain number and interest on a large part of the fellows has been great. The following will attend under the leadership of Clyde G. Hess, Boys' Secretary and Anson T. Leary, Community Secretary in Newton Centre, and L. Chase Kepner, Chairman Boys' Work Committee.

Kenneth Kepner, Abbott Gotshall, Alan Shaw, Robert Leland, Dwight Shepherd, Raymond Rockwood, Robert Person, F. Hamilton Oakes, Joseph Richards, Philip Perry, Dwight Noble, Winslow Auryansen, William Pelts, Tudor Bowen, Philip Hoyt, Charles Barba, Stephen Duly, Julius Kohler, Herbert Hansen, M. M. Hammond, Jr., Robert Savory, Charles Johnson, Robert Quirk.

Saturday the younger boys of the Association enjoyed an all day social. Following the swim in the morning, they gathered for their Bible study and a dinner was served. The afternoon was spent playing games on the athletic field. The debating club held a supper and social hour Saturday evening and plans for enlargement of the club were discussed after which a plunge in the little lake in the basement was enjoyed.

A meeting of the Boys' Work Committee was held and the membership campaign for boys was discussed and a committee appointed. The following were appointed: Victor King, C. G. Hess and Phillip Horne. It is planned to bring the idea of a membership for a gift at Christmas to the parents and friends of boys.

With but two contests for aldermen-at-large, one contest for school committee, and one contest for ward alderman, there is little to bring out the vote at the city election to be held next Tuesday. Yet, in many ways the election is of considerable importance, as it may result in a change of leadership in the board of aldermen and it may mark an entering wedge of politics in our school committee.

We regret the contest for aldermen-at-large from ward 1, for Alderman Ball, who consented to stand for re-election, did so with great reluctance. Mr. Ball has been most faithful and independent in his work during the past two years and fully justifies the opinion of his friends that he should give the city the further benefit of his services for another term. On the other hand Dr. Gallagher is far better known, has many friends and is making an aggressive campaign, one which with a general light touch, may be successful. We believe that Dr. Gallagher should have postponed his candidacy until another year.

For alderman-at-large from ward 3, the contest is between Capt. Sinclair Weeks and Mr. Philip W. Carter, both of whom will represent the same political element in this city. We are of the opinion that Capt. Weeks will be successful as he is far better known than Mr. Carter.

For member of the school committee from ward 3, there is a contest between two ladies, and we have no hesitation in advising our readers to vote for Mrs. Hutchinson. As the only woman member of the school committee it is important that the successful candidate should represent the great majority of the women of the city and there is no question that in this respect Mrs. Hutchinson is far in the lead. In addition, Mrs. Hutchinson, by education and training is well qualified to serve on the school committee, and in this connection, the strong endorsement given Mrs. Hutchinson by Mrs. Peabody, the retiring member of the school committee, should not be overlooked.

The contest for ward alderman in ward 4 and is between Alderman Harry B. Ross and Mr. Albert L. Cole. Alderman Ross has given considerable dissatisfaction in the ward by his attitude on the Castle Inn matter, and the fight should be quite close in consequence.

The voters will also be called upon to make an unnecessary and needless decision regarding the licensing of so-called non-intoxicating liquors. If decided in the affirmative the city will be put in the ridiculous position of favoring the licensing of soft drinks containing not over 2.75 per cent alcoholic content in direct opposition to the Federal Law prohibiting the sale of liquor containing more than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol. This is due to the failure of the Commonwealth at the recent State election to approve the act of the Legislature harmonizing the state liquor law with that of the Federal law. We advise a NO vote under these circumstances.

The city of Newton loses a loyal citizen in the death of Mr. Charles F. Avery, one whose interest and influence on public affairs will be sadly missed.

Attention is called to the fact that the Federal government has called in the Victory Bonds lettered from A to F inclusive to be paid on December 15th and that interest ceases on that date on these particular bonds.

Several interesting articles have been crowded over to our next issue.

FOOTBALL

I enclose a portion of an article regarding the "Newton High Football Team" cut from the Newton Graphic of December 1st, 1922. I have read the whole article carefully and what little good the writer says regarding the team is of no consequence as the article, as a whole, is a wicked slap from a paper which should possess enough local pride to minimize any existing faults and criticize only with the spirit of helpfulness.

It is out of reason to expect a school to produce a football team of the highest standard every year. Conditions prevail which make this an impossibility. You say in your article that the Newton boys did not show a "yellow" streak. Why, then, slam them as you did in your paper?

I am not personally acquainted with either the coach or a single player on the team, yet I have seen a majority of the games played by Newton. The coach evidently did his very best to round the boys into a well-balanced team, and every player did his very best in every game from the moment the whistle to play sounded.

Supposing the team was not up to the highest standard? Why slam, hold up to ridicule and discourage them? The boys did their best, are entitled to much credit, and I am surprised that the Graphic should not have sufficient pride in what the Newton team has accomplished in the past to have at least said nothing if it could not find something to say that was praise-worthy. The Newton team did not win the championship, but every boy gave his very best in every game and every boy is entitled to credit for what he did. They played clean football, played the best they could from start to finish.

No doubt, their excellent coach criticized them for things they did or did not do. That was his right, duty, and privilege, and it was all done for the sole purpose of building up, never for the purpose of tearing down or discouraging. The Newton boys did not land at the top, but there are worse failures than that. There is only one real failure in this world—the failure of not having tried. The boys did not fall down on this.

Your article in the Graphic is unjust and unfair. I do not believe that "disgrace" was written on the faces of thousands of Newton supporters.

You no doubt can run the Newton Graphic without my help, but let me offer the suggestion that nothing is ever gained by unjust criticism. Say a good word or say nothing.

CAROL SINGING

Christmas is coming and with its coming plans are being made for a community Christmas celebration. It seems a big adventure that is being planned, but a committee composed of members from all the churches, the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Boy Scouts and all other organizations working for the welfare of the community, is backing the plan, and with the cooperation of all Newton it can be made a success.

Groups of carol singers are being organized within these groups, and on Christmas Eve the efforts of all these groups will be united into a huge chorus which will sing around a community tree to be set up in Farlow Park. Groups with lighted candles will come from various churches and their approach will be announced by two Boy Scout buglers. The tree will be lighted by representatives from the Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls.

After the singing around the tree it is hoped that candles will be lighted in houses all over Newton to greet the carol singers who will then go from house to house all over Newton singing the message of Christmas.

The parish house which has a seating capacity of 450 is rectangular in shape and of unusually good proportions. WEEKS

FOR ALDERMAN

In these days of fast increasing taxes our city affairs should be given the careful attention of business men. Experience and sound judgment are greatly needed in making important decisions in the expenditure of the money of our taxpayers.

Captain Sinclair Weeks has this experience and judgment combined with an enviable record overseas in the Great War.

As an alderman he would give the affairs of the city a business man's consideration. He has the enthusiasm of youth and that combined with common sense and sound judgment make him an excellent candidate for the position.

DEATH OF MR. LAFFIE

Mr. Martin C. Laffie, a resident of this city for over 50 years, died Wednesday morning at his home on Carleton street, Newton, after a long period of failing health.

Mr. Laffie was one of the best known citizens of Newton as he was for many years officially connected with the Newton Police Court, as probation and court officer and, in addition, was also one of the constables of the city. He was appointed probation officer on July 1, 1891, and served for 26 years in that capacity.

Mr. Laffie had a remarkable war record of which he was justly proud. In the spring of 1861 he enlisted in response to the first call for three months' men, and reenlisted Sept. 1, 1861, becoming attached to the Berdani, Sharpshooters, remaining continuously with that branch until discharged at the close of the war. While with the sharpshooters he took part in 30 engagements, including the first and second battles of Bull Run, Fredericksburg, Fort Stephen and Chancellorsville. In almost every battle where he was engaged he was either wounded or bullets passed through his clothing. He was severely injured at Chancellorsville and, during his convalescence in Washington, became acquainted with "Auntie Pomroy," whom he assisted, after the war, in her care of orphan children.

He was born in Sudbury, Vermont, Dec. 22, 1842, and came to Newton in 1871 and immediately joined the militia company, later known as the Claffin Guards. He served out seven enlistments of two or three years each.

He was a member and past commander of Charles Ward Post, G. A. R., a past president of the Claffin Guard Veteran Association, a member of Eliot Church, of Newton Lodge of Odd Fellows and the Middlesex Club. He is survived by one son, Ralph T. Laffie of this city.

Funeral services will be held from his late home tomorrow afternoon.

"—and on her cheek, the rose."

Here is the employment of a symbol. The sign of the rose brings the thought of freshness and fragrance. And so we use the same idea to express the unimpaired or the prolonged life of linen by our efficient laundering.

There is also a freshness and sweetness that goes with our work in the Garden of Laundering Niceties. Are you a customer? Then you know the satisfaction of pleasing laundry work. Table linen that enhances the attractiveness of the table. Bed linen that induces restful sleep. Our facilities have been increased time and again. Another enlargement nears completion. Nothing succeeds like success, and healthful laundry work. Dear Madam, the Garden City Laundry is a careful and thorough servant. Do we serve you?

Dear Sirs:—

Your collars when Gardenized wear long and look new. They function as invitations to the Spirit of Youth. For man and linen. What does that mean? The best explanation is a sample of our work. We call for your parcel when you say so. Try a sample. Why not?

WOMEN'S CLUBS

Edited by Miss Grace M. Burt

Twenty years ago this coming City election the Club Editor had the fun of entering politics as a candidate for the School committee from Ward 7.
Women in those days were not a welcome factor in politics and it is needless to say that she did not get elected, though she ran behind her opponent by less than 600 votes. What her defeat spared the City none can say, but she has always felt that she herself was saved a great amount of work.
Since that time she has gone to the polls regularly, seldom if ever having missed an election, and consistently voted for a woman whenever there was such a candidate upon the ballot.
This year she is confronted with the unusual situation of having to choose between two women. She will vote for Mrs. Maynard Hutchinson, a woman prominent in public work, a college graduate, and the one whom the women of Ward 3 want. This ward has been ably represented by Mrs. Ellery Peabody for many years, and it is natural that the women of that ward should desire as her successor a woman of like caliber. Success to Mrs. Hutchinson.

That club women are in earnest about the jobs given them to do was never better demonstrated than on Monday afternoon when some sixty of them, press correspondents from clubs, all about Boston, responded to the invitation to attend a Round Table conference under the leadership of the State Federation Publicity Department. There was no formal program, a representative from the Somerville Journal gave practical suggestions as to the "Who, When, Where, What," of club notices; questions were asked and experiences exchanged most informally. The delegates had the opportunity to see the representatives of the Boston papers to whom their communications go, and to learn from them just what sort of things will be printed. That these papers want the notices, though some times in a somewhat different form, just as much as does the Graphic, and the clubs welcome the opportunity to tell of their doings, not for the sake of personal publicity, was very evident.

For seventeen years the Graphic has maintained this department, and yet the club women have not fully trained their members to look here for club notices. So many requests have come recently for further publicity in the local columns, the Club Editor is led to ask the question, Why a Club department?

should be sent at once to Mrs. A. D.

miss seeing Santa Claus.

ging upon them their duty and responsibility as citizens.

Local Happenings

Mr. Carveth Wells, who was the speaker at the meeting of the Waban Woman's Club Monday, December 3rd, gave a most entertaining and thrilling account of his experiences during "Six Years in the Jungles of May." He described on the piano, as far as was possible the four tunes known to the people there; showed some native costumes on six of the member's children; and used many good stereoscopic pictures to illustrate his stories of the peculiar costumes and remarkable animals that he found. Mr. John Andrews, pianist, furnished the musical part of the program. Mrs. Sherman Schmeltz and Mrs. Ellis Gates were hostesses at the tea.

At the meeting of the Newton Upper Falls Woman's Club Monday evening Mrs. Mabel A. Crawford gave a very interesting talk on conditions leading to the special session of Congress and the ship subsidy bill; then took her audience to the Near East and gave a very clear account of the conditions there, then on to Italy. Mr.
Joseph Spano, of the North American

Civic League gave a short but very interesting talk on his work and bespoke from an attitude of loving kindness toward the alien who comes here to make his home and often does not understand he is breaking our laws until he is brought into a court.

Mr. Francis I. Bacon, of the Newton
High School, addressed the members and guests of the Newton Mothers' Club on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. F. E. Jones, 128 Chestnut street. Under the topic, "The Newton School and the Newton Home," Mr. Bacon discussed the physical, educational, moral, and spiritual needs of the children, and how the home may help.
Refreshments were served during the social hour.

Members of the Woman's Club of Newton Highlands presented the three-act play, "Billeted," by F. Tenny-son Jesse and H. N. Harwood, at the meeting on Tuesday afternoon, and repeated it on Wednesday evening.
An added attraction was a group of songs contributed by Elizabeth Hopkinson with Doris Baker as accompanist, both from the West Newton Music School. Her artistic rendering of the Norwegian Echo Song brought out special applause. The cast of the play included: Mrs. Lawrence Farwell, Mrs. H. E. Berger, Mrs. Henry H.
Skelton, Elizabeth Walker, Mrs. M.
Raymond Fuller, Mrs. Frederick S.
Fairchild, Mrs. Alexander Caldwell,
Mrs. William C. Newton, Mrs. Charles E. Beane, Mrs. Jane S. Gove was the director. Mrs. Ronald Bach and Mrs.
Howard C. Thomas were in charge of the properties, and Mrs. Ritchie H.
Stevens, assisted by Miss Marion H.
Dorr and Mrs. Ward I. Cornell, of the printing.

Through the courtesy of the chairman of the Program Committee Mrs.
H. D. Cabot, the Newtonville Woman's Club enjoyed the rare privilege of lisening to Mr. Walter Camp and seeing a demonstration of his "Daily Dozen," last Tuesday evening. This pleasure was extended to husbands and friends, and the enthusiastic greeting and the applause of appreciation at the close of the evening signified that the gratitude of the entire audience was appropriate and sincere.

Mr. Camp gave some interesting experiences of his years in war service and described the origin of the Daily Dozen, in the effort to make a catch-form of exercise which would supplement that acquired in the sports. He is firmly convinced, and convinced many of his audience as well, that this form of exercise is greatly superior to the Swedish method, in that it exercises the parts of the body which need to be kept supple and youthful, and does not strain the ligaments which should be kept stiff and strong for work. His evidence was strongest when he referred to his visit to the Zoo to learn how the tigers and other wild animals preserved their ability to run, and spring and jump, in spite of the handicap of civilization—by slow stretching and writhing of the big body.

Mr. Camp enlivened his talk with bright anecdotes and timely quotations, proving himself a lecturer maker of unusual charm.

Most appropriate to the occasion was the Community Night, which was held on Tuesday evening, as the first meeting of the Auburndale Woman's Club in the new Community Center Club House. Although not entirely finished, the Auditorium seemed most inviting, and the tastefully arranged stage provided a beautiful setting for the evening's entertainment. A musical program was given through the courtesy of the A. M. Hume Piano Company, selections being rendered by the Baldwin Reproducing Piano just as they had been played by well known artists. There were also songs by Mrs.
Myrtle A. Brown and violin numbers by Mr. Frank McDonald, which were most enjoyed.

The president, in a graceful speech of welcome to the new Club House, dwelt on ideal citizenship, and then gave a number of announcements regarding Club and Federation events, also the City election on December 12, all of which should interest the ideal citizen. Christmas Health Seals being on sale at the meeting. Mrs. Carrie A.
Hall of the Welfare Bureau explained briefly how the money realized is spent by the Bureau for much needed tuberculosis prevention work in Newton.

Mr. Charles H. Pennoyer gave the address of the evening on "Community Cooperation and Social Progress," a suggestive and practical talk applied to Auburndale. Public spirit he considers a modern virtue, and Americanism as meaning something deeper than can be found in any other part of the world. It means the right and duty of the average man. The greatest value of the public school lies

Miss Dorothy Sprague of Quincy, maid of honor, wore a gown of shell pink chiffon and silver, and carried Killarney roses.
The bridesmaid, Miss Elizabeth C. Berger of Pelham, N. Y., and Miss Barbara Anthony of Brookline, wore gowns of Nile green chiffon with opalescent trimming, and carried Marguerites.

The best man was Mr. William F. Wright of Lisbon, Ohio, and the ushers, Mr. Carl Ericson of Winthrop, and Richard E. Anthony of Brookline.
A reception at the home of the bride followed the ceremony. The house being tastefully decorated for the occasion with chrysanthemums, roses, and Southern smilax. The bride and groom were assisted by their parents and the bridal party.

After a motor trip to New York, Philadelphia, and Atlantic City, Mr. and Mrs. Morrison will live at the Winthrop Arms, Winthrop Highlands.

The bride is a graduate of Lasell Seminary, class of 1920.

VOTE NO

At the City Election, Tuesday next, look for the Beverage Question, and place your X (cross) against No. In this way you will show your allegiance to the Federal law. Since the adoption of the 18th amendment, Newton has always voted in harmony with it.

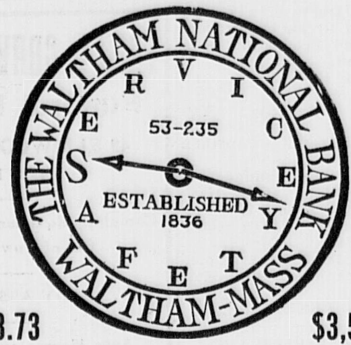

Newton is a city of homes, and values the laws that protect her children.

For many years Newton has been in the vanguard of the movement for abolishing intemperance. In this election the citizens will have an opportunity to uphold their splendid record.

SHUBERT THEATRE—Once again has Arthur Hammerstein delved into the theatrical grab bag and brought forth a sparkling musical comedy gem in the form of "Daffy Dill," which, with Frank Tinney as the comedian-in-chief is playing a three weeks' engagement at the Shubert Theatre, Boston. The second week begins next Monday, December 11th. "Daffy Dill," which is in two acts and eleven scenes is said to represent Mr. Hammerstein's most pretentious offering to date. Julian Mitchell arranged the dancing ensembles and the entire production has been staged under the direction of Arthur Hammerstein. The most significant feature of "Daffy Dill" is the fact that the authors have bestowed intelligent thought upon the book, or plot, which is of sufficient attainment to hold the attention of the most "jaded" theatregoer.

WILBUR THEATRE—That greatest of all mystery plays, "The Bat," soon starts on its fifth month at the Wilbur Theatre, Boston, and the warning has gone out that while it will remain there until Christmas a sudden departure may be looked for any moment. Mary Roberts Rinehart has proven herself so expert, and skillfully modeled as a play by Avery Hopwood, "The Bat" is at once the most ingenious, exciting and thoroughly worth while melodrama ever produced. For those who relish humor in addition to their thrills, "The Bat" also offers splendid entertainment. A splendid cast and a flawless Wagenhals and Kemper production added to the expert artistry of the authors, simply further serves to make this sensational hit the most absorbing, fascinating and altogether enjoyable mystery play of many seasons.

In the sense of unity it represents. Older people need both to work and to play together. Beware of movements that divide, and stress the interests that unite. A community is a thing to be achieved.

On Wednesday morning the Newton Social Science Club held its monthly business meeting with reports of committees. Miss Dorothy L. Simpson spoke on behalf of the Christmas seals, telling of the work which has been accomplished with the money received in former years. Seventy-five percent of the sales is kept for work in Newton.

The Community Service Club of West Newton held a program meeting in the Congregational church parish house on Wednesday afternoon. Mr.

Earl Barnes spoke on "Ninety Years of Life and How to Use Them." To those who are passing middle life the question should be "How is your nerve, not, how is your rheumatism?" Youth excels in athletic prowess and in lyric poetry, but all other great work is done by older people. He quoted from reliable statistics that 4 percent is done by those ranging in age from 30 to 40; 21 percent, between 40 and 50; 35 percent between 50 and 60; 24 percent between 60 and 70; 15 percent after 70 years. He called particular attention to the fact that four times as much is done by those past middle life as by those still in their youth. The address was bright and entertaining and full of interest. Mrs. Thomas Weston, Jr., violinist, accompanied by Mrs. George Owen, gave a delightful program of music. The teachers and ministers of West Newton were special guests.

UNION MEETING AT NEWTON

At Eliot church on Tuesday afternoon Mrs. George Lawrence Parker will address the meeting of the Women's Church Societies of Newton on the advisability of forming a Federation of such societies. Rev. Chester A. Drummond will speak on "The Holy Catholic Church." There will be music by pupils from the West Newton Music School. A social hour, which is a small part of the object of this union meeting, will follow the program. Come and help cement the ties which bind the women of Newton together.

ELKS' MEMORIAL SERVICES

The Elks' Memorial Service last Sunday night at the Newton Community Theatre was well attended and the splendid ritual and service made a deep impression on all present. Mr. Charles J. McCue gave an interesting and eloquent address and the Lotus Quartet and Mr. Everett E. Truette gave great pleasure by their music.

SCHOOL NOTES

Edited by Dorothy Drake
Lasell

A most interesting event will take place this evening when the Lasell Glee Club will give a radio Christmas concert at Shephard's broadcasting station.

Under the direction of Miss Stackpole on Saturday evening, the Dramatic Club will present two short plays, "Neighbors," and "Overtones." The Power of the Imagination will be the subject of the lecture which Mrs. Herbert N. Wright will give before the school on Saturday morning.

Before a most appreciative audience the pupils of the Woodland Park school gave a most enjoyable concert on Friday afternoon.

Dr. Ashley D. Leavitt of Brookline is to be the speaker at the Christmas lectures at 6.15 on Sunday evening. Music will be furnished by the Glee Club.

On next Wednesday evening a musical will be given by the students at Lasell.

There will be a Christmas dance at six o'clock and an illustrated lecture in the evening by Carruth Wells, F. R. G. S., who will relate his experiences in the jungle of Malaya, on the last night before Christmas vacation.

Woodland Park has its Christmas tree entertainment on Friday afternoon, the school closing on that day.

Stearns School

Exercises appropriate to the Thanksgiving season were held in the assembly hall last week. The story of the first Thanksgiving was dramatized by pupils of the fourth grade. The selections by the Junior High School chorus were unusually well rendered.

The three highest per cents in attendance for the month in this district were as follows: Miss Lovely, Grade IV, 98.4; Miss Stewart, Grade II, 98.2; Miss Swann, Grade V, 98.1. The average for the district was 95.6. "Educational Week" is being fittingly observed in the various rooms. Parents are urged to make a special effort to visit the schools during this week.

The Junior High department left us on Monday for their new quarters. The children gave cheer after cheer for the Stearns School and the teachers left behind a very nice note of appreciation for the good cheer and helpfulness they had received. We shall miss them all, both teachers and pupils, but we do enjoy having two extra room.

On Monday afternoon Miss Beatrice Hunt, who is employed by the N. E. Dairy and Food Council entertained the pupils with stories pertaining to the value of milk as a food. These were illustrated by colored lantern slides.

The Junior Girls' Club held its December dance in the hall of the Stearns School on Wednesday evening, Dec. 6. Hanlon's Orchestra furnished the music and the refreshments were in charge of the entertainment committee, Ruth Gallagher, Ruth La Voie, and May Boudrot. The dance was chaperoned by Mrs. Wm. Boudrot, Mrs. Gallagher, and Mrs. La Voie. The Newton Girls' Club will give a vaudeville entertainment on Saturday afternoon at the Home for Aged Women at Newton Centre. Miss Myrtle Weldon, Miss Lillian Swartz and Miss Gertrude Perry will be in charge of the program. At the business meeting held at the Stearns School Center on Tuesday evening, Dec. 5, it was decided to give a play early in February, and a professional coach will be engaged for this dramatic performance.

Burr School

Grade 3 has been making table representation of Plymouth in 1622. Grade 8 has the best record in helping the room teacher. The secretary of the class has been especially helpful. This class has also won the best showing in the enrollment for the Junior Red Cross.

Members of the graduating class have their class pins.

Junior High School

Two hundred and fifty pupils and 25 teachers moved on Monday into the new Junior High building on Walnut street, Newtonville. The lunch room and gymnasium are not yet completed, so that the pupils are bringing their lunches from home for the present.

AT ELIOT CHURCH

Next Sunday being the 100th anniversary of the birth of Cesar Franck, the celebrated organist and composer, the following program of his compositions will be rendered by the choir of the Eliot Church:—

Quartet (with Baritone solo) "Welcome, dear Redeemer"

DEATH OF MR. LOWELL

Mr. John Lowell of Chestnut Hill, for many years a member of the board of Sinking Fund Commissioners of this city and one of the best-known lawyers in Boston, died last Sunday night at his winter residence on Commonwealth avenue, Boston.

Mr. Lowell was born in Boston, May 23, 1856, and was the son and grandson of judges, his father being the late Judge John Lowell of the United States court. He graduated from Harvard College in the class of 1877 which included the late Governor William E. Russell and President A. Lawrence Lowell. He left the Harvard Law School in 1879 and entered the law office of Lothrop, Bishop & Lincoln. The next year he engaged in practice by himself, and, three years later, formed the firm of Lowell & Lowell with his father, Judge John Lowell, who had just resigned from the United States Circuit Court. The same year he married Miss Mary Emelen Hale of Philadelphia.

At his father's death in 1897 he formed another partnership which included his brother, now Judge Jas. A. Lowell.

He was a director of the Waltham Bleachery & Dye Works, a member of the advisory board of, and counsel for, the Employers' Liability Insurance Corporation in London, trustee for the Harvard Loan Fund, a trustee for the Massachusetts Society for Promoting Agriculture, a member of the Massachusetts Charitable Society, vice-president of the Mass. Life Insurance Co., a trustee of the Mass. General Hospital, the McLean Hospital, and the Convalescent Home in Waverley, president of the Boston Poultry Association, a member of the visiting committee of the Arnold Arboretum and Bussey Institution for Harvard College. He belonged to the Union, Tavern and Exchange Clubs and the Harvard Clubs of Boston and New York. He also was a member of the General Council of the American Bar Association and was a member of the Boston Bar Association.

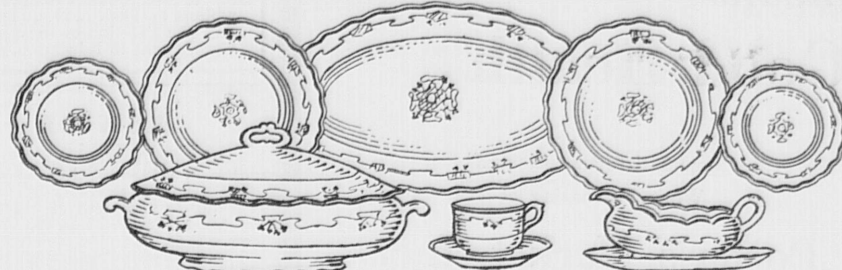

He is survived by his widow, two sons, Messrs. Ralph and James Hale Lowell, and one daughter, Mrs. Olivia Lowell Thordike.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon in King's Chapel in the presence of a distinguished gathering of lawyers and business men. Every pew in the historic church was occupied, among the delegations being a group of thirty members of the Boston Bar Association, representatives of the Massachusetts General Hospital, Harvard classmates of 1877, and directors of the Massachusetts Hospital Life Insurance Company.

The service was conducted by Rev. Abbot Peterson of the First Unitarian Church in Brookline and Rev. Charles E. Park, D. D., of the First Church in Boston. The King's Chapel service was used, and the King's Chapel Male Choir sang and Virgil Thompson, organist, played an air by Handel as a prelude, and "Praeludium and Fugue in G" by Bach as a postlude.

The ushers were George L. Aspinwall, W. D. Sohler, James A. Lowell, Jr., J. A. L. Blake, Ronald Lyman, Edward A. Winsor, William A. Barron, Jr., Leverett Saltonstall, and Francis C. Gray.

Burial was in the Lowell lot at Forest Hills Cemetery and was attended only by the immediate family.

WOMAN'S ASSOCIATION

The Woman's Association of Central Church met on Wednesday at the church. The tables decorated with Christmas trees and light from red candles suggested the approaching holiday season. A delicious luncheon was served by Mrs. W. F. Dame and her committee. The young women of Central Guild assisted.

The Association has been growing steadily and now numbers 221 members. Through the morning the women were busy with sewing and surgical dressings. Layette have been prepared for Near East Relief and a box of clothing, house furnishings and Christmas gifts is to be sent to Pleasant Hill Academy, Tennessee.

The speaker, Miss Miriam Woodberry, was very interesting in her talk on "The New Adventure of Home Missions." She had a wide knowledge of conditions in the Middle West, the rural south, and among our immigrants. Unfortunately failure to meet apportionment has crippled work considerably in the Home Mission field. Ministers living on meagre salaries were obliged last year to give up one month's pay as their share of the burden. The wife of one of them went into a mill.

Through the efforts of Theodore Roosevelt, the church is allowed to meet the new comer to our shores, and at Ellis Island our denomination is represented by a Kindergarten teacher.

The influx of the negro to the Northern cities is a matter for serious thought. Large sums are made in the oil fields and the more thrifty save their money to migrate.

Mrs. W. H. Allen, who has charge in Newtonville of the Dollar Day in the campaign for the Union Colleges, spoke with enthusiasm and challenged Newtonville to do her share, as she had in former efforts to raise money for worthy objects. The need of the East for leaders and the Rockefeller endowment will be secured if the required amount can be raised before January.

Mr. P. P. Williams showed stereoscopic views of India and the explanations were given by Mrs. A. D. Salinger. As the surgical dressings will be sent to a hospital in India the medical work there is of especial interest to the Association.

VOL. LI.—NO. 14

NEWTON, MASS., FRIDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1922.

TERMS. $3.00 A YEAR

A COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS

Newton Corner making interesting plans for the coming holiday

Christmas chimes and lighted candles will usher in a noteworthy Christmas Eve in Newton this year. At 5.15 on Sunday evening candles will be lighted in the windows of each home, and at 5.45 the churches will send out from their bellies peals of bells, and from their doors groups of singers with lighted candles in hand will gather about the Community Christmas Tree in Farlow Park. In addition to these groups, other carol-singers will come from the Y. W. C. A. and other organizations working for the welfare of Newton and its girls and boys.

"Two Boy Scout buglers will herald the approach of the singers to the Christmas tree, and when the groups have assembled, the tree will be lighted by Representatives of the Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls. The combined carol-groups and church choirs will then give a program of Christmas music, after which each group will start out through the community, to sing to shut-ins and old folks who will be unable to go out of doors. In this way all will share in Newton's Christmas Eve celebration.

A member of the committee in charge gave the following interview to our reporter, as a message to Graphic readers:

"The success of Newton's Christmas Eve depends on the general public quite as much as on the carol-singers. Will every citizen help, as follows:

"1. By having lighted candles in the window of your home, by 5.15.

"2. By coming to Farlow Park at 5.45, regardless of weather.

"There are very few occasions in which the whole community can join enthusiastically—and Christmas is the best of these. So we are eager to have every one, old and young, share in this celebration. This may seem like a large undertaking, and it did to one of our foremost citizens, who remarked, 'You people who are planning this are optimistic. I don't believe that you can make any impression on Newton.' We hardly agree with this citizen—for we feel sure that Newton wants just such a Christmas Eve, and will join in making it a great success.

"Will the older people help the children to understand what we are doing—for instance, that the lighted candles stand for the lights of gladness which flame up in our hearts with the return of Christmas Eve?

MR. GRAHAM RELIES

Just as we were prepared to tuck the 1922 Newton High School football season away in moth balls we were accosted by a friend who took great delight in asking, "Did you see the 'panning' your story of the Waltham game got in the Graphic last week? What are you going to do about it?"

A few years ago we know just what we'd have done about it. We'd have dashed to our desk, grabbed the Corona, and pounded the keys a plenty in an attempt to tell our critic just where he "got off." But time brings changes and our few years of newspaper experience have taught us that there is nothing to be gained by arguing with the inevitable. Mr. North disapproved of our article and since we do not intend to retract any part of it he will continue to disapprove. That's that.

Mr. William E. North, who took vigorous exception to our story of the Waltham game may have expressed the opinion of other Newton sport followers. We don't know. Would like to.

If we set out to answer Mr. North's letter to our satisfaction we would (Continued on Page 4)

WOMAN'S ASSOCIATION

At the invitation of Mrs. Lichliter the Woman's Association of Central Church met Wednesday at the Manse, 40 Foster street. It was a large gathering and one of marked interest. The program was provided by Group III. Mrs. E. E. Wakefield, Jr., leader. Devotions were led by the president, Mrs. A. H. Decatur. Mrs. Robert Trask and Mrs. Carrie E. Hull assisted in the discussion of the subject: "Social and Economic Progress of the Negro." Mrs. Trask reviewed the growth of slavery and the efforts to regulate it prior to 1863. Mrs. Hull gave an account of conditions in our own city, the West Newton community, which numbers 300 negroes. They are self-respecting and enjoy a social centre—a room where 75 can be seated at supper. Mrs. Wakefield saw grounds for encouragement in the progress being made in the South. There are 1,000,000 farms operated by colored people, one-third are owned by them. $20,000,000 spent this year on their education certainly will yield results.

MILLIONS FOR CHARITY

The Men's Club of West Newton held an intensely interesting meeting on Wednesday evening, in the parish house of the Unitarian Church, at which Mr. Robert W. Kelso, former Commissioner of Public Welfare spoke on the charitable work done by the state and by hundreds of philanthropic organizations. Mr. Kelso said that the community must get away from the old feudalistic idea of charity and realize that social service must be placed on a business basis and not done for sentiment. In 1921 there were some 127,000 persons either in various state institutions at a cost of nearly 21 millions or about 40% of the entire expense of the state. One meal for these persons costs $3500. Besides the state there were about 1500 incorporated societies in the state of which 917 made a financial return showing they had a capitalization of 141 millions, and an annual expenditure of about 33 millions of which some $17,800,000 came from the public. This makes a total of 54 millions by state and private organizations costing (Continued on Page 4)

LIGHT VOTE AT CITY ELECTION

Alderman Ball, Capt. Sinclair Weeks and Mrs. Hutchinson the winners

The city election held on Tuesday attracted but little attention, part of it due to the rain weather, but also on account of the lack of interest.

There were three city wide contests, two for aldermen at large and one for school committee and one contest for ward alderman in ward 4.

For alderman at large from ward 1, Alderman William S. Ball was re-elected receiving 385 to 358 votes cast for his opponent, Dr. Thomas M. Gallagher. For alderman-at-large from ward 3, Capt. Sinclair Weeks was an easy winner over Mr. Philip W. Carter the vote being Weeks 551, Carter 2029.

For member of the school committee from ward 3, Mrs. Helen S. Hutchinson won handsily over Mrs. Elizabeth J. Gill with a total of 4627 to 3039 for Mrs. Gill.

Alderman Harry B. Ross was easily re-elected ward alderman from ward 4, having 542 votes to 301 for Albert Lloyd Cole.

There was some difficulty experienced early in the morning in transporting the ballots to the various precincts, due to the glare of ice which coated the streets between four and five o'clock. City Clerk Grant was compelled to call for assistance from the Fire and Police departments on account of the hard going.

The following persons were elected: Alderman at large

Roy V. Collins, 4787; Ward 3, Sinclair Weeks; Ward 4, George M. Heathcote, 5917; Ward 5, Henry W. Ball, 4727; Ward 6, Randolph F. Tucker, 4676; Ward 7, Harry W. Fitts, 4621.

School Committee
Ward 3, Helen S. Hutchinson; Ward 6, Salmon W. Wilder, 4587.

Ward Aldermen
Ward 1, John C. Madden, 726; Ward 2, Daniel O'Connell, 1065; Ward 3, Timothy Hickey, 1009; Ward 4, Harry B. Ross; Ward 5, J. Earle Parker, 812; Ward 6, Norman F. Pratt, 729; Ward 7, Howard Norton, 569.

The vote on the question of granting licenses for the sale of non-intoxicating liquors was Yes 2725 to No 4355. The only precincts carried by the license advocates were Nonantum, Lower Falls and Chestnut Hill, the last achieving this distinguished (?) honor by a vote of 63 Yes to 61 No.

The small vote made counting easy and all returns were received at City Hall before 8 o'clock.

CITY HALL
Alderman Thomas W. White has been appointed by Governor Cox, as a member of the new state commission on administration and finance. Mr. White will be the commissioner on personnel and standardization for the term of four years.

Are on a Station-to-Station Basis

When 900 out of every 1000 toll calls are made in this way month after month, you need no better proof that a large majority of telephone users get satisfactory service, quicker action and lowest rates by making their toll calls on a station-to-station basis; that is, by asking for a number, or for the listed name of a subscriber, and not for a particular person.

If you make your calls in any of the following ways, you will save time and at least 20 per cent on toll charges:

Bangor 3265-W.

Robinson Machine Co., Springfield, Mass.—Will talk with anyone who answers.

Residence of Joseph Brown, Burlington, Vt.—Will talk with anyone who answers.

Office of John Smith, Pittsfield, Mass.—Will talk with anyone who answers.

A call for "John Smith, Pittsfield, Mass., or anyone" is a person-to-person call because the request is primarily for a particular person and the operator attempts to find him first.

Experience has shown that in nearly every case the person you want will answer at once or, if not, that you can talk satisfactorily with someone else.

SCHOOL NOTES

Edited by Dorothy Drake

Mason School

Congratulations to the Bowen School at Thompsonville for their fine attendance record during the last four weeks.

Every room had over 90 per cent, the highest being 97.4 per cent.

—Mr. and Mrs. and the Rice School had good records also.

Be on the lookout for the next issue of the Masonian! It is due about Christmas time.

Christmas tableaux for the younger grades of the Mason, and Dickens, "Christmas Carol," for the older grades are the present program for Christmas week.

Each child is invited to bring in vegetables of all kinds for distribution during the days before Christmas.

That is one way to help along a merry Christmas.

Stearns School

The Mothers' Club at Stearns School Centre was entertained on Monday evening, Dec. 11, by the Newton Girls' Club and the Junior Girls' Club.

The Newton Girls' Club presented a Christmas cabaret, under the direction of Miss Myrtle Weldon and Miss Gertrude Perry.

Songs were featured by Miss Dada Masse, Miss Ruth Stubbett and Miss Anna Morrison, and Miss Mary Divincenzo, accompanied by Miss Mary Shea on the violin, sang popular musical hits.

The Junior Girls gave a playlet entitled "Christmas at Skeeter's Corner."

Miss Margaret Terrio played the role of the country school-teacher who is registered with the national organization, Christmas stories were told by the Sixers and games played after the instruction hour.

Teachers and pupils of the Stearns School are pleased at the rapid recovery of Mr. Winslow.

Newton High School

The Newton High hockey schedule this season consists of fourteen games in addition to the Greater Boston Interscholastic Hockey League contests, which bring the total of games this season to twenty-one.

The season will open with the Boston Latin encounter at Newton on Jan. 3. The Middlesex, St. Mark's, Milton Academy, Harvard, 26, Andover and Exeter games will be played away from home.

The schedule: Jan. 3, Boston Latin; 6, Stone School; 10, Noble & Greenough; 13, Middlesex at North Concord; 17, Stoneham High (pending); 20, Andover at Andover; 24, Harvard '26 at Cambridge; 27, Exeter at Exeter; 31, St. Mark's at Southboro; Feb. 2, English High; 7, Milton Academy at Milton; 9, Deerfield; 14, Harvard second; 17, open.

In the winter of 1913 a group of students in this school gave an entertainment for the purpose of raising enough money to buy a dictionary, encyclopedia and several other volumes for the library.

The first entertainment was enjoyed so much by the speakers and the audience that it has now become a regular social event.

This year the program was unusually good and in spite of bad weather the hall was filled to capacity.

Among the musical numbers, readings and comic sketches there was a short play, "Mistletoe and Holly-berry," given by a group of students coached by Miss Doonan and Miss Smith.

Those taking part were as follows: Mary Palmateer, Samuel Shribler, Mabel Williamson, Catherine Donahue, Marie Laffie, Mary Puccinelli, Leonora Bennett, Edgar Swail, Gertrude English, Irene Forte, Doris Forte, Elena Matthews, Dorothy Connolly, Ethel Murphy, Marie Barry, Catherine Cody, Marguerite Russell, Arminia Ernst, Margaret Barry, James Cronin, Thomas Morrissey, Isabel O'Connell, Wellington Harter, Rosemary Scott, Norman Barber, Doris Stormont, Gilbert Newhall, Cynthia Blake, Dorothy Thornton, John Sheehan, Francis Murphy, Carroll Leary, Mary Sullivan, Mildred Beardsley, Hilda Campbell, Walter Hannigan, Joseph Sullivan, Paul Reilly, John Braceman, Frank Hinks, George Rivers.

The result of these declamations is a library of which every student of the Technical High School should be extremely proud, made possible by the co-operation of teachers and students working harmoniously together for its success.

Forty-five applicants have already been reported for hockey practice, and a great many more are expected. The practice, which is held on Monday Wednesday and Friday of each week is devoted to cross-country runs and puck "shooting."

The girls' basketball team held its fourth practice in the gym under the supervision of Mrs. Kuntz and Miss Lundholm.

A record number of students turned out for track on Monday, Dec. 12. The attention of sport followers has been turned from football to this favored sport and as a great number of last year's veterans have returned, the prospects of a good team are bright.

On Dec. 15 the Sophomore English Club of the Technical High School will hold a meeting in the library.

Seby Caruso of the Senior class will give a talk on the Fascisti and Mary Gianferante will sing the national hymn of the Fascisti in Italian. Miss Josephine Buswell will render several musical selections followed by a reading by Priscilla Holman, a graduate.

Mr. Waldron H. Rand, Jr., of Newton Centre entertained the Girls' Hockey team at the Brae Burn Country Club on December 2. During the banquet, small gold pins were given to those who were present. This surprise, coupled with the banquet, made a very enjoyable conclusion to the hockey season.

Junior High School

The Junior High School has now an enrollment of 535. The following are the new teachers:

Miss Alvira M. Sandwall, head of the cooking department, from the State Department of Public Health.

Miss Eva M. Grenier, teacher of French, from the Leominster High School.

Miss Marion Phillips, teacher of English and Science, from the Woodworth Institute of Quincy, Mass.

Mr. Mitchell Barber, manual training instructor, from Greenfield.

Mr. Victor E. King, Boys' Physical Director, from the Springfield Y. M. C. A. Athletic College.

Miss Allen's School

The Christmas party for friends outside of the school was held last Saturday evening at the school. Tomorrow night there will be a Christmas party for the members of the school only.

Examinations will begin next Monday and on Thursday the school will close for two weeks.

Mt. Ida School

The Christmas Dance will be held at Mt. Ida School next Wednesday night. The school will close on Thursday for three weeks.

Country Day School

The Country Day School closes on Dec. 22 and reopens Jan. 8.

Lasell

Gen. Pershing has been elected the honorary member of the Class of 1924.

Mrs. Towne gave a very delightful tea at Woodland Park on Wednesday afternoon, announcing the engagement of Miss Doris Shapleigh, head of the Mathematics Department at Lasell, to Mr. Everett W. Thompson, an instructor in Tilton Academy.

Greetings to the "old girls" who were listening in were sent by the Glee and Mandolin Clubs before their radio concert last Friday evening which was given at the Shepard broadcasting station.

Under the direction of the music department a very fine concert was given on Wednesday evening. The program consisting of vocal, piano, organ and violin selections.

The annual Christmas dinner took place on Thursday evening and the usual merry time with the jokes and slams was enjoyed by the students and faculty.

At 8 o'clock on that evening, M. Carverth Wells, R. F. G. S., gave an illustrated lecture in the chapel on his "Six Years in the Jungles of Malay."

Bringing very clearly and interestingly to his audience the conditions and life in that faraway country.

Woodland Park School had its closing exercises and Christmas tree on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Burr School

The Christmas exercises will be held in the hall next Thursday. There will be a dramatization of "The Bird's Christmas Carol," and the singing of carols.

The pupils of the Burr School have been enthusiastic in selling the Christmas health stamps.

Newton Centre District Office

An Edison District Office is now open in Newton Centre, at 1253 Centre Street, as an added convenience for users of Edison Service.

The telephone is Centre Newton 2220.

Edison customers are invited to call at the Newton Centre office for the exchange of lamps, to settle their monthly accounts, and make applications for service, or purchase or get information about electrical appliances.

The Newton Centre office, the office at Nonantum Square and the Watertown office are under my direct supervision. As the Company's executive representative in these districts, I trust you will use these offices freely for any information—in fact in regard to any of the matters that you would ordinarily take up at the General Offices.

The Edison Pay Station has for several years been located in the Electrical Store of the Foresman Electric Company, who have always given this Company and the people full satisfaction.

With the opening of the District Office in Newton Centre, it was, however, found desirable not to duplicate the pay station service, and it will be transferred from the Electrical Store to the Company's District Office.

Very truly yours,
J. H. KENT,
District Manager.

DEATH OF MRS. KING

Mrs. Sarah M. King, who died in Newton last Friday, was the widow of the late George King and was a native of Scotland where she was born 65 years ago. She has been a resident of Newton for the past 20 years and is survived by four sons and one daughter, Messrs. George and Walter King of this city, Paul and Harry King of Chicago and Mrs. Oscar Rische of Waltham. Funeral services were held from her late home on Gordon terrace, Newton, on Monday afternoon, Rev. Dr. Laurens MacLure, rector of Grace Church officiating and the burial was in the Newton Cemetery.

CHRISTMAS EVE

No doubt Christmas Eve will find many of us looking into the past, as we recall the Christmas Eve's of our childhood.

We shall catch the far-away whiff of mince-pies long since demolished by young appetites. We shall hear the old carols ring out through the frosty air—"God rest you, merry gentlemen," and the others, filling the night with their cheer. We shall hear the tinkle of sleigh-bells and the crunch of snow under the runners. Best of all, we shall recall our feelings of childish wonder, and our lively anticipation of the contents of our stockings!

One of the charms of Christmas eve is the chance that comes to pass on to our children, amid all the bustle of merry-making, the deeper Christmas message. They will look back to this coming Yuletide as we do to those of our own childhood—having caught the Christmas spirit—through us.

Newton is fortunate this year in the plans which have been made for a memorable Christmas Eve. Our children will always remember the cheerful rows of yellow candles in the windows; the ring of those old carols across the snow, and the festivity of crowds of merry-makers in the streets.

So let us have many candle-lit windows, and lusty carollers. Let us all don mufflers and great-coats, and rally forth to join the throng around the tree in Farlow Park!

—COPELEY THEATRE—For the third week of his seventh season at the Copley Theatre, beginning Monday evening, Henry Jewett has selected "Raffles," the highly-popular detective play with which last season ended so auspiciously. Its hero is a personage well known in fiction and on the stage. He is the hero of many stories of adventure written by E. W. Hornung, a famous English novelist and romancer who died recently, and the play dealing with his exploits is drawn from them by the author himself in collaboration with Eugene W. Presher. Plays of the Sherlock Holmes and Raffles type have always held a warm place in the hearts of all theatre-goers. They both belong to the same entrancing world of romance and the imagination, and they both open our eyes to vistas of picturesque existence and to the entertaining qualities of romance.

Barrett Roofings

"Barrett" means Sound-Value Roofings

THE NAME "BARRETT" is everywhere the symbol of sound-value roofings. For almost three-quarters of a century The Barrett Company has maintained its leadership in the roofing field, sparing no effort or expense to uphold the prestige of the Barrett name.

Barrett Shingles—mineral-surfaced in a beautiful fadeless shade of dark red or green—are an example of the high quality for which Barrett Roofings are justly famous. They are exceedingly durable, very economical, highly fire-resisting and need no painting.

There's a Barrett Roofing for every kind of building. Ask us about them.

Other popular Barrett products include metal protective paints, roofing cements, shingle stain oil, fly spray and a wood preservative.

EDITORIAL

While we are somewhat inclined to criticize the lack of interest in our city election by the voters of Newton, only 42% taking the trouble to cast their ballots last Tuesday, it is fair to say that even if the defeated candidates had been elected we would still have had confidence that the interests of the city would have been well served. At the same time this does not guard against the possible danger in the future from this laissez faire policy by the electorate and some steps should be taken at once while politics are quiescent, to remedy the trouble. We suggest that consideration be given the city manager form of government or a reduction in the size of our board of aldermen.

The report that a coach for athletics in Salem is to receive a salary of $4000 as supervisor, $800 additional as coach and 50% of the net receipts of any post season football games by the High School team of that city, making him the highest salaried employee of the city should be the subject of serious thought by every citizen who has the welfare of our youth at heart. Are we not setting a bad example to the young, by thus emphasizing the physical training as distinct from that of mind and morals, and at the same time making a clear discrimination against the physical development of the girls who are entitled to as much consideration as the boys.

ENGAGEMENT TEA

Mrs. Harry N. Milliken gave a delightful tea yesterday afternoon, from four until seven to present Miss Helen Palmer Horner, of Newark, N. J., whose engagement to her son, Mr. Alfred Robert McIntyre, has just been announced. Miss Horner is a graduate of Miss Whitmore's School in Newark, a member of the Colonial Dames and of a young women's Guild an organization similar to the Sewing Circle of Boston.

The house was decorated with beautiful cut flowers, and the dining table had a centre-piece of immortelles. Those who poured were: Mrs. Charles W. Allen, Mrs. Hulings C. Brown, Mrs. Theodore Jones, Mrs. Charles Whittemore, Mrs. Leon Van Vleet and Mrs. Charles H. Breck, assisted by Mrs. John Q. A. Whittemore and Mrs. George F. Schmitt. Frappe was served in the library by Mrs. Edgar W. Hodgson and Mrs. Joseph N. Palmer.

In the evening forty young people, friends of Mr. McIntyre, enjoyed dancing, for which Hazelton's orchestra furnished the music.

about $100 per minute. Mr. Kelso believed that this state of affairs could not continue without social bankruptcy and that this social work must be co-ordinated, that the persons in charge of this work must realize that they are public trustees and that the work must be on sympathy, tempered by reason and based on a real social program.

In Boston, he said there were 200 active agencies at work with 1200 directors and 2000 social workers and indicated some of the difficulties encountered in attempting co-ordination. The present drive after drive for this and that object is not common sense and must fail. We should have a study of the fundamental problem before we touch the financial aspect, a study that should not be done hastily, and with no preconceived notions.

Mr. Kelso said that most of the present methods were directed at darning the delta of the Mississippi while he believed the remedy should be applied at the source.

Before Mr. Kelso spoke Mr. Leon B. Rogers suggested that the club study the proposition of a Community chest for all Newton charities, saying that some quarter of a million dollars was being raised annually in this city for all phases of charitable work.

An excellent dinner preceded the speaking, at which President, William B. Baker was toastmaster. There was some lively music furnished by an orchestra of club members one of whom was George Owen and who was given a rousing welcome when President Baker called attention to the fact that he was present. Mr. Wm. T. Glidden, Jr., the leader of the orchestra also gave a unique solo on a carpenter's saw.

The following committees were appointed by the President, Membership, John N. Eaton, chairman; Library, Herbert M. Cole, chairman; Village, E. F. Lovejoy, chairman; and Zoning, Henry Whitmore, chairman.

MR GRAHAM REPLIES

fill at least two columns of this sheet. That would never never do. So we must deny ourselves the opportunity of going into details and merely reiterate our former position.

We do not detract a single iota from our article of December 1st, although we would gladly if we thought we had made a mistake. But the trouble is we think we are as right as Mr. North thinks we are wrong. We wrote what we saw and if in our writing we "damned" the Newton eleven we couldn't help it. Truth is oftentimes harsh and the average reader is tired of "wishy-washy" articles which slap a team on the back for something it failed to do.

We maintain our Waltham article could have been far more severe without straying from the truth. As a matter of fact we tore up our first story of the game because we thought it might trample upon certain tender feelings. But the fact remains that the Newton team made a mess of the Waltham game and lost the contest solely because it failed to carry into effect the fundamentals principles laid down by the best high school coach in the country. (No, we are not seeking the support of Mr. Dickinson.) The Newton team did NOT do its best in the Waltham game and we believe the boys on the team are brave enough to admit it.

We made no deliberate attempt to criticize in our article. Such criticism as resulted came solely from a statement of the facts as we saw them. Our article was an honest attempt to state the Newton downfall as briefly as possible and we resent the imputation that we were guilty of injustice.

We are going to stop this article right here. We could go on indefinitely but we don't believe it would change Mr. North's opinion one particle. Someone once said that the best way to argue with an east wind is to put on an overcoat. We're going to go the advice one better and add a muffler.

—Walter R. Graham.

PIANO COMPOSITIONS

Edited and with Preface by VINCENT D'INDY

César Franck, the great genius who gave to absolute music in France its most enduring impetus, and who founded and vitalized a whole splendid school of famous composers, did not neglect the piano, the instrument which received from Beethoven its cachet of nobility. Franck's piano compositions are not only of the highest beauty but are permanent contributions to the history of the art, in that he invented new forms, or adapted old ones to modern uses. His pupil and devoted disciple, Vincent d'Indy, contributes a biography of compelling human interest, with many entertaining side lights on musical life in Paris, and it has abiding critical value. This preface of Mr. d'Indy (in French and English) is undoubtedly a most important accession to musical biographies.

Morning Glories

Everywhere the day starts well for our morning glories, if rest and sleep have gone before. Our eyes and faces, cheerfulness and courage bespeak the glories of the morning, when bodies are restored to healthful vigor, and heart and step are light again.

There is nothing better to induce sleep and promote restfulness than smooth, sweet, bed linen. The Garden of laundering niceties, the Garden City Laundry, is distinguished for its superior Household Linen laundry work. Washed with pure soap, used lavishly. Rinsed in clear filtered water, tons of it. No wonder that the linen smells sweet as the flowers that bloom. Ironed smooth, which requires slow and careful method, no time is saved at the expense of good feeling. Handle and feel a sample of our work. Telephone for our truck to call. Today. Why not?

WOMEN'S CLUBS

Edited by Miss Grace M. Burt

Since Christmas is primarily the children's day, it is refreshing to see the clubs taking that aspect and making it a time when not the children of the members, but of families where there will be little else of Christmas will have perhaps the best time of their lives. The experiment of the Newtonville Woman's Club last year made it a never-to-be-forgotten time for both guests and hostesses, and one the members themselves longed to repeat. A similar party is being arranged by the West Newton Women's Educational Club. Other clubs are sure to take it up when once they realize the joy of such celebrations.

Frances Willard Settlement

From now until after December 22nd the Frances Willard Settlement will have the Tiny Toys' Tossery such as was held in its booth at the Atlantic City Boardwalk on sale at George M. Wetherill's store, West street entrance, in charge of the following women; among whom are many Newton women: Tuesday, Mrs. Charles L. Smith, Mrs. Frank H. Shaw, Mrs. Dierholt H. White, Wednesday, Mrs. Louis K. Liggett, Mrs. Gordon T. Turner, Miss Eleanor Bradford, Mrs. Charles Bailey; Thursday, Mrs. Earle E. Conway, Mrs. Charles S. Wing, Mrs. Harry P. Bradford, Mrs. Frank H. Stewart; Friday, Mrs. W. H. Sellers, Mrs. Harry L. Shaw, Mrs. Norman F. Pratt, Mrs. Thomas B. Booth; Saturday, Mrs. Edward B. Bailey, Mrs. Richard Webster; Monday, Mrs. George W. Gilmore, Miss L. M. Lamkin.

Professional Women's Club

Tuesday, December 19, 12.30 P. M. Monthly luncheon at the Copley Plaza. Musical program by Bernice Fisher Butler, soprano; James Ecker, accompanist; Alicia Starrett, violinist; Ida Wiggins Bower, pianist. Many prominent persons have been invited as special guests.

Moving pictures will be shown at the annual Children's Day meeting of the Waban Woman's Club to be held Monday, Dec. 18, at 2.45, in the Albert Angier School auditorium. The program will include "Teddy Birds," views of Theodore Roosevelt and of a large flock of birds which find refuge in the island near New Orleans; "My First Jury," Mr. Lincoln's defense of a little colored boy accused of chicken stealing; "Heidi," a reproduction of the well-known story of a little girl by that name who lived in the Alps; and a "Bobby Bumps" cartoon. Miss Florence Ruoff will be pianist. Mrs. Louis W. Arnold will be in charge of the meeting.

On Monday, December 18, at 1.30 P. M. the Parliamentary Law class under the leadership of Mrs. Electa M. Sherman will meet at the Red Cross House, Newtonville. Mrs. Irving O. Palmer will address the Newton Upper Falls Woman's Club at its informal Gentlemen's Night next Monday evening on "The Four-Leaf Clover." There will be singing of Christmas carols and refreshments will be served. The Civics and Social Service committee is in charge.

On Tuesday afternoon, December 19, the Newtonville Woman's Club will give its annual "Christmas Party" to fifty or more poor children of Newton. Several committees are working enthusiastically together to make it a "Merry Christmas" long to be remembered. There will be a Santa Claus and Christmas tree, story telling by Miss Margaret Sayward, who for several years has been story-teller at the Bookshop for Boys and Girls, and carols will be sung by the Girls' Glee Club from the Perkins Institution for the Blind. A hot supper will be served by the hospitality committee.

All contributions of toys and warm clothing, especially overcoats—those partly worn will be acceptable—for children under eleven years of age, and gifts of money may be sent to Miss Marion Bassett, 105 Central avenue, or to Mrs. Alfred D. Rice, 78 Walker street.

At the next meeting of the Auburndale Woman's Club, Dr. Emil Carl Wilm will speak on "The New Psychology, Problems of Self and Work." Dr. Wilm, who is professor of psychology at Boston University, has published a number of books, including "The Problem of Religion," "Henri Gergson," and "The Philosophy of Schiller." His talk will deal distinctly with the new in psychology, explaining its latest attitude toward heredity, instinct, unconscious mind and efficiency. The music for the afternoon will consist of songs by Mrs. George N. Abner, of the club. This meeting will be held on Tuesday, December 19, at 2.30 o'clock, in the new Auditorium of the Auburndale Club.

Wednesday morning the Rev. Alden H. Clark will speak before the Newton Social Science Club upon "India." Guests may be invited.

The Newton Ladies' Home Circle will have a Christmas party at its meeting on Thursday afternoon at the G. A. R. Hall, Newtonville. There will be a Christmas tree for the members.

The musical play, "The Awakening" by C. Hassler Capron will be given by a group of Newton Centre children in the new Club House on Thursday, Dec. 21st, at 2.30 P. M. and on Friday, Dec. 22nd, at 8.15 P. M., with dancing afterwards. The proceeds are for the furnishing of the Club. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the Activities committee or at Hahn's Drug Store.

Great preparations are being made by the club for the Christmas Party, which the West Newton Women's Educational Club will give for children from twenty-five homes invited by the district nurse. A magician, with real live rabbits, chickens, etc., will entertain, and Santa Claus has promised to be present to officiate at a Christmas Tree laden with toys, new shoes, rubbers, stockings, and clothing, not to mention candy and other good things to eat. The play will be in store for the little folks, as well as for the club members who have given so generously. The Christmas Party to be held Friday, December 22, at 2.30 P. M., at Players' small hall.

Educational Club's Bazaar

Energy and the ability to put through difficult enterprises has always been characteristics of the West Newton Women's Educational Club, and last Friday's Bazaar was only another demonstration of this fact. Notwithstanding the storm Players small hall was crowded to overflowing when four o'clock came, the hour announced for the Tom Thumb Wedding, and seldom has there been a more charming children's performance. The little people did themselves proud. The scene opened in a kitchen where two maids, Barbara Smith and Priscilla Bacon, were completing the preparations for the wedding. The caterers Kingston Smith and Hamilton Bissell, arrived and unpacked their goods, while Curtis Church at the telephone is giving the full details of the coming wedding, including the list of wedding guests to the local reporter on the other end of the wire.

The scene then changes to the church with the bridal arch surmounted by festal decorations and wedding bells. At the rear of the hall the wedding guests have assembled and are duly ushered to their seats by miniature ushers in veritable dress-suits, and then "comes the bride," ushers, bride's maids, maid of honor, and flower girls leading the way in the approved manner, while the rector and minister, the groom and his best man enter at the front. A few moments later the curtain rose upon the reception, the happy pair surrounded by numerous relatives greeting the guests one by one, while Priscilla Bacon, accompanied by Lena Bacon, sang Fairy Tales from "Buddies," and Rosetta Littlefield sang "Take me back to Babyland." During the ceremony music was furnished by the West Newton Music School.

Supper was served, with Mrs. Ernest B. Delesclapier, as chairman. In the evening there was a program of monologues by Miss Lillian Wood, and songs by Mrs. William Jones, accompanied by Miss Irene Steth of West Roxbury. Mrs. Francis E. Powers was chairman of the whole bazaar, and the following women were in charge of the various features: Mrs. John B. Shaw, aprons; Mrs. Adam Haug, fancy articles; Mrs. Percival Waters, candy; Mrs. Willard Church, kitchen; Mrs. Sands Chipman, handkerchiefs; Mrs. Fred B. Young, food; Mrs. Charles Cunningham, tea; Mrs. Haven, grab; the Tom Thumb Wedding, Mrs. Louie A. Bacon. The club is grateful to all who helped to make the bazaar a success, and especially to the mothers of the children who entered so graciously into the preparations for the wedding. A portion of the proceeds will go to the Memorial Library Fund.

Newton Women's Church Societies Federated

Community of interest among the women of the six Protestant churches of Newton was again demonstrated at the second annual union meeting of their women's societies held at Eliot Church on Tuesday afternoon. That it is a very real thing was further shown by the formation of a simple Federation, which shall make permanent this annual meeting and enable the women in time of emergency to act quickly as a unit. Mrs. Samuel W. Bridges, of Grace Church, was elected president, and Miss Miriam Drury, secretary-treasurer. Mrs. George Lawrence Parker told of the Federation at Newton Centre, and the Rev. Chester A. Drummond gave an inspiring address upon "The Holy Catholic Church." Music was furnished by students of the West Newton Music School. Plans for community sewing, when the women will join on the third Tuesday from October to April to sew for local needs, were announced by Mrs. Edward M. Moore.

Mr. Drummond in his address dwelt upon the neglect on the part of Protestantism of the power of the beautiful religion, saying, that we speak of the "beauty of holiness," is there not also a holiness of beauty? In the fear of making the symbol a finality, we have neglected the symbolic in religion, forgetting that there is no religion unless it be symbolic. He looks forward to the time when there shall be but one church in this part of Newton—a cathedral, upon which has been lavished a wealth of beauty of art and of music, a fitting place for all to come and worship. Mrs. Arthur E. Holt called the meeting to order and extended the welcome prayer. Eliot Church Woman's Association, of Mrs. Harold P. Fuller, of the Baptist Church, presided and read from the scripture, Rev. M. Garnett offered. During the social hour, a prominent feature of this meeting, tea was served under the direction of Mrs. Loren D. Towle, the presidents of the other women's societies serving at the table assisted by a large committee representing all the churches.

Local Happenings

Last Tuesday morning the Auburndale Review Club met at the home of Mrs. Charles E. Valentine, 362 Wolcott street. The morning's program led to a wide variety of most inspiring characters, Theodore Roosevelt and Lloyd George. Mrs. George W. St. Amant and Mrs. Thomas B. Scott, who presented the papers, brought out vividly the force of their characters. The singing of patriotic songs by the club members at the beginning and at the conclusion of the program and Mrs. Wickliffe J. Spauld- (Continued on Page 9)

VICTORY LOANS CALLED

Particular attention is called to the announcement of the U. S. Treasury Department that Victory notes bearing the serial letters A, B, C, D, E, and F are called for payment on December 15th and that no interest on these notes will be paid by the government after that date.

In commenting on this subject, Governor Charles A. Morse of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston says: "When the Victory notes were issued, they were made payable on May 20, 1923, but the government reserved the right to pay any part of them on June 15 or December 15, 1922, by giving four months notice. The government has exercised its privilege and has called for payment on December 15, 1922, Victory notes bearing serial letters A, B, C, D, E, and F. These notes will be paid, principal and interest, by the Treasury Department on December 15, and no interest will be allowed on them after that date."

The Victory loan came about four months after the Armistice was signed and was made necessary by the expenses which the government had incurred in carrying on the war. It was put out at a higher rate of interest than the Liberty bonds and for that reason and because of the relief to the public caused by the ending of the war, it was the most popular loan of all the Liberty loans. It was distributed among many thousands of subscribers in small amounts.

"I urge every noteholder to look at his notes and if they bear any serial letter from A to F inclusive, the holder should arrange to have them presented to the Federal Reserve Bank for payment on December 15, either direct or through his own bank. Holders of registered notes bearing these letters should send them in immediately to the Federal Reserve Bank so that there may be time to have the signatures verified before the date of payment."

NEW REAL ESTATE OFFICE

Mahlon W. Hill, prominent Greater Boston real estate dealer, added another link to his chain of offices during the past week when he opened another branch office at 1066 Centre street, near Commonwealth avenue, Newton Centre. In addition to the latter office, Mr. Hill now has places of business in Melrose, Melrose Highlands, and Belmont.

Mr. Hill, who is one of the most active dealers in Metropolitan Boston properties, was prompted to open the new office by the demand from his large clientele for high grade property in the Newtons. He will divide his time among all of the offices. George W. Cole, a popular and well known real estate expert, is in charge of the new office.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONFERENCE

The second annual Young People's Conference was called to order by the president at 7.20 on Dec. 14, 1922, at the Central Congregational Church, following a period of registration and getting together.

After a short service of song and devotion the secretary's report was read and an explanation given by Dwight Shepler of "Why We Are Here," or the purpose of the conference.

Mr. Herbert C. Mayer introduced the speaker and leaders in his usual informal manner, while the young people supported him in the welcome he extended to them by the official hand-clap.

At 8.30 the delegates were divided into five groups, the first year girls and first year boys under Miss Nutting and Mr. Tyler and the second year girls and second year boys under Miss Ripley and Mr. Otto Mayer.

The first year topic was "Personality Through Four-fold Development;" the second year, "How Much Does Your Class Mean to You?" and the adult, "Building on the Four-fold Life Plan," led by Miss Bose.

At 9.20 the conference adjourned. On Saturday morning at 9.30 the devotional service based on the Four-fold Life was directed by four Winnepesaukee Camp delegates.

From 10.00 till 11.00 o'clock the delegates conferred in four groups; Miss Bose and Mr. Tyler in charge of the first year delegates; Mr. Mayer the second-year group and Miss Barker the adults; the general topics being "Group Development," and "The Ideal Organized Class."

At 11 o'clock the Winnepesaukee delegates led in the singing of camp songs, an activity so much enjoyed at the previous conference.

This was followed by demonstrations of social activities conducted in six small groups by various adult leaders. Some of the suggested games were played, after which the box lunches were served.

A recess was then taken till 1.15. At this hour four young people gave a practical demonstration of the opening service in a young people's department of the Sunday School, the theme being, "A Christian's Life."

At the end of half an hour the delegates again separated, this time into three groups with "The Young People's Department of the Church School" as the general topic. Miss Bose took charge of the first year people, Mr. Tyler the second year, and Mr. Mayer the adults.

At 3.00 o'clock all assembled for a business meeting at which officers for the coming year were unanimously elected as follows:

Richard Bird, Waltham, President; Eleanor Richmond, Newtonville, Vice President; Mary Edmunds, Newtonville, Secretary; Albert Hoffman, Waltham, Treasurer.

Then followed various discussions as to what these officers should do for the coming year. It was voted to hold a field day in 1923 but to improve upon the conditions of last year by holding it elsewhere or whatever plan the Executive Committee may decide upon. A leaflet telling of the next conference will be sent to the various Sunday Schools.

Shortly before 4.00 o'clock the afternoon session closed till 5.45 when the delegates gathered and filed down stairs to a most enjoyable banquet.

Throughout the meal an orchestra furnished musical numbers and cheering by towns filled in the intermissions. After various matters of business had been attended to, a most interesting address, "Measuring Up" was given by Miss Bose, and impressions of the conference by a first and a second year delegate.

Then followed the usual Friendship Circle, in charge of Mr. Mayer, and the Conference came to a close.

A CHRISTMAS FAIRY STORY.

It was a glorious Christmas morning, and the sun streamed through the windows so brightly, as if it said, "I rejoice with you in your Christmas Day." It had snowed the night before, and the snow clung to the trees and bushes; everything was wreathed in a beautiful white mantle and the icicles, where the snow had melted and frozen again, sparkled like diamonds.

I felt that I must be out in the midst of it to enjoy myself thoroughly, and donned my overcoat, overshoes, hat and gloves and started down the road, reveling in the beauty of the day.

As I was walking along, I felt a small chubby hand stealing into mine, and looking down, I saw a lovely little boy not over two feet tall. He was dressed in a white coat trimmed with white fur, white leggings, overshoes, mittens and a white fur cap on his head, with the figures 1922 in gold letters on the front. He carried in his hand a beautiful golden trumpet. There was a gay smile on his lips, his black eyes sparkled with merriment, his cheeks were as red as the bloom on the bonniest apple of the autumn harvest, and when he talked and laughed, a most fascinating little dimple would come and go at the corner of his mouth. "What is your name, my little man?" I asked. "My name is Merry Christmas," he replied, "and I have come to visit you this year." Then he blew his trumpet and laughed and danced along at my side. So "Merry Christmas" and myself continued on our way, and I enjoyed his lively chatter as he told me what the day meant to him.

It was at this time when I felt another small chubby hand stealing into mine on my other side, and there was a second lovely little boy of the same size as "Merry Christmas," and dressed the same, except he had the figures 1923 on his cap. He carried in his hand a beautiful golden trumpet. There was a gay smile on his lips, his black eyes sparkled with merriment, his cheeks were as red as the bloom on the bonniest apple of the autumn harvest, and when he talked and laughed, a most fascinating little dimple would come and go at the corner of his mouth. "What is your name, my little man?" I asked. "My name is Happy New Year," he replied, "and I have come to visit you this year." I am a little early, but "Merry Christmas" and I are great chums, and he wants me to enjoy the Christmas holidays with him, so that I shall be better prepared for my day, which is on January 1st. Then he blew his trumpet and laughed and danced along at my side.

So "Merry Christmas," "Happy New Year" and myself continued on our way, and they blew their trumpets, and laughed and chatted about the good times they were going to have in this beautiful world before the close of the year.

Coming to a fallen tree, I sat down to rest for a while, and "Merry Christmas" and "Happy New Year" went away a short distance and made snow balls which they fired at me and I had great fun dodging them. Now, do you know, the strangest thing happened. All the snow balls when they struck, broke in halves and out of each half came a lovely little boy, who rapidly grew to the same size as "Merry Christmas" and "Happy New Year" and who were all dressed the same. They carried in their hands beautiful golden trumpets. They had gay smiles on their lips, their black eyes sparkled with merriment, their cheeks were as red as the bloom on the bonniest apple of the autumn harvest, and when they talked and laughed, most fascinating little dimples would come and go at the corners of their mouths. Some had 1922 and some 1923 in gold letters on their caps, and they all blew their trumpets and laughed and danced about until it seemed to me that the world was full of happiness and good cheer. They formed sides, "Merry Christmas" and "Happy New Year" commanding each side, the 1922 boys on one side, and the 1923 boys on the other, and pelted each other with snow balls. Whenever a boy was hit, they all fairly bubbled over with fun and blew their trumpets and had a jolly time.

Finally they formed a circle around me, raised their trumpets, blew a long blast, and shouted "Glory to God in the highest, Peace on earth, Good will to men" and when I looked again, they had vanished. As I returned home, it seemed to me, although I could not see my little friends, "Merry Christmas" and "Happy New Year," I felt that they were with me. I fancied that I had a gay smile on my lips, that my eyes sparkled with merriment, that my cheeks were as red as the bloom on the bonniest apple of the autumn harvest, and that when I talked and laughed, there was a fascinating dimple which came and went at the corner of my mouth.

I hope, that you, who read this story, will also meet during the holiday season, your "Merry Christmas" and "Happy New Year" and will enjoy their company so much that you will have always, during the coming year, a gay smile on your lips, that your eyes will sparkle with merriment, that your cheeks will be as red as the bloom on the bonniest apple of the autumn harvest, and that when you talk and laugh, a most fascinating dimple will come and go at the corner of your mouth.

—BRUCE R. WARE.

A FAIR QUESTION

To the voters of Newton; why did the ballot for the city election today put the question that bore upon the Constitutional Amendment, by asking if we objected to the sale of non-intoxicating liquors?

Was the question not put in such a way as to indicate that we should vote in opposition to the Amendment? It was impossible to tell the truth, whether a law-keeper voted "yes" or "no" to the question. For we do not object to the sale of non-intoxicating liquors, but we were obliged so to vote in order to vote against intoxicating liquors!

Who is responsible for so garbling the issues and misleading the voters? —Ella B. Smith.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The Alumni of the Technical High School recently held a reunion in the school library where they enjoyed an evening's dancing. The patronesses were: Mrs. Kidger and Mrs. Koughan. The committee in charge of the affair was made up of members of the class of 1922: Chairman, M. Hines; Harold Waters, Betty Unlaski, Dorothy Black, Louis Kirsch, H. Hughes, Gordon Berry, D. Clark.

On Tuesday, November 28, the Girls' Hockey Team made its annual visit to the "Green Bough" Tea Room in Wellesley. Barbara Cooke spoke in behalf of the team in appreciation of all that Miss Flanders had done to make the team a success. After presenting Miss Flanders with a gold Eversharp pencil, the team enjoyed refreshments, including cinnamon toast.

Mr. Ellis of Newton addressed the students in the Technical High School on Wednesday in the Assembly Hall. He gave a very interesting talk on "Civic Duties."

The Thrift Stamp sales have increased greatly within the last week in the Classical High School. A machine, installed by the Newton Savings Bank, makes the purchase of these stamps much more convenient, and it is hoped that the slogan of every boy and girl will be "Keep your money working for you."

The Annual Declaration was given in the Technical High School on Thursday afternoon and will be repeated this evening. The program is a very elaborate one, containing play, musical selections and speakers. There will be a dance in the Gym following the entertainment this evening. The proceeds of the Declaration go to the library for supplies and new books.

Nearly 200 girls turned out for basketball practice last week, and a fast team is expected to represent the school.

Last week the Classical High School received a gift of seven beautiful pictures from Mrs. Enoch C. Adams of West Newton. As these pictures came from the home of our former principal they will be hung in various class rooms.

The Second Annual Harvest Carnival given by the Student Council on November 29 was a great success. Those who furnished the entertainment were greatly appreciated. A sextet consisting of H. Auryansen, J. Cashman, H. Jones, E. Appleton, R. Case, and J. DeMille rendered several selections which were appreciated, while Mary Reynolds and J. Cashman gave two humorous monologues. A vaudeville skit by B. Cooke, Ann Schipper, F. McKeon, Edith Curtis, Helen McKee and Frances Holmes was much appreciated by the audience.

Be it resolved:—that in the passing away of our President, we feel that we have lost a friend and comrade who gave untiring devotion to the cause to us was so dear, and who was full of zeal and energy, willing even to sacrifice herself for the sake of assisting others, and

Be it also resolved:—that we tender to her husband and family our deepest and heartfelt sympathy in this time of their bitter sorrow; and

Be it further resolved:—that this testimonial be made a part of the records of the Association.

CENTRAL CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

"Iconoclasm and Progress"

A Message for Forefathers' Day

Rev. M. H. Lichter, Pastor

Newtonville

—Mrs. J. L. Richards entertained the Journey Club on Wednesday.

—Newton Co-operative Bank, December shares, 7th series, now on sale. Last interest 5 3/4%.

—Mrs. M. H. Lichter entertained the members of the Women's Association of Central Church at her home on Foster street on Wednesday.

—The Anniversary Bazaar of the Universalist Church was held yesterday and is continuing today in the Parish House on Washington Park.

—A very delicious bean supper was served on Wednesday evening in the parish house of St. John's Church.

—Mrs. James A. Mitchell and Mrs. Arthur A. Fairweather were in charge.

—A most interesting evening was enjoyed on Tuesday at St. John's Parish House where a Peddler's Parade was held under the auspices of the Woman's Guild of that church.

—The following Dartmouth students are coming today from Hanover to spend the holidays with their parents: Robert Strong, Belden Sly, Stanley Lyon, Carl Schipper, Clarence McDavid, Jr., Robert Salinger, Harry Weare, Winfred Robinson, Rajahild Bjorkman, and Robert Stopford.

—Plans are under way for enlarging the Methodist Church in order to meet the present conditions. The church was begun in 1857 and the auditorium was completed in 1890.

—The tower was built in 1863 and the bell was hung in the same year. The church membership at that time was about 75 and the Sunday School about 52.

—The present church membership is 504 and the Sunday School membership is 311. The primary department of the school has to meet in a hired store on Bowers street, because of the crowded conditions.

—Other class meets in the kitchen, one in a coat room and four classes are in the auditorium. The official board desires to retain the present location so plans have been drawn up to enlarge the tower and the main building, build an addition at the back to accommodate the church school and other community interests.

—The church entrance across the park on Walnut street and build additional entrances from Bowers street and Newtonville avenue. The old red brick will also disappear for the new church is to be finished in sea-faced granite in English gothic architecture.

Y. M. C. A.

—A New England Conference on religious work was held at the New Old South Church, Copley Square, on Thursday, December 14th. Dr. John R. Mott, General Secretary of the International Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association was the leader. The Newton Association was represented by Mr. Frederick D. Fuller, President; Mr. William M. Breed, Chairman of the Community Work on the South Side of the city; Mr. Francis L. Bacon, and L. Chase Kepner, members of the Boys' Work Committee, and Secretaries Bascom, Leary, Hess, and Carling.

—On Thursday evening, December 14th, a committee of ladies from the Newton Community Club, of which Mrs. Harry F. Morse is Chairman, entertained the Americanization class in the Assembly Hall of the Newton Y. M. C. A.

—Following the usual custom there will be an Open House and New Year Reception on Monday evening, January 1, 1923. This will give an opportunity to parents and friends of the Association to see the type of work being done and also to enjoy special entertainments. The Newton Constabulary Band will give a concert in the lobby; there will be an entertainment in the hall at 8.30; and activities in the gymnasium and swimming pool.

FUNERAL OF MR. LAFFIE

The funeral services for the late Martin C. Laffie were of a rather unusual nature, there being a preliminary service in charge of Rev. H. Grant Person, D. D., pastor of Eliot Church, followed by a Grand Army service conducted by Commander George M. Pike and the Odd Fellows burial service in charge of Noble Grand Roy C. Buck and Chaplain Arthur C. Smith.

Mrs. Ray of Dorchester sang several selections including "Nearer My God To Thee" and "Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching." The burial was in Newton Cemetery.

ing's rendering of the Welsh national air interpreted well the spirit of the morning.

A Radio Party, the first so far reported, was held on Tuesday afternoon, December 12, by the Woman's Club of Newton Upper Falls at the home of the second vice-president.

Mrs. Walter E. Stevens, for the benefit of the Julia Ward Howe Memorial and the club's Philanthropic Fund. Those present "listened in" to the lecture on "Town Forests" by Mr. Harris A. Reynolds, and on "Winter Birds" by Mrs. Harriet T. Goode of the Conservation department of the State Federation, as broadcasted from Medford Hillside.

Mrs. Arthur Colby, dressed to represent an old photograph of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, received the guests at the door. Later she gave short sketches of Mrs. Howe's life, including her domesticity, her early religious training, her club life as president of the New England Women's Club, and later of the State Federation, and told how she came to write "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." An Edison record of this hymn sung by a quartet appropriately closed the program, and the company adjourned to the dining room, where amidst Christmas table decorations Mrs. Colby and Mrs. H. E. Child, president of the club, poured, and a corps of young ladies assisted in serving.

Mrs. H. A. Neally, president of the Newton Social Science Club, opened the meeting on Wednesday morning with a touching tribute to the memory of Mrs. John M. Woodbridge, the club's treasurer, whose sudden death on Monday came as a shock to her many friends.

Dr. H. H. Powers, the speaker of the morning, continued the club's study of France with an illustrated lecture upon "The Cathedral Builders." The period treated by Dr. Powers, the early part of the 12th century, was that of the beginning of practically all the cathedrals, which he stated, were begun within the lifetime of a single person. The slides shown brought out the Romanesque and Gothic types of architecture, and he also showed many of the beautiful stained glass windows, as well as details of the capitals, the gargoyles, and the sculpture.

To Dedicate New Club House

It is a matter of more than local interest, the dedication of the Newton Centre Woman's club house just completed in Newton Centre Square. The site was a gift to the from the Bray estate. This generous gift of years ago has made it possible for the club to realize its long cherished dream of owning a home, which should serve as a centre, not only for the social activities of the Woman's Club, but also for many village and city interests; thus bringing about a broader spirit of neighborliness and uplift in the life of the village. The realization has meant years of uphill work, and on the eve of dedication each woman who has worked and hoped and sacrificed will be ready to say that through all the work and worry and the overcoming of obstacles together, she has learned so much of the happiness of team work, of the joy of finding helpful friends at every turn, of the joys as well as terrors of building of labor complications and of the way men meet these complications, that it has all been worth while—just as education. Now the dignified, substantial building stands ready for dedication, a lasting tribute to the efforts of the club women and to their helpful friends; a tribute to the good taste of the architect and to the builders. The earnest hope of the club is that its value to the village life may grow and develop to such an extent that it may prove the wisdom of its creation and become a necessary, vital element in the welfare of Newton Centre.

The dedication is to be held Sunday afternoon, December 17th, at 3 o'clock and the club members extend a cordial invitation to all to be present.

COMMONWEALTH COUNTRY CLUB

The Commonwealth Country Club, will open its social season for the ladies of the Club and their guests on December 18, with a progressive auction bridge party in aid of the Fatherless Children of France. The Alighting hostesses are Mrs. James R. Arington of Allston and Mrs. Frank H. Chamberlain of Newton Centre.

This charity always awakens a warm response from the ladies of the Club and a large gathering is assured despite the nearness to Christmas. Among those assisting in the affair are Mrs. E. J. Blake of Newton Centre, Mrs. Fred C. Cook of Allston, Mrs. Ernest A. Cressey of Boston, Mrs. James C. Duane of Brookline, Mrs. Walter H. Jenney of Chestnut Hill, Mrs. Ervin A. Johnson, of Brookline, Mrs. T. E. C. Johnson of Brookline, Mrs. Harry F. McMinn of Brighton, Mrs. Charles E. Murnan of Brookline, Mrs. Eugene E. O'Donnell of Allston, Mrs. Raymond A. Rich of Brookline, Mrs. Vincent P. Roberts of Chestnut Hill, and Mrs. James G. Widener of Brookline.

of Newton, and that the Board of Aldermen has already appropriated $2000 to expend towards improvments so that the field will be in good shape by next spring.

At the same meeting the Nonantum Improvement Association was organized, and the following officers were elected: John Finelli, President; Gerry Mazzola, Vice President; James

AUCTION BRIDGE

Auction bridge players, who are also readers of The Boston Sunday Herald, will welcome the appearance in book form of the articles published in its columns between Dec. 4, 1921, and Sept. 10, 1922. Hundreds of players throughout the country significantly approved of that series of articles, and the author has revised it for appearance here and added much valuable new matter in order that the book may reach and instruct a still wider audience.

Auction bridge, as played today, has been perfected and improved until it has become a splendid standard game of cards. Mr. Federhen is widely recognized as an authority, and beyond doubt this volume will promptly gain recognition as one of the most scientific and one of the most attractively presented works ever published on the subject. The publisher has done his part well and the topography and binding of the book give it special distinction. The latter part of the volume, which contains 260 pages, has many of the questions and answers which were the result of the publication of the series in The Sunday Herald.

COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS

Final arrangements for the Community celebration have been completed, and will begin with carols from the chimes of Grace Church on Friday night, at 7:30 P. M.

On Saturday evening, at 7:30 o'clock a group of men from the Y. M. C. A. will play Christmas music, so that the busy shoppers on their way to and from their last Christmas errands will not forget amidst all the hurry and rush that the true Christmas spirit is not in the gift, but in the spirit which that gift represents—the spirit of love which came with the Christ Child nineteen hundred years ago.

On Christmas eve, the height of the celebration will be reached. Most of the churches are having Christmas services on Sunday afternoon and from those churches at 5:50 as well as from other quarters of the city will come processions of people carrying lighted candles, while from the belfry of Grace Church the chimes will ring out the glad tidings. At the approach of the processions the Boy Scouts will give a bugle call to tell those coming from a distance that the carols are to begin. The procession will gather around the Community Christmas Tree, in Farlow Park, which, though perhaps small, will be a veritable "tree of light" as representatives from the Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls light the tree to blend its lights with those of candle bearers.

The scene will be a picturesque one. The many candles, the carol singers around the lighted tree, the myriads of lighted candles in the windows all over the city, one long to be remembered by the children and the grown ups as well, one long to be remembered not only for its beauty but for the significance that it holds in the joining one and all in a Community celebration.

his death, Mr. Wilson was one of its directors. He had also been a director of the Colonial National Bank of Boston and of the First National Bank of West Newton. He was the first president of the Boston Credit Men's Association, was a director of the Boston Merchants' Association, a member of the Boston Associated Board of Trade which afterward became the Boston Chamber of Commerce, a member of the Massachusetts State Board of Trade, the Trade Club, the Newton Club, the Newton Boat Club, the Mayors' Club of Massachusetts, the Dalhousie Lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Newtonville, and the Royal Arcanum.

Mr. Wilson took a deep interest in public affairs, serving as an alderman of the city in 1892, and as mayor in 1899 and 1900.

Mr. Wilson was twice married. His first wife, who was Miss Luella E. Woodward of Somerville died many years ago and in 1905 he was married to Miss M. Grace Hastings of Cambridge who survives him.

There are living two children by the first marriage, Frederick A. Wilson of Woodstock, Vermont, and Miss Josephine F. Wilson of Bartlett, New Hampshire. There are also three grandchildren, Mrs. Violet W. Makepeace of Cambridge, the daughter of Frederick A. Wilson, and E. Wilson Lincoln of Brookline and Mrs. Marjorie Winton of Great Barrington.

Services for Mr. Wilson will be held this afternoon, at his late residence, Rev. J. Edgar Park of the Second Church officiating.

DEATH OF MR. GIBSON

Kirkland H. Gibson, treasurer of the Ivers & Pond Piano Company, died Saturday at his home, 390 Hammond street, Chestnut Hill, following an illness of about a month. He was the son of George A. and Ruth (Dickenson) Gibson of Brooklyn, and his father, who died in May last year, was head of the same company.

Mr. Gibson was a native of Medford and a graduate of Harvard in the class of 1881. Immediately following his graduation, he associated himself with his father in business. He was a member of the National Piano Manufacturers' Association and of the New England Music Trade Association, and had served each as president. He also was a member of the Union Club, the Country Club, the Boston Athletic Association and the Eastern Yacht Club.

He is survived by his mother, who lives in the family home on Commonwealth avenue; by his widow, who was Miss Florence Warner of Boston; two daughters, the Misses Eleanor and Ruth Gibson, and two sons, George Warner Gibson and Kirkland H. Gibson, Jr.

Funeral services were held at the Church of the Redeemer in Hammond street, Chestnut Hill, Wednesday afternoon, Rev. L. W. Rogers officiated, and music was by the church organist, Walter J. Kugler. The ushers, all friends of Mr. Gibson, were George P. Diko, Francis A. Harding, Henry D. Pratt, Harold C. Sears, Charles F. Wallace, Rufus Wilber and Albert Goodhue. Cremation and interment took place in Mount Auburn Cemetery.

NEW POLICE CAPTAIN

Chief of Police Bernard F. Burke of Newton has appointed Lieut. James J. Mullen to fill the position of captain, vacated by himself when he was made chief on Nov. 21 by Mayor Childs. Mayor Childs approved the promotion of Lieut. Mullen to a captaincy.

Captain Mullen joined the Police Force as patrolman in June, 1893. He was for seven years permanent houseman under Ex-Chief Mitchell, who was at that time a lieutenant. He was appointed sergeant when Lieut. Mitchell became chief in 1910. In 1917 Capt. Mullen was promoted to a lieutenant.

The new captain is held in high esteem by all the officers on the force. In a statement today Chief Burke characterized Capt. Mullen as "a capable, faithful and efficient officer." Ex-Chief Mitchell, with whom Capt. Mullen was associated for seven years, made the statement that he considers the new captain a born executive, an able officer and a man of excellent judgment.

Capt. Mullen has made a study of law. A new lieutenant will be appointed immediately and a new sergeant and a patrolman will be named by Jan. 1.

THE NEWTON HOSPITAL

To the citizens of Newton:—

The Newton Hospital enters upon the year 1923 with a feeling of satisfaction for results accomplished during the past year and with every confidence that Newton citizens will continue their interest and financial support. Through your co-operation and generosity the Hospital closed its fiscal year free of debt.

During the year rates were reduced, lightening the burden of those who received care at the Hospital.

To meet the demands of the ever increasing number of patients, seven additional rooms have been constructed. Rates for these rooms are well within the means of those in moderate circumstances.

For the current year, we estimate that the Hospital will need $35,000 to equalize the difference between income and outgo. In addition to the 5% of service that we are obliged to render at cost or less, some of the immediate needs are as follows:

Additional rooms and toilet facilities for nurses. The eight hour day for nurses has increased by 30%, the number needed for hospital work. Some of our nurses are now living in temporary quarters built during the war. A separate dressing room to care for the increasing number of X-Ray patients.

We appeal to all the people of Newton to support this, their hospital. The extent of the service to be rendered is measured only by the amount of funds received. Furthermore, we believe it to be highly important that the number of subscribers be as large as possible to the end that through many subscriptions, the average gift may be reduced to a point where a share in the maintenance of hospital work may be brought within the reach of all Newton citizens.

This letter should reach you by December 27th. Shortly thereafter, you will be called upon for your pledge, unless you prefer to mail it in the enclosed envelope; if it reaches the treasurer not later than January 6, no call will be made. It would relieve this Committee of considerable work if you would mail your pledge promptly as suggested.

FINANCE COMMITTEE,
Newton Hospital.

EDISON LIGHT

Newton Centre District Office

An Edison District Office is now open in Newton Centre, at 1253 Centre Street, as an added convenience for users of Edison Service.

The telephone is Centre Newton 2220.

Edison customers are invited to call at the Newton Centre office for the exchange of lamps, to settle their monthly accounts, and make applications for service, or purchase or get information about electrical appliances.

The Newton Centre office, the office at Nonantum Square and the Watertown office are under my direct supervision. As the Company's executive representative in these districts, I trust you will use these offices freely for any information—in fact in regard to any of the matters that you would ordinarily take up at the General Offices.

The Edison Pay Station has for several years been located in the Electrical Store of the Foreman Electric Company, who have always given this Company and the people full satisfaction.

With the opening of the District Office in Newton Centre, it was, however, found desirable not to duplicate the pay station service, and it will be transferred from the Electrical Store to the Company's District Office.

Very truly yours,
J. H. KENT,
District Manager.

SPECIAL APPEAL

The Newton Home for Aged People on Elliot street, Newton Upper Falls, is one of the most deserving institutions in Newton. At present we are furnishing a comfortable home for twenty-five old ladies, mostly Newton people, which it is the aim of the Directors to make sunny and pleasant, as befits the atmosphere which should surround these old ladies in their last years.

Those of our citizens who know of the good work which the Home is doing, recognize it as a worthy cause and contribute freely of their means. Many of our Newton friends, however, are not acquainted with its location, nor the good work being done in providing a home for deserving women of Newton, where their declining years may be spent in happiness and comfort.

The undersigned Directors take the liberty, therefore, of bringing our Home to your notice, and explaining to you frankly its present condition and its needs, hoping thereby to enlist your hearty financial co-operation at once, for the purpose of raising at least $25,000. This sum is badly needed—and we hope it may be contributed during this present month of December.

For the past five years, even with the most rigid economy, our expenditures have exceeded our income by about $9,000. We were compelled in order to save the older part of the Building, to cover it with stucco. At the same time we made interior alterations by which we obtained several extra bed-rooms, and now the Building is in good condition. This work cost $8257, a burial lot cost $1200, and the replacement of the dilapidated out-buildings, which work is now going on, will cost several thousand dollars. Our drive-ways must of necessity be remade, besides which the cost of the splendid Building—our New East Wing—erected a few years ago, has never been met.

We cannot further impair our invested funds in order to meet our expenditures or to make good our lack of funds for Maintenance, hence we must of necessity make this appeal for at least $25,000. Will you kindly contribute as liberally as you can, during the present month, to put this noble work on a sound basis for the New Year 1923?

Our Directors, as well as many friends of the Home, are giving freely of their time, strength and money, and we are confident that many other friends in Newton, when they know of the good work we are trying to do, will not allow it to suffer for lack of financial support.

If you will but call and spend an hour at the Home and allow our Matron to show you about, we feel sure you will readily see its needs and gladly help us—in addition we hope for your friendly co-operation through interesting others in its good work.

The time is short and the need is urgent. May we therefore ask for your immediate response? Please make checks payable to the Stone Institute and Newton Home for Aged People, Mr. Albert P. Carter, Treasurer, 511 Barristers Hall, Boston, and send same direct, or to any of the undersigned Committee.

NEWTON CHORAL CONCERT

The city of Newton has reason to be proud of a society of such marked ability and skilful leadership as that of the Newton Choral Society. The sixth concert on Tuesday night in Central Church, Newtonville, was, in many ways, the best the society has so far given. The program was marked by great variety.

Bach's "Break Forth, O Beauteous, Heavenly Light," was followed by a stirring Viking song dating from the days when "steel ships were wanted on the sea."

This, in turn, was followed by two beautiful love songs, "In Piccadilly" and "Love's Benediction," the former English, and the latter Irish, in which the pianissimo parts were particularly well done by the chorus.

Between the love songs, and before the Christmas carols of Part 2d, Mr. and Mrs. Miquelle gave Symphonic Variations on "cello and piano which were much enjoyed and enthusiastically encored.

"Wynken, Blynken, and Nod," Nev-in's well-known lullaby with its singularly beautiful accompaniment, with Mrs. Marjorie W. Leadbetter as soloist, was well rendered by both chorus and soloist and received a hearty encore.

Part 2d opened with an exquisite bit by women's voices without accompaniment. In contrast to this was "The Wreck of the Julie Plante," a musical narrative of a humorous nature which was sung by Mrs. Leadbetter with much animation and evident enjoyment. This also received an encore.

In keeping with the Christmas season the audience were invited to join with the chorus in the singing of "Adeste Fideles." The chorus then sang two Christmas carols, "Listen Lordlings Unto Me" and "The Holy Mother Sings." The latter is a 14th century carol, very beautiful and deeply religious.

The concert concluded with a rendering of "Psalm 150" by chorus and organ. The men's parts, particularly the bass, were very effective, and the last "Hallelujah" rang forth triumphantly.

The attendance at the concert shows that Newton people are giving to the Newton Choral Society a well deserved support.

COMMUNITY SCHOOL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

The Norumbega School of Religious Education, at Newtonville, has recently closed its first term of ten weeks, with an average attendance of 102 members, out of a total registration of 153. This is considered a good average for an evening school of this type, where many students come from such distances as Waltham, Watertown and Belmont. The number of churches represented in the Community School this year has been 30. Of the 153 persons registered, nearly all are active Sunday School workers or those in training for such work. There have been 2 pastors, 10 general superintendents, 10 other officers, 61 teachers of children eleven years old or younger, and 46 teachers of young people or of boys and girls over eleven years of age.

The second term of the School will open with a rally on January 8th, at the Central Church, Newtonville, with Dr. Charles N. Arbuckle of Newton Centre as the speaker. Several interesting new courses are to be given during the second term, including The Life of Christ, Bible dramatization and pageantry, and Young People's work. Special features of interest are being planned for the assembly periods of the new term, such as story telling, stereopticon pictures of travel in Palestine, and other demonstrations of different types of church school work. A series of excellent pictures of places in Palestine has been presented to the Norumbega District by Mrs. Louis D. Gibbs, of Newton; these pictures are to be mounted and loaned to teacher for use in their Sunday classes. A small number of much-needed reference books are also to be made available to teachers through the District organization.

"The New Clown"—For the Christmas holiday weeks in the theatre, a bit of laughter and merriment is necessary, and there are continuous bits of laughter in "The New Clown," which we shall give for the first time at the Copley Theatre, beginning Saturday afternoon and evening, December 23, and continuing through next week. The children much especially be pleased during their vacation week, and "The New Clown is a play for them as well as for their elders.

"The New Clown" is a novelty among plays, and also among farces. It is original from beginning to end, and filled with startling humorous surprises. Its central personage is a lively young English aristocrat, Lord Cecil Garston by name and title, who becomes the victim of a practical joke, being made to imagine that he has accidentally killed a friend of his by pushing him out of a window into the Thames. Told that the police are after him, he seeks escape and joins a circus as a clown, a profession for which he is ludicrously unfitted.

A New Roofing with a 70 Year-Old Reputation

ALL BARRETT ROOFINGS must measure up to the high standards of quality which The Barrett Company has steadfastly maintained for more than 70 years. There can never be any question as to the quality of a new Barrett Roofing—so that when we offer a new roofing it's merely a question of whether the style appeals to the individual buyer.

Barrett Octagonal Strip Shingles are one of the new styles that have proved immensely popular. This roofing needs no painting, is rugged, fire-resisting, and moderate in price; while the octagonal shape and rich-colored mineral surface make it one of the handsomest roofings on the market.

There's a Barrett Roofing for every kind of building. Ask us about them.

Other popular Barrett products include metal protective paints, roofing cements, shingle stain oil, fly spray and a wood preservative.

While we have no desire to criticize the judiciary, a sentence of 14 months for stealing 49 cents given by one judge contrasted by a mere fine of $125 by another judge, for a second offence at selling liquor, causes us to wonder if there ought not to be some uniform method devised by our police judges in order that justice in various parts of the Commonwealth might be more equitable.

In this connection, we would also express the conviction that unless more severe and possibly nothing but jail sentences are imposed for violation of the liquor law and for operating automobiles while under the influence of liquor, we shall never eradicate these offenses, which in one case undermine the physical and mental well being of the community and in the other endangers the lives of every member of the community. The Legislature can pass as many laws as it pleases but its action can be made null and void by the judge who administers these laws. Until there can be a mutual understanding between the legislature and the justice, therefore, the great body of our people are liable to be badly served by their public servants.

The city of Newton suffers a great loss in the death this week of two of its most valued citizens. One, ex-Mayor Edward B. Wilson has had a long, honorable and useful life, and has left an unexcelled example of what can be accomplished by industry and ability. The other District Attorney Endicott P. Saltonstall is cut down in the prime of a life which had already achieved public and professional success and seemed destined for still higher honors. His death is a tremendous loss to the city and to the state as his ability and capacity for high public service had just been put to the test and had not been found wanting.

The tempest in a teapot over the mastership of the Newtonville Grammar school district will soon subside when it is known that the action of the school committee in this matter was not only unanimous but was taken with full knowledge that such action might be unpopular. The school committee is far better able to decide such questions of administration than the average citizen and their power to engage, transfer and discharge teachers is clearly stated in the statutes of the Commonwealth.

While there will be a public hearing next Wednesday night on the new zoning ordinance which is said to be a compromise measure so far as the single and two-family districts are concerned, it is said that the hearing will be perfunctory and that the ordinance as now framed will be adopted.

Let us give just a word of warning to those who intend to lighten up their corner of the city with illuminated candles. Take every precaution to prevent fire by removing draperies and by keeping the candles from coming in contact with anything inflammable.

In all our laudable efforts to make the Christmas season one of cheerfulness and joy, let us not forget to do something to bring gladness into the hearts of those less fortunate than ourselves. What have YOU done in this direction?

The editor has a few bound volumes of the acts and resolves of 1922 which will be given to any interested.

PISTOL SHOOT

The annual pistol shoot at the Newton Upper Falls range was held Sunday afternoon, Cos. D. H. and M. Howitzer and Regimental Headquarters companies competed. The prize, which was won last year by Co. H of Newton, was won this year by Co. M. The individual prize was won by Capt. Livingston of Regimental Headquarters Company. Last year the individual prize was won by Sgt. MacDonald of Co. H. Col. Foley was chief range officer and Major Agnew was executive officer. According to the rules 10 men were to shoot from each company. Co. M, the winner, shot 12 men and chose the best 10 scores. Co. H came second in the shoot, but there is a possibility that Col. Foley will rule that the scores of the first 10 men who shot for Co. M be allowed and the other two excluded, in which case Co. H of Newton would retain the cup.

DEATH OF MR. SALTONSTALL

Delta Phi, Hasty Pudding and Porcellian Clubs.

He was elected to the Newton Board of Aldermen in 1899 and served for five years, being vice-president and president of the board for two years each.

After graduating from the Harvard Law School, Mr. Saltonstall entered the office of Nichols and Cobb, in Boston, remaining there until he entered the Law Department of the Boston Elevated. In 1902, he left the Elevated to become identified with the firm of Richardson, Herrick & Neave, in which he remained three years. In 1905, he entered partnership with his classmate, Albert P. Carter, and his law classmate, Robert G. Dodge, the firm's name being, Saltonstall Dodge & Carter. This partnership, by mutual consent, was dissolved in 1910. In 1917, he formed a partnership with Charles W. Blood of Auburndale, under the name of Saltonstall and Blood.

In October, 1921, Governor Cox appointed Mr. Saltonstall to fill the unexpired term of District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex County, who was removed.

Mr. Saltonstall was a prominent member of the Boston Bar. Perhaps his best known call to distinction, aside from his deeds as district attorney, was his services with the Boston Elevated Railway. For many years he had been its counsel in the many accident cases tried before the Bay State courts. This gave him a large local acquaintance and tempered his skill in countless jury trials. It was remarked of him by a court authority that he had probably won more cases in the courts than any other lawyer in Massachusetts.

He was a member of the Newton Constabulary. He served also on the legal advisory board and was chairman of the community labor board in the district in which he resided. He was a member of the Somerset, Union, Harvard and Exchange clubs. He was interested in charities and was president of the Children's Mission. He was also president of the Winsor (Girls) School Corporation and a director of the Commonwealth Trust Company. He had been a director in the American Unitarian Association and was chairman of the committee on admission of the Boston Bar Association.

Mr. Saltonstall used to say with pride that he had always lived in the house in which he was born, at 245 Chestnut Hill road, with the exception of the first five years of married life. He married Elizabeth Baldwin Dupee at Brookline, Nov. 2, 1898, and has three children, Elizabeth, Endicott Peabody and Florence.

Governor Cox and other representatives of the state, city and county were present at the funeral services held yesterday morning, at the First Parish (Unitarian) Church in Brookline. The Rev. Abbott Peterson, pastor of the church, officiated, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Endicott Peabody of Groton school, a cousin of Mr. Saltonstall. The services were simple, in respect to the wishes of Mr. Saltonstall expressed before his death.

The ushers were George C. Lee, Richard Saltonstall, Louis A. Shaw, James H. Lowell, John M. B. Church, William Nathaniel Saltonstall, Philip Weld, Philip L. Saltonstall, George Von L. Meyer, Leverett Saltonstall, and Arthur Bickford. The honorary bearers were Dr. Lincoln Davis, Robert Homans, Dr. Hugh Williams, Lindsay Loring, John Saltonstall, Robert Saltonstall, Charles W. Blood, Albert P. Carter, Russell A. Sears and Dr. Herman T. Baldwin.

High School Notes

The "Dynamo," the Technical High School paper, came out on Wednesday. This is the first issue of the year and was exceedingly interesting, showing that a great deal of time and work was put into it by the staff. Several pages of good poetry, good editorials, and some interesting short stories are among the features.

"Fanny and the Servant Problem" is the title of the Senior Play for the Technical High School. Already preparations are under way for rehearsals and the play will be given in the early part of February.

Newton has added another to its long list of sports by the new swimming team. This is a new idea and the students are showing a great deal of interest in it. The first practice was held at the Newton Y. M. C. A. under Mr. Carling, who took charge of the candidates. There has been practice three times a week and Mr. Carling recently "cut" the squad to twenty-three and in another week will "cut" to fifteen of the best swimmers. The team is very fortunate in having Todd Wallace, plunger of no mean ability; Perry, an excellent diver; Philip Terzis, fifty-yard champion and many others. This organization has been made possible by the hearty cooperation of a body of students and Mr. Richmond.

On Saturday the annual Suburban League banquet was held at the Boston City Club, over 150 men and boys being present. After a picture was taken of the group and displayed, Mayor Quinn of Cambridge spoke, followed by coaches of other high school teams and Dr. Martin of Newton. The baseball cup was given to Newton for the championship team of 1922.

Mr. Davis of the Classical High School wrote a very unique and interesting article for the school paper. He stated that although conditions are changed and the school has more equipment the boy and girl of today are the same as they were fifty years ago.

Newton and Brookline High track teams have decided on a novel plan for this winter. A dual meet will be held at each school and in that way each team will have a chance to show what it can do, both on and away from the home track. Usually in these indoor meets the home school has an advantage.

Bigelow School

The officers of the English Club of the Bigelow School are: President, Evelyn Whitmore; Secretary, Pro Tem, Ruth Howlett; Librarian, Grey Blandy. The club edits the school paper, choosing by ballot the editorial staff. The president appoints each week a committee of five to have charge of the next meeting. This committee chooses one book from selected list, extracts from this book are read, and the story outlined.

The following are members of the Debating Club: President, Dorothy Barba; Vice-President, Virginia Sourier; Secretary, Frances Gotschall. The first ten weeks were spent in studying the foundations of debate. The club presented the scene, "The First Thanksgiving."

The following are officers of the Science Club: William Switzer, chairman; Thomas Kinley, Secretary; Blanche Perry, Assistant Secretary; Elizabeth Mooney, Treasurer. There are two groups, one of boys and one of girls; the former call themselves the "Radio Club" and the latter are studying Foods.

DEATH OF OLD RESIDENT

Mrs. Ellen (Briggs) Paul, widow of Luther Paul, a resident of Newton Centre for fifty-four years, died Wednesday morning at her home at 1492 Centre street, Newton Centre. She was born in Scituate eighty-seven years ago and was descended through her mother from the Otis family, of which James Otis, the patriot, was the most prominent member. She received her early education in Scituate and in Bridgewater Normal School, where she was graduated in the same class with Edwin Seaver, former superintendent of schools in Boston. She taught school for nearly ten years in Newton during the middle of the last century, and in 1868 she married Luther Paul, a member of an old Newton family, who for many years conducted a farm in Newton and was engaged in the coal business. He died in 1909. Mrs. Paul is survived by three children, Dr. Luther G. Paul of Boston, Irving C. Paul of Newton Centre, and Harriett Otis Paul of Newton Centre; by three grandchildren; by a brother, Joseph Briggs of Somerville, and a sister, Mrs. Webster Hunt of Scituate.

Services will be held at her late residence at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Rev. Edward M. Noyes of the First Church officiating. A male quartet from Boston will sing, and the burial will be in the Newton Cemetery.

Daisy--the eye of the day

Originally spelled Daisie, "the cie of the daie." Thus our ancestors most poetically named our unmeaning Daisy. Flowers have meanings. All flowers. Including "wall flowers." And such is a good term for neglected linens. The beauty of linens is dimmed and lost by indifferent laundering.

A woman's linens are the children, as it were, of her own creation. And she asks us to be good to her linens. We understand. THE GARDEN CITY LAUNDRY is known for its gentle methods and painstaking care. Our treatment of linens shows that we do possess the proper interest. And our prices are so reasonable that customers marvel how we can give so much. Are you a customer? If not, why not try a sample parcel. You will see a difference. And a very great difference after a while, if we are continued as your linen launderers.

TO HIM WHO WOULD:

A man there was, who WOULD—But how? His mind was filled with the spirit of accomplishment—But what? Then came the flash of super-prompt. And the world was his! Sounds hi-falutin. But is it? Ask the man who DID.

Gardenized Collars are adjuncts to Success. They fit the temperament of intention. STARCHED COLLARS—our specialty. And Gardenized, which means comfort and permanent good appearance.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

Edited by Miss Grace M. Burt

Is the spirit of Christmas the same that it was years ago when some of us were young, or when Dickens wrote it? Or has there a change come over us all unwittingly? Is there today still something about it which distinguishes from all the other holidays, from Thanksgiving for example? We do not like to think of Christmas as having lost anything of its sacredness or that its sacred origin is being gradually forgotten. We do not like to feel that commercialism is getting the upper hand. Yet we cannot but realize that something has come in that we do not like. Look at the Christmas cards, for instance. What are the popular designs this year? Candles, well and good, a symbol of the "Light of the World." Firesides seem to be particularly abundant, firesides with empty chairs—symbols of loneliness, rather than cheer. Wreaths of holly, but one is inclined to think such were very scarce in Bethlehem. If you sought further did you find more than one or two that were in any way suggestive of the Christ child, or the symbol of the Star? Now and then one sees the Wise Men and their camels, but Madonnas are missing, and the Song of the Angels is hardly heard. Why is this? Is it because deep down in our consciousness we feel that song has been mocked, or are the public too busy seeking "some new thing," that the old will not sell? Let us hope that that is not the case, but somehow the "peace on earth," for which we have hoped and prayed has been so long delayed that there comes an ache in our hearts when we think back. "Peace on earth to men of good will." To men of good will. There has been our mistake. Peace cannot come about by fiat. It can only come to men of good will, and until good will is planted in the hearts of men there can be no peace. Let us set about to cultivate that good will, first in our own hearts, and then in those of our nation, and then among those of all nations, and then and only then, may we look for the "peace that passeth understanding."

N. E. Forestry Congress

December 27, 28, and 29. Three-day conference at the State House, Boston, under the auspices of the Massachusetts Forestry Association in celebration of its Twenty-Fifth Anniversary. An elaborate program has been arranged to consider the aspects of forestry, past, present, and future, in which leading authorities will take part, including Austin F. Hawes, State forester of Connecticut; W. G. Hastings, chief forester of Vermont; J. H. Foster, State forester of New Hampshire; J. B. Mowry, State forester of Rhode Island; Forrest H. Colby, former forest commissioner of Maine; W. A. L. Bazeley, commissioner of conservation of Massachusetts, professors from the Yale School of Forestry, from the New Hampshire College of the Rhode Island State College, from Cornell University, and many foresters for industrial concerns and for private Forestry Associations, as well as representatives from the United States Forest Service. Probably there will not be another such gathering of eminent experts along this line in Boston for many years to come. Detailed programs may be secured from the headquarters of the Massachusetts Forestry Association at 4 Joy street, Boston.

State Federation

So keen is the interest displayed in current literature these days that the Literature Department of the State Federation, under Mrs. George W. Webber, chairman, of East Bridge-water, has hit upon the clever plan of finding out "Who's Who in the Literature of Today." To this end Mrs. Webber has sent a clarion call to the clubs of the state to ascertain the opinion of club women on this subject. The questionnaire for this subject, answers are solicited before March first, in order that the results may be announced at the spring luncheon-conference of the Literature Department, includes these questions:

Who are the 10 best American novelists of today? Name five men; name five women.
Who are the 10 best American poets? Name five men, five women.
Who are the 10 best American writers of juvenile fiction? Name five men; five women.
Who are the 10 best American writers of non-fiction? Name five men; five women.
Name five best American dramatists.
Who are the 10 best English novelists of today? Name five men; name five women.
Name five best English poets.
Name five best English dramatists.
Make a list of 10 favorite novels of today, 10 best poems, 10 best plays, also non-fiction.

Local Announcements

There will be no meeting of the Social Science Club next Wednesday morning.

On Thursday morning, instead of Tuesday, the Auburndale Review Club will meet with Miss Florence N. Bridgman, 90 Hancock street. Phillips Brooks will be considered by Mrs. George W. Martin, and Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer, by Mrs. Charles E. Valentine. Christmas carols will be sung by some of the school children.

Local Happenings

Last Thursday afternoon the Newton Community Club had a program which brought out, on a very stormy day, an audience that nearly filled the Hunnewell Club hall. Elizabeth Pooler Rice, of the Leland Powers School of Expression, read in a very charming and artistic manner three one-act plays, "Rosaland," and "The Twelve-Pound Look," both by J. M. Barrie, and "Aesop-like" by Paul Brichouse. The club chorus sang a group of Christmas carols unaccompanied, a very difficult thing to do, and beautifully done, between the second and third plays. Mrs. Thomas Weston, Jr., rendered selections on the violin, with Mrs. George Owen at the piano, which were enthusiastically received.

At the business meeting the club voted to protest against the practice of spiking celery. The Home Economics committee announced that plans are being made for a special afternoon in the early spring, which will be devoted to "Color and Correctness of Dress," with living models.

Waban children of grammar school age were entertained by the Woman's Club of Newton Upper Falls on Monday evening, and those present found Mrs. Irving O. Palmer's lecture, "The Four-leaf Clover," very interesting. During the evening several Christmas songs were rendered on the Victrola. A social hour was spent after the lecture and refreshments were served. As the next regular meeting would fall on New Year's Day, it has been put over until January 8th.

On Wednesday morning at the meeting of the Newton Social Club, Mrs. H. H. Powers gave a beautiful and appreciative tribute to the memory of Mrs. John M. Woodbridge, the club's treasurer, who died suddenly last week. Rev. Alden H. Clark, the speaker of the morning, gave a very interesting address upon, "India, Finding Her Place in the Modern World." From out of his experience of years of residence there Mr. Clark presented three impressions which any intelligent traveler would receive in visiting the country:—its great noise and the complexity of its problems; movements leading up to the crisis; and its uniqueness and promise for the future.

At the business meeting of the Auburndale Woman's Club held in the new Auditorium on December 19, several interesting announcements were made. Since there is now an adequate meeting place, there is plenty of room for new members. The club having decided to take up some line of work for ex-service men, Mrs. J. W. Weinberg has been appointed chairman of a committee, which, after investigating conditions, will arrange for work to be carried on in co-operation with existing agencies. Appropriations made at last board meeting were read: $10 to the Girl Scouts, $25 for Health Seals, and $20 for supply milk to the Auburndale school children who are in need of it. A class in Parliamentary Law under the leadership of Mrs. Electa Sherman will begin on Tuesday, January 16, at 1.30. Application should be sent at once to Mrs. W. A. Stiles. On January 17, a Bridge for the benefit of the club's scholarship fund will be held at the Auburndale Club.

At the beginning of the program, Mrs. George N. Abbott, a member of the club, sang a charming group of contralto songs, accompanied by Mrs. L. D. MacNutt, after which Dr. Emil Carl Wilm of Boston University addressed the club on "The New Psychology." Dr. Wilm laid stress on the evolutionary psychology, which considers the mind of the individual in the light of his racial inheritance, as well as that of his own history. He defined the different levels of consciousness, explained the influence of the secondary or Freudian unconscious on the well being of the individual, and gave a brief interpretation of psycho-analysis as worked out by Freud and Jung. At the close of the lecture questions of the hour were asked and answered.

Newtonville Woman's Club Christmas Party
Tuesday evening found fifty children in Newton homes pulling open bundles, showing toys, and excitedly describing in Polish, Russian, Armenian and other languages the "Christmas Party" given them by the Newtonville Woman's Club.

In other homes were a score or more of tired women who had been working for days making preparations in detail that these needy little children might have some Christmas joy.

Was it worth while? Every woman who has lent her time and strength will tell you she has had a wonderful time, she would not have missed for the world.

With such a spirit in the hearts of the members of the several committees in charge, only such an afternoon as was enjoyed could be expected.

The children were greeted by the president, Mrs. E. L. Gardiner, who, in a most delightful and intimate way unfolded to them the entertainment for the afternoon, the most important feature of which was the long awaited Santa Claus.

His coming was listened for in silence. A tinkle of sleigh bells in the distance came rapidly nearer. His voice was heard shouting to his reindeer and with great stamping of snow from his boots, out he came upon the balcony, seeming to bring the north wind with him in his flowing white beard and red cap and coat bordered with frosty white fur. In a big, cheery voice he told the children he had been looking about for a chimney but since he couldn't find any, would get down to them some other way. So he appeared upon the floor, his pack on his back, and his two aids, a little boy and girl, beside him. No one seemed alarmed at such a strange looking person dropping down among them, maybe for the reason his voice must have suggested to many of them, a dearly loved teacher, Miss Marion Bassett.

He flung down his pack beside the towering Christmas tree, twinkling with many colored lights, gay balls, and streamers of silvery fringe, and found something in it for everybody—dolls for the girls, all sorts of toys dear to boys and a bundle of warm clothing for each.

The hot supper prepared and served by the charitable committee held their place to Santa's visit, and the children each took up their stories of the "Snowman," "The Christmas Kings," and "The Rosemary Plant."

Not the least pleasure given the children was by those who so generously tendered the use of their cars and drivers for the conveyance of their little guests and the girls of the Glee Club, to and from their homes.

The committee in charge of the afternoon were the Flower Committee, Mrs. A. W. Church, chairman, entrusted with the decoration of the tree; the Civic and Social Committee, Mrs. A. D. Rice, chairman, with the collecting and buying of clothing and toys, and the Charitable committee, Mrs. J. A. Stafford, chairman, with the preparing and serving of the supper.

SCHOOL NOTES

Edited by Dorothy Drake
Hyde School

A Christmas Operetta entitled "Jingle Bells" was given Thursday, Dec. 21, by the two seventh grades, assisted by one girl from Grade VIII and two primary children. The play was in charge of Miss Stopp and Mrs. Blakemore.

The characters were as follows:
Santa Claus Dorothy Sweat
Mrs. Claus Helen Reay
Santas Children
Jensen Richard Marcy
Ulric John McKenna
Johann Jerry McCarthy
Rocko Alan Rust
Hilda Eleanor Savage
Isa Ruth Woodworth
Inda Dorothy Sweeney
Gretchen Marjory Daw
Little children in first home visited Nancy Newell and Shellah Skelton

Carols were sung before the performance and between the acts by a chorus from the seventh and eighth grades.

The Hyde School orchestra, in charge of Miss Grossman, very creditably rendered a beautiful selection. For the last month the Christmas Spirit has prevailed in the seventh grades, under Miss Stopp and Miss Tabor. The pupils in their regular English classes have made very interesting and original Christmas magazines bound with attractive covers made in drawing time. Each pupil's magazine is for the Children's Hospital.

The primary grades held their Christmas entertainment in the hall Thursday morning. They met at 8.30 for devotional exercises with carol singing and then each grade contributed a number on the program, Miss Sampson and Miss Smith had charge of the exercises.

The children are gladly taking hold and contributing fruits, vegetables, and clothing, which go to make up Christmas baskets. Miss Kent, the school nurse is thus endeavoring to bring cheer and comfort into homes that would otherwise lack much Christmas joy.

The boys of the two sixth grades are much delighted that they are now having work in cloyed.

Friday afternoon in the Assembly Hall, the first four grades of the new Hyde were taken by Miss Hunt of the New England Dairy and Food Council on a happy journey to find "The Fountain of Health." The journey was illustrated by lantern slides which made the fairies such as "Captain Milk," "Freddie's Fish," "Eddie Eggs," and the many others, seem to the children their true friends.

The two fifth grades under Miss Green and Miss Ryder had a spelling match. Miss Ryder's class came off victorious.

The children in several of the rooms are getting the real Christmas spirit by having an opportunity to co-operate with Miss Kent, our school nurse, in preparing "Sunshine Baskets" to be given away Christmas week. The toys, books, and games that the children have brought in are in almost perfect condition, which shows a truly sacrificial spirit on the part of the children.

Mr. Frank Warren, whose son Kenneth is in Miss Abbott's sixth grade, has written a most interesting and instructive description of his trip to Mexico. This gives the class a more vivid and personal idea of the country they are studying.

The eighth grades have held a class meeting and voted to give to the school a memorial—which shall be chosen later. The gift will be paid for by assessment—each member giving what he chooses.

Bigelow School

On Thursday morning a Christmas entertainment was given in the hall. The program was as follows:

"Oh, Come All Ye Faithful"
"Gates and Doors" Walters Warren

Pantomime, "The Night Before Christmas"
"Santa Claus in Holland"

Radio Concert
F. Huntress, W. Swett, W. Sutcliffe

"Oh, Little Town of Bethlehem"
The Banners were presented Dec. 6, by Mr. Chase to Mr. Lane's eighth grade to Miss Nixon's seventh grade. The classes celebrated on Friday.

The Bigelow Beacon came out Wednesday. Paper boys and girls were stationed on the lower floor to sell single copies to the non-subscribers. This will be done after each issue.

The Debating Club chose the following new officers at the last meeting: President, Louise Maguire; Vice President, Elizabeth Swett; Secretary, Miriam Hayes; Treasurer, Richard Gardener.

Ralph Waldo Emerson School

Miss Marjorie Foster, representing the New England Dairy and Food Council, gave two talks to the pupils assembled in the Hall in two divisions on Dec. 5. Both talks were illustrated with lantern pictures and were on the general subject of "Food." The kindergarten had Christmas exercises in their rooms on Wednesday at 10 o'clock. The rooms were appropriately decorated and a beautiful tree was loaded with gifts made by the kindergartners. There was a generous response to invitations sent out to parents.

The pupils in grades 7 and 8 have been much interested this week in writing jingles for the prize contest of the N. E. Dairy and Food Council on the subject of "Milk." The contest is open to the pupils of Greater Boston.

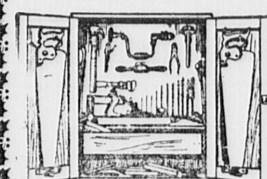

A Christmas entertainment was given to the entire school in the Hall on Thursday at 10 o'clock. The stage had an appropriate setting consisting of boughs, trees, bells, candles, and overhead in letters of gold was suspended the words, "Glory to God in the Highest." The program was one of high merit and consisted of songs, drills, individual and group numbers, and one Christmas play, Mrs. Frank Fanning was a guest and contributed to the program a true Christmas story.

All the class rooms at the Emerson School have had decorations appropriate to Christmas. The children have had much pleasure in sending remembrances one to another. These were distributed on Thursday after the exercises in the hall were finished.

Peirce School

The Christmas program for the Peirce School included appropriate singing by the school, the story of "Wenceslas" by Gertrude Rompley and a play called "Christmas Gifts from All Nations" given by the pupils of all grades of the school.

ST. JAMES' THEATRE—A noteworthy revival will be seen this week in "The Hypocrites" by Henry Arthur Jones in which the Boston Stock Company will be presented at the St. James. Singularly enough the last time this play was seen in Boston was at the St. James the week of December 9, 1912, when it was presented by the Gulesian Stock Company. The play revolves about the hypocrisy of an aristocratic family and a minister who believes in teaching Christianity straight from the shoulder. The son of the family has wronged a girl and his mother and father do all in their power to prevent the marriage. The chief role, that of the bond-fide minister, will be played by Mr. Gilbert; Mr. Richards will be the son, Mr. Kent and Miss Roach the hypocritical parents. The production is elaborate and will be staged under the direction of Mr. Addison Pitt.

Greatly interested.

"The milkmaids of Jamaica are one of the wonders of the island," reported a prominent Bradford (Pa.) business man, after a stay in Montego Bay, Jamaica, B. W. I. "They can carry large cans of milk from mountain ranges to markets on their heads, and never even move the cans as they sell and pour out the milk. They go upstairs and down, and are so adept that when they start up a flight they can begin to fill their pails, measuring the amount by the number of steps taken. I watched them many times with great interest and delight."

"Give the Weekly Its Just Dues"

It is a Public Utility And a BIG Advertising Medium

When you hear someone speak of the "country weekly," you never think of a newspaper printed in the country. Your impression is rather of a neat little publication issued from a small shop in a town or small city which is probably the center of a fairly large and prosperous community. Isn't that true?

Then why do we not call the newspaper a "community weekly?" That would be a broader title and one far more characteristic of its service. It does not limit its news to items from the country. Its service covers city, town or village and surrounding community. It is a public utility on a small scale.

Give the weekly its just dues, for it is always a power in the community. The large daily may carry more foreign news and more scandals of the day, but the truly wholesome news of the community will be found in the "community weekly."

Therefore, because of its accuracy and wholesomeness, and the thoroughness of its service to the community, the publication representing your district and town deserves the broader title of the "community weekly." And it also deserves every bit of the support you and your neighbors can give it.—J. P. Simpson, in the Lind (Wash.) Leader.

ally he has been "high man" for the company for three or four years past known. May it also be the headquarters for the most constructive social work of the community, with co-operation read into it. As an illustration of what concentrated effort may accomplish, he cited what the city of Cleveland has just done, when in one week $4,500,000 was subscribed for its community chest for the coming year.

After another vocal selection, the Rev. Charles N. Arbuckle, pastor of the First Baptist church, pronounced the benediction, and the audience joined in singing "America."

All present made a general survey of the building and found promise of everything desirable when finally all parts are completed.

One enters the building to a large foyer, which opens directly into the side of the main auditorium by a number of doors, making it possible to clear the hall very easily. At the right, which is the front of the hall, is a large commodious stage and the attendant dressing rooms. At the rear of the hall across the end is a reception room which may be wholly opened into the main room when additional seating space is desired. Below in the basement is a large banquet hall, with kitchen and serving room facilities and dressing rooms. Above the entrance hall is a room, which may be used for classes or for an exhibition hall. At present the main auditorium is all that is completed. Its decorations of light gray and white with hangings of mulberry velours, its simple dignity of proportion, make it altogether restful and satisfying, a hall of which the most fastidious might well be proud.

The first activity in the shape of a musical play took place yesterday afternoon and will be repeated this evening. The account of that is necessarily postponed until next week's issue.

ST. JAMES THEATRE.—"Johnny Get Your Gun," John Cort's piece, will have its Boston premiere at the St. James Theatre next week where it will be presented by the Boston Stock Company, beginning with a special matinee Christmas Day at 3.15. The play deals with the adventures of a moving picture cowboy, the prologue opening in a moving picture studio. Following an argument with the director and property man, Johnny starts on a rampage. His arrival at the fashionable home of a staid Long Island family, his Wild West methods, and his love affair with a serving maid of the household make it a breezy holiday offering.

Mr. Gilbert will be "Johnny" and will be supported by the full membership of the Boston Stock Company and an augmented cast of 23 people.

NEWTON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

To hold annual meeting to hear reports and discuss future plans Systematic preparations are being effected by the officers and directors of the Newton Chamber of Commerce for a busy year during 1923, to begin promptly on the first of the year and to continue throughout the twelve months, with certain definite objectives and activities to be taken up and developed at intervals throughout the year. While the nine months that have passed since the present board assumed their duties on April 1, have necessarily been devoted largely to building the organization and securing a representative membership, the chamber has found time to already accomplish several things of a distinct advantage to the city. Other activities have been started and are well under way, it being planned to carry those through to a successful conclusion during the coming year.

With a membership that now exceeds eleven hundred, it is felt that the chamber is ready to function and that it can develop an influence which, if properly directed and applied, can assist in the solution of various so-called local problems and accomplish a great deal that will be of material benefit to the city and its citizens. Several committees have recently been appointed, to all of which have been assigned important tasks and all of which are considered to be made up of men well fitted to do the work for which they have been chosen. Other important committees have been authorized and are to be appointed in the immediate future. The organization of the respective committees of the several divisions of membership—civic, mercantile, industrial, and building and development—have been organized with the exception of the civic division, and it is expected that the organization of this committee, which will be virtually the board of directors of that division, will be completed by the beginning of the year. Those things which the chamber has already accomplished, the things which it is working upon at the present time, plans for the coming year, will be indicated in a report to be issued to members of the chamber early in the year.

The annual meeting of the chamber is to be held at the Newton Club, Newtonville, on Tuesday evening, January 16. The usual dinner which has preceded the monthly meetings of the chamber in the past will be omitted on this occasion and the meeting will open at 8 o'clock. Every effort will be put forth to make the program one of special interest, in addition to the business session. Reports will be presented by various officers and committees. (Continued on Page 2)

PI ETA SHOW

It will be of interest to those persons who have been fortunate enough to see the productions of the Pi Eta Society, of Harvard in past years to know that on Saturday evening, January 6, at Players' Hall, West Newton, there will be a performance of the 55th annual show of the club. There will be dancing until midnight after the show. "First Down Egypt" has been pronounced by the most hardened critics, the graduates, for whom a special performance was given on December 29th, to be one of the most clever and original pieces of work that Pi Eta has put out for years.

The book is written by Richard Dodge Gervoid '24 of Cambridge; the music is the work of L. A. Harlow '23, A. A. Pisk, Jr. '22, and M. H. Dill '23; lyrics have been contributed by those members of the club: the author, M. Dole '24, K. Gary '24, W. H. Harkness, Jr. '24, L. A. Harlow '23, W. H. Kenyon, Jr. '21, C. H. Morgan '22, '24, and R. Wait '23.

Of special interest to Newton people is the fact that two Newton boys are in the pony ballet. L. J. Young '23, and A. R. Weed, Jr. '25, are made up as charming girls and their dancing is especially fine. Both of them are graduates of Newton High School. P. B. Ferguson '23, for a number of years a resident of Arlington street, Newton, is in charge of the publicity work.

The play centres around the adventures of Andrew Carlton '16, and Mary Stevens Blair, a Fenway divorcee. They find out what we have often wondered, what is at the bottom of the Charles River. Upon falling in they are brought before the court of King Mud, the ruler of the depths of the river. He promises to release them from a watery death on one condition, that they act out one of Shakespeare's tragedies so that it will amuse him and turn out happily. The two lovers agree to take this chance to save their lives and that upon the play of Antony and Cleopatra.

For two acts we see Shakespeare and Egyptian life brought up to date. Whether or not Antony and Cleopatra could have used radios, played football, or many other little things we do not stop to question. It is enough to say that the atmosphere produced by the play is one which is far more interesting than a few hieroglyphics and mummies. One look at the heroine, Charles Morgan, will convince any one that she is no dried up mummy. She is long and very vamps with eyes and a voice which could entrance any Antony. And he, Antony—J. A. West—with his purple Roman toga is certainly a fit object for Cleo's affection.

The second act is built around the football game between Antony and Caesar. The first scene depicts the crowd standing around the telegraphic scoreboard waiting for the results of the game. Even the little red-sweatered announcer, so dear to the hearts of the fans, is present. (Continued on Page 2)

NEW POST COMMANDER

Levi Libby of Newton Centre was elected Commander of Newton Post, American Legion for 1923, at the annual meeting held last week Thursday evening, at Post Headquarters, West Newton, which was attended by a large gathering. Mr. Libby has been a hard and consistent worker in all matters relating to Legion activities since the inception of the Post and he well deserves the honor conferred upon him. The only contest for election was the office of vice-commander and the contestants, Thomas Frane and John Goldrick—friends of long standing—both hail from Auburndale. Mr. Frane was victorious by a vote of 44 to 29 and upon motion of Comrade Goldrick the vote was made unanimous. Other officers elected were: Chaplain: Rev. Fr. William J. Farrell, Auburndale; Historian: Rev. Paul S. Phelan, West Newton; Village Executive Committee: Russell I. Wiles, Newton; Thomas F. Hickey, Nonantum; Harold D. Ames, Newtonville; John P. O'Brien, West Newton; Ellsworth W. Poole, Auburndale; Oswald J. McCourt, Newton Lower Falls; J. Pollock, Newton Upper Falls; Clement L. Lockwood, Waban; William P. Watson, Newton Highlands; Clarence M. Hockbridge, Thompsonville; Joseph J. Cavanaugh, Newton Centre; Philip R. Morse, Chestnut Hill; Executive Committee: at large: Heywood S. French, Newtonville; Frank R. Gaw, West Newton and Francis J. Cooke, Auburndale. William Moore was also a candidate for the Executive Committee at large from West Newton but he withdrew in favor of Frank Gaw.

A report from the hospitalization committee was read by Chairman Heywood S. French pointing out that every Newton ex-serviceman in a hospital would be remembered at Christmas. This remembrance to include a letter of good-will, a receipt for paid up dues for 1923, a book, a box of candy and a carton of cigarettes.

The retiring commander, Major Henry D. Cormers, was elected finance officer at a meeting of the executive committee, and John Foran was chosen assistant finance officer. William Watson of Newton Post, American Legion, was appointed by State Commander William H. Doyle to the National Committee of Hospitalization. He also appointed Adjutant Edward Duncan to the Committee on Hospitalization and Rehabilitation.

CHRISTMAS CELEBRATION

Newton celebrated Christmas this year as it has never been observed before.

Newton Corner had a special community Christmas tree on Farlow park, the result of the splendid efforts of a community committee representing the various Sunday Schools, the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., and the Boy and Girl Scouts, under the direction of Dr. A. E. Holt as chairman.

The tree was lighted on Friday and Saturday nights as well as on Christmas eve, and the chimes of Grace Church were also played on Saturday and Sunday evenings. The churches held special services on Sunday afternoon, and the children marched to the park after the service bearing lighted candles.

The Channing Church held a most beautiful and impressive candle light service. The church being illuminated wholly by candle light the candles being massed at the bottom of the large stained windows and arranged in candelabras among the Christmas trees in the chancel. The Sunday School children wore little red capes and marched into church bearing unlighted red candles. After a brief service of song with a Christmas thought from the minister, Rev. Chester A. Drummond, a large Christmas candle was lighted in the chancel, from which the candles of the children were lighted as they marched out of the church.

The exercises around the tree took place at six o'clock and consisted of Christmas carols under the leadership of Mr. Charles N. Sladen, choir-master of Grace Church. Afterwards groups of singers marched about the town and sang at the homes of the sick and helpless.

The Highland Glee Club went about the city early Christmas morning, singing at various places including the Pomroy Home and the Newton Hospital. The club has done this splendid work for some years and deserves the hearty commendation of all our citizens.

At Newton Highlands the Improvement Association had a Christmas tree in front of the Congregational Church and there was carol singing, instrumental music and brief remarks by the ministers of the various churches following a Christmas pageant held in the Congregational Church, at five o'clock.

ZONING ORDINANCE ADOPTED

Aldermen in midnight session finally agree on compromise measure

The board of aldermen of 1922 retained its undesirable reputation for long recess committee meetings and midnight sessions at its last business meeting of the year on Wednesday night.

The notable feature of the evening, however, was not the recess nor the midnight hour, but the fact that it passed a Zoning ordinance by an almost unanimous vote, after a consideration of the subject lasting for two years and the previous enactment of two zoning ordinances which met with objections from Mayor Childs. It is understood that Mayor Childs will approve the ordinance in its present form which allows the erection of two-family houses in any part of Newton.

As required by statute, a public hearing was held on the proposed ordinance and only two persons spoke on the general principle of zoning, Mr. Curtis Abbott and Mr. George Marcy. Mr. Abbott said that Newton was young and the most "hopeful" city outside of Boston. We had not acres but miles of unoccupied land.

We should not be in any hurry to pass a zoning law but should keep the city properly policed. To go further would interfere with personal rights. He believed it was not fair to prevent the sale of real estate by those who wished to do so. Mr. Marcy said that the ordinance infringed on personal rights. While the general principle of zoning was discussed by few, there were many present who had objections to the district lines as recommended by the Zoning Committee. Mr. A. C. Gould attorney for the Newton Sand and Gravel Co., objected to having a portion of their land placed in a general residential district. He said his company had invested $75,000 since the board had revised the line last summer and asked that all of their property be placed in the manufacturing district. There was strong opposition to this request from the property owners in that district who were unsparing in their criticism of the actions of the company in digging great holes in the ground and in its use of heavy trucks. Peace Convention in 1861.
The peace convention is the name given to a convention held in Washington on the invitation of Virginia in February, 1861, just before the outbreak of the Civil war, for the purpose of arranging a peaceful settlement of the difficulties between the North and South. Fourteen free states and seven slave states were represented, and each state was allowed only a single vote. Ex-President Tyler presided over the convention. A committee upon which each of the 21 states was represented submitted a report recommending the adoption of certain specified amendments to the federal Constitution. The report was adopted by the convention. The amendments urged generally favored the South but were not wholly satisfactory to either section and were not favorably received by either house of congress.

The Cut Glass Age.
There was a rough Stone age and a smooth Stone age and a Bronze age, and many years afterwards, a Cut Glass age. In the Cut Glass age, when young ladies had persuaded young men with long, curly mustaches to marry them, they sat down several months afterward and wrote thank you notes for all sorts of cut glass presents—punch bowls, finger bowls, vases, etc. . . . and then the struggle for existence began. The bonbon dish lost its little handle, and became a pin tray upstairs; a promising end cut knocked the little bowl off the sideboard, and the hired girl chipped the middle-sized one with the sugar dish; then the wineglasses succumbed to leg fractures, and even the dinner glasses disappeared one by one like the ten little niggers, the last one ending up, scarred and maimed, as a toothbrush holder among other shabby gentileens on the bathroom shelf. —From "Flappers and Philosophers," by F. Scott Fitzgerald.

mittees and officers will be elected for the ensuing year. Notices of the meeting will be mailed all members. In ample season and it is hoped and expected that the meeting will be one of the most successful and most largely attended yet held by the Chamber.

President Frank L. Richardson has appointed the following nominating committee to present a list of nominations to be voted upon at the annual meeting: James R. Chandler of Waban, chairman; Alfred E. Alvord of Newton Centre, Joseph A. Bryant of Newtonville, Franklin S. Hoyt of West Newton, and Wickliffe J. Spaulding of Auburndale.

Vice President George J. Martin, chairman of the Industrial Division of the Chamber, has recently appointed the following committee to plan the work and have charge of the activities of that division: Frank J. Hale of the Saco Lowell Shops, Newton Upper Falls; Samuel Hyslop of the Saxony Worsted Mills, Nonantum; M. Frank Lucas, West Newton; and Thomas J. Sullivan of the R. T. Sullivan Company, Newton Lower Falls, with Mr. Martin as chairman.

At the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Chamber on December 4, the advantages of an annual city directory were discussed and the secretary instructed to take up with the Sampson & Mordock Company of Boston, publishers of the Newton Directory, which has previously been issued every two years, the question of securing an annual issue, beginning with 1923. The matter was given careful consideration by the publishers and, after being assured of reasonable co-operation on the part of the Chamber, announcement was made that beginning with the next issue, the Newton City Directory would be published once each year, as is the custom in nearly all of the larger and more important New England cities.

The inspection staff of the New England Insurance Exchange has completed its re-inspection of conditions in Newton with the exception of the hydrant tests, which cannot be made until there is a period of several days of favorable weather. Officials of the Exchange have promised that these tests will be made as soon as possible and that a report of the entire re-inspection will be made promptly to Mayor Childs. This report is expected to indicate the few definite things that the City must do to be promoted to the Class A group of Massachusetts cities, which includes Brookline, Worcester, Holyoke, Springfield, and New Bedford, the latter having just been advanced to that group through the efforts of the New Bedford Chamber of Commerce. When the things that Newton must do are known, the Newton Chamber will endeavor to bring these about, one by one, until the higher classification is assured. This will then result in a substantial reduction in insurance rates, to the lower level now enjoyed by Brookline and the other Class A communities.

USED FOR MARKING SLAVES

Almost Universal Custom of Wearing Earrings Had Origin That Was Exceedingly Prosaic.

The custom of wearing earrings in its primitive significance originated in marking the slave. Later it was adopted as a fashionable distinction.

From the child, hanging cherries on the ears, to the suspension of costly gems from them, earrings have indicated the love of adornment from centuries before the Christian era.

Today the dainty trinkets are made to adfix to the lobe of the ear by screws which offer no irritating pain in the wearing—a decided improvement upon the disgusting process of piercing holes in the daintiest part of a well-shaped ear.

Greek and Roman ladies gave much attention to beautiful designs, proof of which may be seen in museums, which preserve the ancient specimens jealously. English ladies wore them at the time of the Norman conquest.

There is an engraving extant of Elizabeth, queen of Bohemia, with an oval pearl in the left ear, and carefully affixed to a narrow ribbon guard. Shakespeare records their use by men. He is himself represented in a portrait with a thin gold ring in his ear. Van Dyck's portrait of Charles the First depicts the monarch with a sumptuous pearl, which formed the melancholy bequest of his granddaughter, the princess of Orange, after his execution.

Today thin gold wires may be seen in the ears of fishermen in some localities. Sailors were great observers of the custom, though one sees fewer now than formerly. Peasantry of Spain, Italy and Sicily, as well as gypsies of both sexes, are much attached to the use of earrings.

Most elaborate jewels occupied the attention of the old masters, who obviously appreciated their decorative adjunct to feminine features. Sometimes the "eardrops" measured three inches in length.

The jeweler's art has given of its choicest in designs for ear adornment. Josiah Wedgwood turned his genius to the manufacture of cameo medallions in Jasper ware for earrings.

In the shops one sees today possibly a greater regard for the intrinsic beauty of precious stones; they are almost invisibly mounted, their alluring color and sparkle emphasize the delicate flesh tints of their wearers, and in the lesser values of the jeweler's craft ivory, jade, amber, tortoiseshell, coral, jet, all lend their aid very agreeably to the embellishment of the modern woman's ears, observes the Montreal Herald.

Camel a Champ.

The Saratov organization of the American relief administration claims to have discovered the champion Russian relief worker—a camel. This animal makes regular trips of 47 miles through the snow to haul sleigh loads of food, 1,500 pounds to the load, to the starving people of its native village.

While the average person is inclined to associate camels with hot desert plains, they will probably always be suggestive to Russian relief workers of frozen, famished regions. The camels have been found to possess an endurance if not a speed far beyond that of horses under the appalling conditions of the Volga valley. No railroads being available in the outlying districts of the valley, animals furnish the only transportation during the winter months.

As the animals, too, have been short of food, the A. R. A. is receiving several thousand tons of fodder purchased out of the $10,000,000 appropriation of the soviet government, and doubtless the Saratov organization will see to it that the famous camel gets a goodly share.

Finding New Uses for Wood.

New uses for wood continually are being found, uses which may be unfamiliar to many. Sawdust can be converted into a sugary food for cattle, forming at least one-fourth of the total food requirements without apparent detriment to dairy cows or to their product. Both wood and grain alcohol can be made of sawdust, as can be made, wholly or in part, smokeless powder, linoleum, sausage casing, chloroform, celluloid, ink and artificial silk. From wood waste we can make acetylene, varnish, paint and soap.

Soured Later in Life.

"I understand you've invested in a number of money-making schemes that didn't turn out well."

"Yes," said Mr. Grumpson. "And I hope my friends will take that into consideration when they criticize my disposition. I've been told I was an amiable baby and I know I was a brisk, light-hearted lad."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Her Viewpoint.

"If I were rich you'd accept me fast enough."

"Thank you, Ferdie, that's the most flattering thing you've said to me yet—and so unusual."

"What do you mean?"

"You and a lot of others have paid compliments to my beauty, but that is the first time one of you boys has given me credit for common sense."

To Be Exact.

Lawyer—Remember, sir, that you are under oath.

GOOD FOR "SWELLED HEAD"

Man Who Imagines He Is Thoroughly Well Known Should "Listen In" Occasionally.

There is a gorgeous lesson in humility to be obtained at almost every dinner party for the man who imagines that he has jumped through the hoop into the public eye. He may have climbed half way up Parnassus in his work as a scientist, an explorer, a politician, a soldier, an architect, a painter, a novelist or a playwright, or even have arrived at the tip-top and be sitting there dangling his feet. It does not matter. There are always plenty of people going about who daily discover to him the fact that his name means nothing—or something else.

"Swinnerton?" I heard once from one of those women who always carries a dog and maintains a husband to give it exercise. "Isn't he the man who invented the Yale lock, or is it a town in Iowa?" and another time, at a bridge table on board a liner, a girl caught up the name of Shackleton. "I always use his raquets," she said with triumph. And the year before last at Bar Harbor I heard Conrad praised for having devised that very nice soap that floats in the bath. How good for the soul! exclaims Cosmo Hamilton, writing in the Spur.

I remember also a first-hand lesson in the utter aloofness of people from the things that seem to matter. At a dinner party again. The hostess, one of the dowagers of New York, a charming and enterprising old lady whose house has not been altered since the days of crinolines, and who heatedly denied that the people in "The Age of Innocence" had been drawn from life. She had been taken the evening before to see a play of mine that was running and, by a strange accident, running well, at a Broadway theater. She told me all about it. She said, "I had such a pleasant evening. You really must make an effort to see that play. I cannot remember the name of it or at which theater it was. I cannot remember the names of any of the actors. I never can. And of course, I haven't the remotest idea who wrote it—I never read the program. But I strongly recommend it to you. It's so amusing." I identified it as mine presently when, going into further details, the dowager mentioned how particularly pleased she had been with a stuffed wildcat that stood on the mantelpiece in the last act. It is not an easy thing to suffer from swelled head these days. A pity, because it adds to the dwindling sources of merriment that have survived the great war.

Trade That Touches All.

We always look to George E. Roberts of the National City bank to put things clearly. He told the Export Managers' club at their recent meeting in New York what had happened to the world and gave a pat and pertinent illustration, says the Nation's Business.

Russia, he said, was one of the great ten-drinking countries of the world. India was one of the great tea producers. The war stopped Russia from her tea drinking and India couldn't sell her tea. India is a great cotton wearing country, but if she couldn't sell her tea she couldn't buy cotton, so the mills of Manchester were shut down. If England's mills were not running our Southern farmers could not sell their cotton and they in turn shut down on buying.

What is true of tea and cotton is true in a greater or less degree of the hundreds and thousands of things that make up our daily life. The Australian market for shoes affects the mill towns of New England and the fashion in stockings in Argentina is reflected in the pay roll of a Philadelphia worker.

Metal Largely Replacing Wood.

Our ancestors of one or two hundred years ago in America lived in an age of wood. No metal chairs, no metal filling cases, no brass beds were to be found in home or office. Wooden wagons prevailed and wood in farm machinery, faced or reinforced, to be sure, with metal, but chiefly of wood. Yarn was spun with wooden spinning wheels and looms chiefly of wood wove the yarn.

Substitutes for wood in the past half century, however, have revolutionized construction of buildings, bridges and sidewalks. Altogether, substitutes for wood have reduced our wood consumption about one-third. In most instances this is all very well, marking progress in civilization.

Seems Reasonable.

Mrs. Ponderosa—Your reducing treatment has been highly recommended, but your terms are frightfully steep!

Dr. Slimmer—That's an important part of the treatment. After paying my fee in advance you won't have enough money left to buy much rich, fattening food.

Proves It.

Patience—I don't think Percy is at all observing.

Patience—You don't?

Patience—No, I don't.

Patience—Well, I do. The other day he told me you said twice as much paint on one cheek as on the other.—Yonkers Statesman.

Natural Vanity.

"Do you think posterity will put up statues to your memory?"

"I hope," replied Senator Sorghum, "that nobody will encourage such an idea. After a public man has gotten through with the caricaturists the modern sculptors ought to be made to let him alone."

of football fans of the stadium is there. Suddenly we hear that the game has been forfeited because Cleopatra, who has been playing left end for Antony, has had a mishap with her clothing and has raced off the field. Later Caesar agrees to play a return game, on the grounds that a game won by "applied domestic science" should really not count, and in this game, with Cleopatra left at home, Antony wins by a play which a soothsayer has reminded him of. Of course the two are reconciled at the end, and we can agree with King Mid that they have earned their release. Throughout the whole play the situations are very clever, and the lines are of the sort that would lead many people to study Egyptian.

The chorus of dancers is well trained, and the way in which the flutter large feet of the chorus girls can flit around in some of the intricate steps is really remarkable. Especially fine is the "Dance of the Nile." All of the music is very tuneful, and the numbers which are sure to make a special hit are "Looking Backwards," "I forgot to kiss you good-bye," "The Wireless Blues," and "When Nero played the fiddle." Donald M. Oenslager, who has done some very fine work for the Dramatic Club and the 47 Workshop, has made some striking settings for the Egyptian scenes.

The show is coached by Mr. George V. C. ("Dave") Lord who has handled Pi Eta shows in a very successful manner for many years.

Mr. J. T. Burns, Jr., said that this region would develop into $700,000 valuation within the next few years if not retarded. Similar remarks were made by Messrs. Samuel Thurber, H. W. Harkrader, Rollins, Kempton, C. C. Mullen and others. Mr. H. B. Knowles made objections to the district lines at Commonwealth avenue near Lake street. Mr. Burns also called attention to a lot in the rear of Walnut and Austin streets which he claimed was only available for business purposes and had been placed in the residential zone.

There were hearings on Edison poles on Chester street and on a double track location for the Elevated on Commonwealth avenue at Lake street at which no one appeared.

At the hearing on a 4-car garage requested by Joseph Baraldi objections were made by letter and one man said that he had agreed to a one-garage but objected to a four-car garage.

Petitions of John T. Burns for an auctioneer's license of Wm. F. Morrison for a victualer license at 349 Watertown street of P. H. Igo to sell gasoline on Lagrange street, of Charles E. Baxter for a victualer license at 295 Auburn street and of E. H. Hawkins, 279 Franklin street, and F. K. Clark, Austin street for private garages were granted.

Leave to withdraw was granted on petitions of G. Cavallo for pool tables on Oak street, of C. DeVenecis for a gasoline permit on California street and of F. J. Vaughn for a garage on Lexington street. No change was made in the betterment assessment levied upon Dr. Michael Chirug for improvement of Kenwood avenue.

The committee reported that no action was necessary on erection of billboards at 376 Watertown street.

A few appropriations were authorized and Alderman White stated when asked that there would be about $176 left in the Excess and Deficiency account at the end of the year.

Before the recess Alderman Nichols threw a monkey wrench into the proceedings on zoning by submitting the following resolution:

Resolved, that in the opinion of the board of aldermen the best interests of the city require the enactment of a zoning ordinance which establishes single residence districts in Newton such as have been provided in suburban towns of similar character.

WENT ALL UNSUNG

Tragedies in the Wake of Undelivered Speeches.

Men Have Bowled to Fate, but Will Women, Pedestal of "Rights," Survive Disappointment?

Of all the tragedies of masculine experience ever since the Stone age none has been more poignant than that of the undelivered speech. And now one wonders whether the women, the dear souls, will prove more or less sensitive to the blighting sorrow of preparing a graceful speech for some important occasion and then being cheated by fate of the opportunity of delivering it.

And when it's a clever speech, a truly brilliant speech, with a carefully prepared climax seasoned with flashes of wit and droll anecdotes that would make 'em roar—that a tragedy is there, Horror!

How different the history of the village, of the county, of the world might be if all the speeches that were ever prepared had been actually delivered according to schedule! But some pesky accident happens. The hour grows late. Earlier speakers hog more than their share of the time.

Careless people in the audience get sleepy and go home. The chairman has to catch a train. Somebody has to move a vote of thanks and you—Alas! poor you, after hours of anguishing suspense, you with that magnificent speech in your pocket, you who have so fulsomely clapped for the other tiresome speakers—you, the most promising orator in the place, are left biting your nails "with all your music in you." It's maddening.

That blighted sorrow fell upon a nice woman in Washington the other day, remarks the New York Sun. She was the head of a distinguished female delegation that called at former President Woodrow Wilson's house to present their respects to him in a formal way. She had prepared a speech, perhaps a most able and moving one. But the delegation was accorded no more than a fleeting and dramatic glimpse of the invalid statesman.

It's an old story for the hardened male sex, but a new one for the women—a silver-tongued orator "left with the mouth open," as the Spanish say. And it sets the imagination wandering into the highways and byways of history in search of the speeches that might have been delivered if things had gone a little differently.

For instance, it is probable that among the papers of the former kaiser is a manuscript of the speech that he was going to deliver at that Christmas dinner in Paris.

And then there's the speech that General Semenov was just about to deliver when he arrived in New York and mistook Sheriff Nagle and a bunch of deputies for the mayor and aldermen. He thought they had come to the station to present him with the freedom of the city, and he was just opening his mouth to make a properly rhetorical response when somebody explained to him in Russian that the paper the sheriff was showing him was a warrant for his arrest.

Frederick MacMonnies may have prepared a speech to deliver to a delegation of women who should dare to beard him on the subject of the manners of the stalwart young man who symbolizes Civic Virtue in the sculptor's statue of that name. But as feminine agitation over the statue is slumbering down the sculptor's speech to his amateur critics may be fated to pass into the limbo of speeches that never got themselves spoken.

A New Way to Pay Debts.

Conjuring tricks with bank notes are being attempted by the Greek government, says the Montreal Family Herald. Finding itself faced with a deficit on its budget of $140,000,000 and with its military expenditure excluded from this reckoning the government brought in a bill for a forced loan of $300,000,000. The loan will bear interest at 7 per cent and by an ingenious device will be realized immediately and automatically. All the notes of the national bank now in circulation will be cut into halves, one of which will remain in circulation and will represent half the value of the whole note, while the other half will be converted into a bond of the loan and will bear interest at 7 per cent. The national bank will be obliged to lend the state immediately half the amount obtained from the division of the notes. The conditions of the loan do not affect foreign securities.

Canadian Immigration.

The extent to which Canadian immigration has been encouraged is revealed in the annual report of the Canadian Pacific railway, which has just been presented to the shareholders by E. W. Beatty, K. C., president. Since the company's land-selling policy was instituted, some 54,000 settlers have been placed on the company's lands alone, and the cost of the company's activities in land selling, irrigation and colonization has been extremely large, amounting in the aggregate to approximately $68,000,000, an amount in excess of the total expenditure of the Dominion government for immigration during the same period.

A New Dimple.

David is four and a very fine lad. He has many dimples. He was playing the other day when a friend said: "David, where did you get your dimples?"

With a quickness that was startling, he replied: "I touched a toad."

EVER THINK OF IT?

Invention Has Been Master-Key to Civilization.

Foundation Stone of the Mental, Moral and Physical Well-Being of All Mankind.

Shall we be very far wrong if we place the inventor at the top of the list of men and things that have made the civilization of today what it is? Personally, we do not for one moment hesitate to do so. And this does not mean that we fail to recognize how much humanity owes to science, medicine, philosophy, finance, morals and religion, which, by utilizing the works of the inventor, have made them conduce as much to the mental and moral as to the physical well-being of mankind.

Let your thought travel back to prehistoric times, to the day when man, possessing only the faintest glimmerings of intellect, had little more than hand and foot and teeth with which to compete with the beasts of the forest, most of which had more of speed and strength and cunning than he. What was it that started him on his upward climb to superiority but the use of his dawning intellect in the invention of weapons with which to turn this unequal conflict in his favor? One of the earliest great inventions, if not the very first, took place when some one cut a strip of tough skin, strung it tautly between the ends of an elastic stick and fashioned the first sharp-pointed arrow as a missile. Thereby did invention overcome brute strength; and thenceforth, by similar applications of reasoned thought to the substance and properties of things, has man progressed in building up the complex and altogether marvelous civilization of our day.

If the importance of a man is to be judged by the extent and duration of his achievements, it cannot be denied that, in the presence of our old friend the inventor, all the kings, princes, emperors, statesmen and soldiers of history sink into relative insignificance.

Not to Alexander, or Caesar, or Charlemagne—not to Aristotle, Cicero, Dante, or even the great Shakespeare—not to a Talleyrand, a William Pitt, a Cavour, a Gladstone, a Jefferson, or a Webster—not to the long line of brilliant men who have graced the law and the church—not to these do we owe the locomotive, the steamship, the automobile, and the fast-flying ships of the air; agencies which have unlocked the immobility of man and made fluent the age-long solidity of the world. Not to these men, who are writ so large on the page of history, do we owe the printing press, the telephone, the telegraph, the wireless, and all those means by which no sooner do the thoughts of men germinate than they are flashed around the world—not to these men, but to real, honest-to-goodness, imaginative, painstaking inventors, such as Gutenberg, Faraday, Newcomen, Watt, Symonds, Fulton, Stephenson, Morse, Marconi, Pasteur, Edison, Langley, Wright, and a thousand others, who have always stood, and ever will stand, in the very van of the advancing hosts of civilization.—Scientific American.

Proves Pasteur's Theory.

To prove his germ theory, Pasteur, when he was twenty-six years of age, 74 years ago, sterilized veal broth in glass tubes and then sealed the tubes. From time to time some of the tubes were opened, and it appeared that by exposure contamination occurred and the broth decomposed. But some of the bottles remained unopened and the broth in these, examined on his one hundredth birthday, proved as clear and perfect as when originally sealed in 1848.

It is asserted by the first American pupil of Pasteur, now in Philadelphia, to whom the great scientist gave one of the sealed tubes, that the experiment demonstrates the truth of the entire theory, that decomposition and disease are due to the action of micro-organisms or "germs," that destroying the germs will stop the disease, and that germs do not occur of their own accord out of a substance or tissue, but invade it from without, remarks the Topeka Capital.

Giving Ocular Proof.

Several of us had taken a ferry trip from Detroit to Canada and had bought several souvenirs. I had also invested in a good amount of lace. Hoping to evade the customs officer I rolled the lace on a card and stuck it in the top of my stocking. Alas! I didn't get it down far enough.

I had gone considerable distance past the customs booth when the card fell out on the walk beside me. Imagine my sensation. I looked back to see a customs officer standing with his foot on an end of my lace and the whole length of my treasured stuff strung out along the walk between us. "Be sure your goods don't unravel next time, miss," he called out.—Exchange.

Airplanes to Fight Fire.

Paris, stirred by a 40,000,000-franc fire that consumed a big department store, is considering the equipment of airplanes with fire extinguishing bombs. These would be fitted with a gas that chokes out the flames without being injurious to the neighboring population. Aviators proposing the plan claim one airplane could carry enough bombs to extinguish a large fire well under way. Experiments are to be conducted in the suburbs to determine the feasibility of the scheme.—Scientific American.

Other popular Barrett products include metal protective paints, roofing cements, shingle stain oil, fly spray and a wood preservative.

"SUCCESS is just another name for service."

And the success of The Barrett Company—its many years of unchallenged leadership in the roofing field—is the result of the economical service that users have always received from Barrett products.

This characteristic of economical service is well exemplified in Barrett Multi-Shingles.

On the roof, Multi-Shingles look exactly like individual shingles, but as they come four shingles to a strip they cost far less to lay. Their rich-colored mineral surface, in fadeless dark red or green, needs no painting, adds distinction to even the finest home and, at the same time affords a high degree of fire protection.

With all these advantages, Barrett Multi-Shingles are wonderfully durable and extremely moderate in cost.

Seven members of the board of aldermen and one member of the school committee retire from our city government with the close of the year. Mrs. Harriet Peabody has given six years of service on the school board, serving for one year as its chairman. Mrs. Peabody has served the city with ability, discretion and tact and has conclusively shown that sex is not a factor in efficient service.

Of the seven aldermen who retire two have shown exceptional ability and have left their mark on city affairs. Alderman Philip Nichols was especially well qualified for the work through many years experience in the office of the corporation counsel of Boston. He is an expert in matters of taxation and of legislation, and was rendering the city splendid service in the Finance committee until the political turnover of last year. Alderman Phipps will be known to posterity as the father of Zoning and his thorough and faithful work in drafting that complicated ordinance deserves the grateful appreciation of our people. Alderman Whidden has given six years of excellent service where his knowledge of building construction has been of inestimable value to the city. Aldermen Carter, Melcher, Salt-onstall and Jewell have been faithful and conscientious in their work, but have not had the opportunity which a chairmanship of a committee has given to the others.

It is the work of men and women like these that has given Newton its splendid reputation as one of the best governed cities in the Commonwealth.

We congratulate the real estate owners of Newton generally and the resident real estate owners in particular on the fact that Newton has, after months of effort, succeeded in passing a Zoning ordinance, under which our residence districts will have a reasonable measure of protection from the encroachment of speculative builders. While we would have preferred the establishment of a single family district, as has been favored by a majority of the board of aldermen, but opposed by the Mayor and a few of his adherents in the board of aldermen, we do not believe the combination of the two family house and the single residence district will be a very serious matter. The principal object of the zoning ordinance was to restrict the expansion of the one story blocks of stores and the building of public garages in our residence districts, and that has been attained in the present ordinance.

Mr. Waldron H. Rand, Jr., has been elected president of the Massachusetts Trust Company Association. Mr. Rand is a vice president of the Commonwealth Trust Co. of Boston.

We wonder if our tax payers fully realize the expensive program of school house construction which our school committee and city government are now undertaking. To a $300,000 grammar school at Waban in 1919, we added $350,000 for a new Junior High School in 1921, $250,000 more last summer for a new Davis School in West Newton and the bids now received indicate another $300,000 for a new Underwood School at Newton. To this total of $1,200,000 it is now proposed to take land between West Newton and Auburndale for another Junior High School, presumably to be constructed next year. Is it not time for our city government to "Stop—look—listen," before adding to the burden our tax payers are already bearing?

We are sorry to note that the justice of our local court thinks that a money fine is sufficient punishment for operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. We are of the opinion that a jail sentence is none too severe for persons who endanger the lives of us all in this manner.

The police have utterly failed this week to enforce the ordinance requiring the snow and ice to be removed from paved sidewalks and in consequence, our streets and sidewalks have never been in such wretched condition.

WAVES MOVE FAST

Average Speed of More Than Forty Miles an Hour.

Fortunately, Their Velocity and Power Are Materially Reduced as They Near the Shore.

When the wind blows fiercely most dwellers in towns, particularly in those near the sea, think of themselves what a stormy time our ships and sailors must be having, says a writer in a London paper, according to the Montreal Herald.

Storm-waves around the shores of these islands frequently have immense force behind them, treating blocks of stone and heavy timbers as playthings, smashing like match sticks apparently the most substantial obstacles.

During one storm in the Solent, near Hurst castle, the waves exerted such force ninety feet below the surface that stones weighing 300 pounds or more were torn from their resting places and hurled on the beach, together with heavy masses of seaweed attached to them.

It is in the deep ocean where the storm-wave is seen in its full majesty. Forty, fifty and even sixty feet is the height to which the billows of the Atlantic, the Indian ocean, and the Southern will rise in times of tempest.

In pre-steam days a British man-of-war encountered an unusually heavy gale of wind just outside the Bay of Biscay. Between two seas her storm trysails were totally becalmed, while the crest of each sea was above the level of the center of her mainyard. The mainyard was sixty feet above the water-line.

The water from a wave—as distinct from the body of the wave itself—has been known to do serious damage to vessels of great height above the deck. One notable instance of the kind was the smashing of the port lifeboat of a Hamburg-American liner, lashed on the bridge deck eighty feet above the seoline.

Giant storm-waves of the ocean have an average speed of rather more than forty miles an hour. Their length is the distance from crest to crest. This is about 400 feet for the Atlantic waves. It is much more, however, for the waves of the profoundly deep Pacific ocean.

Of course, it has to be remembered that giant waves in the open ocean can move with perfect freedom. It is when they begin to "touch bottom" in comparatively shallow water that their great speed is reduced—luckily for the fronts of the British coast resorts.

The velocity of the storm-wind in the Atlantic is frequently several miles an hour greater than the velocity of the wave. This results in a good deal of spraying, which, in very severe weather, sometimes seriously thickens and obscures the air.

At the seaside in summer we may sometimes see spraying caused by a stiff breeze blowing against an advancing wavelet.

During a gale on the British coast it will be noticed that the waves begin to break a long way out. That is because these waves, being big ones, touch bottom the sooner. Their lower part moves forward at its old speed. The result is that the upper part curls over and breaks.

In very deep water a giant wave has been known to touch bottom and stir up the fine sand there at a depth of 1,200 feet.

On a fine autumn day we may sometimes see a procession of big "ground-swells" coming shoreward and breaking on the beach with the boom of distant thunder. They represent the disturbance of the sea caused by a storm far out to sea. By closely observing the direction from which these swells come one can form an idea of where the storm is situated. Sometimes the waves travel faster than the storm, and even give warning of its approach.

Must Have Done.

Miss Marjorie—And how is your son James getting on, Mr. Giles?

Giles (whose son has gone to London "in service")—Well, to tell ye the truth, Miss Marj, Ol'm very troubled about 'm. Ol' 'ad a letter last week, an' 'e says that 'e's livin' in a buildin' with 'undreds of people in it, an' it's three or four 'ouses one on top o' 'other. 'E says there's a railway carriage without an ingin' that goes up the middle o' th' buildin' an' th' lights is all in bottles an' you turns 'em on with a top without usin' a locifer, an'—

Miss Marjorie—But why are you troubled about James?

Giles—Why, Ol' fear 'e must 'a took to drink, miss!—Pearson's Weekly.

Smoke as Lightning Conductor.

In a recent reference to the astronomical observatory on Mt. Etna, a prominent scientist called attention to the fact that thunderstorms are very rare phenomena there. The observatory is more than 9,000 feet above the level of the sea, and near the summit of the volcano, yet it has not been found necessary to protect it with lightning rods. The absence of thunderstorms has been accounted for on the supposition that the smoke and hot vapor constantly rising from the great crater of Etna acts as a lightning conductor on a grand scale.

Fossil Forest.

The discovery of a fossil forest is reported at Anglon, Sardinia. Petrified palms, with well-preserved structure, are already known from a Miocene formation in the island, and details of the new find will be awaited with much interest.

ST. HELENA IS HIT BY SLUMP

Island Prison of Emperor Napoleon Affected by Great Decrease in Visits by Ships.

St. Helena, the island prison of Emperor Napoleon, is harder hit than at any time since the opening of the Suez canal. This is chiefly due to the great decrease in visits by ships.

The failure of the flax industry, which was started with the aid of a government grant after the war, is another cause of the lack of prosperity. Jamestown, the capital, was a busy and rich little town 30 years ago. Today the streets are empty and the houses dilapidated.

Even in the country many houses are uninhabited, while others are in ruins. The cable station is one of the few institutions which have not suffered since the beginning of the war.

The population of St. Helena is a curious one. Many settlers came to the island after the great fire of London in 1666. Others were originally slaves from Madagascar. The result is a colored race. The majority of the men are sailors.

The climate is very healthful, the trade winds tempering the tropic heat. Five-sixths of the island is barren owing to rapidly multiplying flocks of goats destroying the vegetation.

Bees will not live on the island, and in consequence little fruit can be cultivated.—London Daily Mail.

SHIP BULLFROGS TO JAPAN

Large Louisiana Product Sent to College of Science of Imperial University at Tokyo.

And now the song and hind legs of the lusty-throated Louisiana bullfrog have been exported to Japan. Soon the heavy, bass, "belly deep" of the big swamp batrachians will be heard "neath the wisteria vines while 'frogs in the casserole" will be listed on the Japanese menu with tea and rice.

Fifty of the largest specimens of Louisiana frogs were shipped to the College of Science of the Imperial University of Tokyo by the Southern Biological company for breeding purposes. The consignment is the third shipment of frogs to Japan, according to officials of the state conservation commission.

The frogs were forwarded in especially constructed cages and directions were provided the American Railway Express company for their care during the 30-day voyage.

The first shipment of frogs was made in April, 1918, and many offspring were raised successfully. Heretofore frogs used for dietary purposes in Japan have been of a species similar to the small American spring frog, and an attempt will be made to thoroughly establish the large Louisiana bull or chicken frog, which attains a length of eight inches.

His Way.

"I felt kinda lost for a spell after I sold the place and came down to live with my niece," admitted the retired farmer. "I missed the familiar tasks, and there weren't enough new ones to keep me busy. The familiar sounds, too, were absent, and at first I couldn't get used to the new ones; the young lady on the left tinkling the piano, the folks on the right running their talking machine, the feller across the street practicing his clarinet, and so forth. They bothered me. But bimeby I took to going out on the back porch and filling a saw to quiet my nerves. And it always done so; after a good spell of filling the noises of the neighborhood didn't pester me at all."—Kansas City Star.

Talk.

Nineteen billion conversations were carried on over American telephone wires last year. Telephone companies having figured this out, also find that the distance covered by these messages was 45,000,000,000 miles. Six million messenger boys, working nine hours a day, would be required to deliver all the messages that pass over the telephone wires. Forty-six years ago there was only one telephone belonging to Bell, its inventor. It was a crude device compared with the phone you use today. Perfection comes rapidly in our age. Do you remember when you had to turn a crank to attract central's attention?

Growth of the Telephone.

If the telephone calls that were put in last year in the United States alone had been scattered evenly about the earth, every person in every country would have been seven times to the phone—every one of India's troubled millions, of China's and of Africa's, and of the almost countless others in every other land. The wires used in the United States would span the distance of the moon 100 times—would circle the earth 1,000. The army and navy of the United States together number about the same as the employees of the Bell telephone system.

Tramps.

The age of the average tramp before the war was fifty years. Now it's thirty-two. And the 1922 model tramp rides on auto tracks instead of freight trains. This information is from the report of a New York welfare association with a name as long as Barnum's Cardiff giant. The association is seeking a way to reduce the number of tramps. Quickest way is to give them the jobs they seek. Second, and impossible, is to kill the wanderer; that exists in every human, a psychoanalytic complex, reaction from the dull grand of civilization.

BURN UP SHELLS

How Unexpended Ammunition Was Done Away With.

Bonfires Every Day in Belgium for a Considerable Period Following End of the War.

At a certain town in Belgium a strange bonfire used to be lighted every night.

During the day from 120 to 200 tons of ammunition left over from the war—some 30,000 projectiles of every description, that is—were stripped of their fuses. Then they were laid with open mouths alongside shallow trenches that had been filled with brushwood and sprinkled with pterate and cordite taken from the shells and cartridges.

At 5:30 in the afternoon the great fire was ready to be lighted, and M. F. A. Talbot, an English writer, gives the following thrilling description of the way in which it was done:

"Sharp to the minute shrieks a whistle, and there is a wild stampede of workers from the clearing. A motorcar has driven up unobserved, bearing the safety inspector and his assistants.

"He makes a hurried examination of the now silent and tenantless clearing, re-arranging the shells here, and trimming the trails somewhere else. Meanwhile an assistant has emerged from his shack with four long steel rods, an armful of rags, and a bucket of paraffin.

"The rags are wrapped round the ends of the rods and saturated with the inflammable liquid, and sharp at 5:40 a match is struck and four blazing torches distributed among the safety officials.

"The motorcar commences to purr as the firebugs bend to their task. Each man is responsible for the firing of so many trenches. It is an inspiring race. The men flit from trench to trench in succession, dipping their brands into the attractive tar in passing.

"The cordite and pterate catch fire instantly to run along the ditch with the speed of the prairie fire. . . . By the time the last trench has been fired the ground is completely enveloped in smoke and the men appear as phantoms.

"The brands are hurriedly discarded, and there is a spirited sprint across the remaining few yards to the road to catch the car, which is already on the move. Tumbling into the vehicle pell-mell, the throttle is opened and the top speed slipped in, there being no easing up until at least a mile has been put between the escaping firebugs and the burning ground.

"As the evening advances the fire grows fiercer, throwing off dense clouds of varicolored smoke, lit with lurid tongues of flame. For miles around the fire is a spectacle, and it occurs so punctually every afternoon throughout the week that the rural population accepts it as a time-piece.

By next morning the shells have burned themselves out and are sufficiently cooled to be handled. They are then sent away to have the driving band removed, and the ground is prepared afresh for the next bonfire.

A Rude Elephant.

Houdini had a mystery show at the Times Square theater in conjunction with the presentation of his first motion picture for his own producing organization and in it was an illusion which apparently shows how easy it is for some persons to make an elephant disappear right before your eyes. Two elephants were used and Emil Ankermiller, who used to manage some of the most noted stars of the dramatic profession, designated himself private secretary to the pachyderms. Thus it happened that one of the big animals hit Ankermiller in the face with its tail and Emil grew wroth.

"Darn you!" he growled. "I'll have you know I once managed Richard Mansfield."

The elephant merely smiled.

Truly a Valuable Dog.

Smithson had just bought a dog, and he was very keen on showing it to all his friends—pointing out the various fine points of the animal and proudly reciting its imaginary pedigree.

His pal, Brown, looked at the mongrel with an air reminiscent of a vet. "I can't say I like him," said Brown. "He reminds me of a dog I once had—but a better one than this. Why, I used to wrap that dog up in flannel and put him to bed, and if ever I heard a suspicious noise during the night and came down to wake him up, he'd bark like the very deuce!"

Pleasure With Pain.

Markwich—Does your sister like reading?

Jones—Yes; she considers reading a pleasure, but it usually takes her longer than anybody else to read a book, because she always forgets where she stopped reading the last time and has to start at the beginning again to be on the safe side.—London Answers.

Indirect Method.

"Don't the residents of Crimmon Gulch complain about taxation?"

"No," answered Cactus Joe. "The burden of taxes is easier to bear when the method of collection is kept more or less under cover. When we need any improvements we simply invite everybody to a poker game and take out a kitty."

HAS MANY SULPHUR SPRINGS

Oklahoma Has Wonderful Supply of Sparkling Water Impregnated With Health-Giving Minerals.

In southern Oklahoma not far from the Texas boundary, a group of 30 healing springs, all of cold sparkling water, were set apart by congress in 1904 under the title of the Platt national park. Most of them are sulphur springs; others are impregnated with bromides and other mineral salts.

Many thousands yearly visit the bordering city of Sulphur to drink these waters; many camp in or near the reservation; the bottled waters bring relief to thousands at home.

All these Platt springs, like those at Hot Springs, Ark., were known to the Indians many generations before the coming of the white settler.

According to a Chickasaw legend, two warriors competed for the hand of Deerfoot, a chieftain's daughter. Both were killed by jumping off a cliff. Then Deerfoot also jumped and killed herself. The chief on the hill-top cried so many briny tears that, according to Indian tradition, they filtered down through the cliff and mingled with the spring water, to which they imparted remedial qualities.

THE DEVIL-FISH IN DEMAND

Delicacy, Dried and Fresh, in All Sizes, Never Missing From the Stores of Manhattan.

The devil-fish tribe, big and small, dried and fresh, are never missing from the stores of the Italian, Greek, Spanish, Turk and Mongol colonies of Manhattan. They range in size from the small squid to the giant cuttlefish. The cuttlefish can also always be obtained, from one year's end to another, pickled and canned in its own ink.

Sun-dried oysters are always obtainable at Mongol stores throughout the country. They never use canned oysters. The bivalves are sold on rattan, and circled (after drying) for hanging up in stores.

Lobsters' tails, sun-dried, are a great delicacy with the Greeks, and are imported regularly. A caviar is imported from the Hellenes and all along the Asia Minor seaboard. It is the roe of the baskira which is salted down, mild-cured and sun-dried to a firm compactness which makes the article almost as hard as wood. Then it is steeped in and given an effective coating of beeswax. This will preserve it for years and the slightly fragrant beeswax film will hold its faint honeylike odor for as long. This is the real original Turkish kaviar.

Birds That Fell Trees.

A bird's nest as big as a house! It sounds a tall order, and you might think that only some kind of super-ostrich could make it.

As a matter of fact, it is built by a little fellow no bigger than a canary. South African society birds like company. They live in large colonies, all the members of which build in the same tree.

Each pair constructs a nest of mud, joining its walls to those of its next-door neighbors. As the colonies are several thousand strong, the bird town soon reaches a very respectable size.

The following season the colony occupies the same tree, building new nests on top of the old ones. The tree creaks and groans, but the society birds take no notice.

Sometimes the huge mass of nests comes crashing down, and the air is filled with dust, feathers, and frightened squeals. But often the tree itself is weighed down by the industrious colonizers, until eventually it collapses beneath the weight of their homes.

Curious Mediterranean Fish.

A creature which has a beak like a parrot, cheek pouches like those of a monkey, and chews its cud like a cow inhabits the warm waters of the Mediterranean. It browses on the weeds that flourish on the sea floor. Its upper and lower jaws have become hardened into a sharp curved beak, which is just the tool required for lopping off tough seaweed. Each piece snipped off by the beak is passed into one of the two curious pouches which adorn the cheeks, and there it remains until the parrot fish feels that it has collected enough for a good meal. It then chews the cud by means of the splendid set of teeth, which nature has placed not in its mouth, but in its throat.

A Runaway Perambulator.

A runaway perambulator caused the death of a baby boy at Dalston, England, recently. It had been left for a moment outside a barber's shop by the mother, while she went to attend to her other child, whose hair was being cut. In her absence, the perambulator, owing to the wind, ran to the curb and overturned. The baby was thrown out at the moment when a horse-drawn van was passing. A wheel of the vehicle passed over the child's head, killing him instantly.

His 'ntention.

"Me and wife had a little lower last night," related Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, "and when I got the best of the argument she 'lowed that yarrater she'd suffer in silence. I aim to watch her a day or so, and if she don't kick back I reckon I'll invite all the married men on the ridge to gather around and enjoy the spectacle."—Kansas City Star.

Hobbies.

One stride made by the modern mind, both in philosophy and ethics, is that of doing justice to the hobby. Hobbies not infrequently assume a scientific or at least a quasi-scientific form. Happy is the man who is an amateur botanist, an amateur zoologist, an amateur anything, which brings him into kindly contact with nature. Take it by and large, the world is much better off for hobbies than it would be without them. Even in the tolerant and half-pitying smile bestowed on the hobbyist there is recognition that his hobby is harmless. But in one hundred and ninety-nine cases out of a thousand, the hobby is a positive benefit. Almost always it is a health-preserver, and more times than it gets credit for it has proven a life saver.—Buffalo Times.

AT CENTENARY M. E. CHURCH

Sunday morning the Junior and Intermediate choirs of Centenary M. E. Church of Auburndale rendered the Christmas music, a memorized rendition of "The Nativity," a mystery play by Linda Ekman and Elizabeth Fyfe. It was not dramatized but sung in cantata style, and was given forth by the nearly sixty children and soloists of the two choirs in a musical, spirited, but dignified manner. Mrs. Clara Lieber Harper directed, with Mrs. F. E. Leland at the organ and the pastor, Rev. Earl E. Harper, at the piano.

Miss Fyffe, one of the writers of the work was present and expressed gratification and appreciation for the musical quality of the service. The congregation as a whole were seemingly impressed with the fact that on a great festival occasion like Christmas the children could displace the regular choir and carry the entire service through with so much religiousness of spirit, dignity, and genuine feeling as was the case at Centenary Church Sunday morning. The pastor preached on "The Heavenly Child." The auditorium of the church was filled with worshippers who found the service one of worship and inspiration, in no sense a "Sunday School Concert," nor an entertainment.

Sunday night the pastor and twenty-five singers of the adult choir, with Mrs. Harper, soprano, Mr. Arthur Wellcome, tenor, Mrs. F. E. Leland and Miss Marion Chapin, organists, and Mr. Cleon Hopkins, trumpeter, journeyed by auto to the Medford Hillside Radio Broadcasting station, where a service and afterwards a concert was broadcasted.

Every mail since has brought Mr. Harper a number of letters from people near and far who testify they received the service clearly and distinctly and thanking him for both the music and the other portions of the service.

A high power receiving set was installed in the church, with a loud speaker, and a large body of worshippers congregated there to hear their own pastor and choir as they sang, prayed, and preached from the distant station.

Catholic Churches in this city was held Christmas eve, at the Church of the Sacred Heart in Newton Centre and the throng was so great that it was necessary to hold a second mass in the lower church which was also crowded. Rev. Fr. Timothy A. Curtin the pastor officiated at the first mass and Rev. John Cavan at the second mass.

To Dissipate Tornadoes.

A California scientist, the founder of a famous observatory, has suggested that storms in which electricity plays a leading part, like tornadoes, might be dissipated on the lightning-rod principle by bonding the rails of railroads with copper, as in electric railroads for return currents, and at intervals sinking large conductors into the ground until they reach water. Railroads running north and south, it is suggested, would be especially available, because the tracks of tornadoes are almost invariably from west or southwest toward east or northeast.

CLAN UNDER BAN

Effort to Extinguish Very Name of MacGregor.

Extraordinary Legislation Brought About by the Turbulence and Unruliness of the Victims.

Old Atholl MacGregor of MacGregor, who has just passed away at the age of eighty-six at Ard-Chaille, near Perth, had taken a very active part in organizing the impending celebration by the historic Scottish clan of MacGregor of the repeal just 100 years ago of the iniquitous law, unique of its kind, which forbade the use of the name of MacGregor in Scotland under the penalty of death, Henry Pickard writes in the Cincinnati Enquirer.

The MacGregors claim descent from Gregor, third son of Alpin, one of the Scottish kings of the Eighth century. It is a clan which furnished Sir Walter Scott the hero of his most famous historical romance, "Rob Roy" (or "Red Rob")—a clan which on account of its turbulence and unruliness was subjected at the beginning of the Seventeenth century to one of the most extraordinary pieces of legislation that is to be found in the annals of any of the civilized countries of the world. After a bloody battle between the MacGregors and the Colquhouns at Glen Fruin—that is to say, the Glen of Sorrow—and which was characterized by the utmost ferocity, the victorious MacGregors putting all their adversaries to the sword, a law was enacted at Edinburgh, dated April 3, 1603, bearing the sign manual of James VI, of Scotland (James I. of Great Britain), wiping out the existence of the very name of MacGregor and decreeing the penalty of death for any one calling himself MacGregor. This law was subsequently confirmed by an act of parliament in 1617 at Edinburgh.

Another act of parliament in 1617 even went so far as to extend the penalty of death to any former MacGregors who should presume to assemble in greater numbers than four. In fact, every effort was made to blot out the clan of MacGregor, and thus transformed into outlaws, with the hand of every one against them, thousands of them were put to death, both by the sword and by the scaffold. On the restoration of Charles II., by reason of the services which the MacGregors had rendered under other names than their own, the various laws against the clan were annulled. But a few years later they were re-enacted and remained in force until less than 100 years ago—that is to say, until the early part of the Nineteenth century. The MacGregors accepted extinction by assuming the names of the clans among which they had sought refuge. Some of the MacGregors came to America, and one of them achieved distinction as an American naval commander, known by the name of Commodore MacGregor, father of the American wife of Gen. Lord Abinger, third peer of his line.

Flowers Belong Together.

Sweet peas and mignonette should always grow together. Even the down-trodden everlasting pea (as Gerard calls it) with its large frank blossoms, has this year won its way to favor. That plant is in itself an epitome of all the sermons of the year with courage and constancy for their text! It is as good as a meditation by Jeremy Taylor. We were very grave about it last year, only a very little was permitted; it was denounced as too encroaching; and a quantity of it was ruthlessly cut away. We believed its humiliation to be secure. Not a bit of it! Never did it spread and flourish and flower more abundantly than it has done this summer. It ran round the corner of the house and made a blooming bower of itself in the shade under the east porch. It gave a rich, deep background for the white irises and bluish roses to the south; it actually climbed up and looked in at the dining room windows, and nodded to us as we sat at breakfast. "J'y suis, et j'y reste!" it said, as plain as words; and after all I had to confess its conquering beauty.—E. V. B. in "A Garden of Pleasure."

Feeling.

The teacher was giving a few general questions to test the intelligence of his pupils.

"How many races are there?" he asked.

"Two," replied a small boy, who had been feeling the cane some time previously.

"Two! Well, what are they?"

"Please, sir, teachers and pupils."

"What do you mean, my lad, by saying teachers and pupils?" queried the teacher.

"Please, sir," was the reply, "the teachers are the 'canine' race, and the pupils are the 'feline' race."

Samples and Samples.

"Did you here that Blank was arrested?"

"That is news to me. I am astonished. For what was he arrested?"

"It is charged that he took home samples of the goods he was handling."

"Ah, so. Where was he working?"

"In a bank."

Endless Task.

"Why did you leave that Scotch regiment?"

"Couldn't get used to kilts."

"Heh?"

"I kept trying to pull the blamed things down."

MANY CROWNS IN BASKET

Surprisingly Large Number of Monarchical Rulers Comparatively Recently Deprived of Thrones.

The head that wears a crown has always lain very uneasily in Russia. The son of Peter the Great, Alexis II, was tried for treason and condemned. Later he was reprieved by his father, but died in prison in 1689. There are few countries in Europe which have not had an overturn of their rulers in the last century. King Charles IV of Spain, unable to face the situation stirred up by the Napoleonic wars, abdicated in 1808. Augustus, the Strong, King of Poland, was obliged to abdicate after his defeat by Sweden. King Pontiatowski of Poland was forced by the allied powers to resign his throne, and Charles Albert of Sardinia abdicated after his defeat by the Austrians in 1842.

Even in comparatively peaceful times, such as the close of the last century, the number of rulers suddenly deprived of their thrones was surprisingly large. Our last experience of the kind in America occurred as recently as 1859, when Dom Pedro, the last emperor of Brazil, left his throne after a bloodless revolution. For several years the crop of royal exiles continued to be remarkably large. Alexander of Battenberg, prince of Bulgaria, abdicated in 1886. Spain lost a king in 1873, and King Milan of Serbia saw fit to leave his throne in 1889. The ruler of Bulgaria retired after a peasant revolution.

Just before the outbreak of the World war three countries disposed of their rulers with more or less violence. King Manuel of Portugal was formally exiled and fled to England. Abdul Hamid, sultan of Turkey, was forced by a revolt to abdicate in 1909, and the emperor of China, Hsuan Tung, after a successful rebellion, was forced to give up his throne as recently as 1912. The list might be continued indefinitely.

Synthetic Sinkers.

While the world is still disturbed with the many grave problems of readjustment, it is pleasing to note that science is making skillful progress and is constantly marching onward toward a brighter and better day. In this connection it is noted that among the newest of scientific triumphs is the synthetic doughnut.

This victory of mind over matter is said to incorporate all the elements of the plebeian or luncheon species of sinker. There is the synthetic armor-plate or covering with which the little doughnut protects itself from attack by its arch-enemy, man. There is likewise the synthetic interior composed of the usual adamant substances; also the synthetic hole, which is perhaps the best part of any doughnut, and last but not least, the synthetic indigestion.

Let us hope that science will not rest on her laurels but will press ever forward until the synthetic ham and eggs, synthetic buckwheat and sausage and synthetic pork and beans have been rescued from the limbo of dreamy possibilities.—Thrill Magazine.

Psychoanalysis.

The wistful bit of a girl sat in the car near her mother, a stout, comfortable, southern type of "mammy." Her frizzy black hair was braided in three tiny pigtails which barely reached below the nape of her thin little neck. Her coffee-colored face was small and plump, with lips that reminded one of huge overripe cherries. Her large, dark eyes sparkled and rolled around as she eagerly looked out at the passing objects.

"I wan' that—an' that—an' that!" she would murmur, a thin finger pointing at the window whenever a gayly decorated shop window was passed.

"Maw, I wan' that dress ova there!" she cried suddenly, indicating with her ever-ready finger a crimson gown bespattered with spangles which hung promiscuously outside of a "Theatrical Gowns Supplied" shop.

"Lawd!" the mother exclaimed delightedly. "I done tell yuh this heah chile gwine be a actor. I a ways knowed it fer sure."—Chicago Journal.

Problem in Mathematics.

There was no room telephone in the Jacksonville hotel chamber in which we nighted for a single night. But there was a push bell with a card over it that said: "Ring once for ice water; twice for a bell boy; three times for a chamber maid; four times for porter."

We desired ice water and tried to make our wants known. After half an hour, which is pretty good time for a southern hotel, a porter presented himself and looked around for baggage.

"Ice water," we said severely. "The card says to ring once for—"

"Yassur," acknowledged the porter. "But we all couldn't fighat out wethen you rang once fo' times or fo' times once."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Double Breveavement.

"I'm sorry I ran over your hen," said the kind-hearted motorist. "I'll pay you for her."

"That was a pet hen, sir. She always came to me when I called her and laid an egg every day."

"Would a dollar be all right?"

"You'd better make it two, sir. I also have a rooster. He thinks a lot of that hen and when he finds out she's dead it wouldn't surprise me if she should killed him."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

"The daffodil, our doorside Queen"

Flowers of the wood and the dale await the coming of Spring. And Queen Daffodil, and her retinue of beauties, are dreaming like all the other flowers. Spring, the Fairy Prince with the magic wand, is wandering about to the south of us. He will be reminded some day by King Sun that the folks and the flowers in Newton and thereabouts are anxious for his return. His advance will be marked by melting snows and ice, and balminess. Spring without his wand is helpless. And whenever it is mislaid, folks and flowers ask, "What's the matter with Spring?"

The Garden City Laundry—the Garden of laundering niceties—provides its welcome laundering service the year round. Its magic wand of efficiency and human interest that furnishes good work is never mislaid or lost. You never hear "What's the matter with the Garden City" without an accompanying reply, "The Garden City is ALL right." After All, He Ruminates, Knowledge

Is Worth Something.

Owing to circumstances that I seem to have proved myself inadequate to control, I have become, as the lawyers say, "seized" of certain properties and possessions that require management and intelligent personal attention. I feel, in the custodianship of these things, as if I were a nervous woman who had been presented with a den of snakes or a roomful of mice to care for.

I keep these various evidences of alleged wealth in a long sheet-steel box with a hasp over the end, which is, in turn, kept in a hole in the wall of a steel-lined room. I cannot get into this pigeon hole without the assistance of a uniformed attendant who comes and makes medicine with a key that has a strong family resemblance to one I own. After he has primed the lock I can insert my own key and the door flies accommodatingly open. Then I haul out that box and open it and look awestrickenly at its contents.

Some of the handsomest of these contents, that I admire most from a wholly scenic standpoint, are, I am told, of least value commercially. I have, for example, some mining stock.

I know it is good, for I know a man who went through the mine himself, personally accompanied by the owner and his daughter, and this friend of mine saw the gold just as plain as could be. So at 10 cents for each hundred-dollar share, I bought a thousand of them. Subsequent anxious efforts on my part to locate that mine and to find out anything complimentary about it have proved very discouraging indeed. And as for dividends on that stock, periods have passed with the most commendable regularity. I have occupied the reviewing stand while they passed. A man to whom I showed the stock laughed and said it was worthless. But it was by believing a fellow that I was led originally to buy the stuff. So I will not believe anybody again. I shall hang on to that stock. I feel sure I shall.

However, far be it from me to raise Ned about any of these stings I have been vouchsafed by the smooth boys. When a fellow will pay $100 for that much of that sort of stuff, he is very badly in need of good sense, and any price he may pay for it must not be regarded an exorbitant. And it is well to be stung just enough in early life by buying fake stock so that one is, as it were, vaccinated or inoculated. It may save him hundreds or thousands later on. So my worthless stock is in some ways the best investment I have. It not only was, but it still is, very dear to me.—Strickland Gillilan in Farm Life.

The family was provoked and Mary Jane's father threatened to sell the hen if she didn't take care of the chickens. That brought Mary Jane to strategy. That evening when her father came home she was waiting for him.

"Oh, no," Mary Jane was very serious. "She's in the hen coop getting ready to lay some more eggs to hatch some more chickens."

Encouraging French Birth Rate.

In France there is a good-sized fund for the purpose of encouraging large families. Upon three different occasions large sums of money have been given for this purpose by M. Cognac. The principal awards are 100 prizes of 10,000 francs each to be distributed annually to the deserving heads of families of more than five children and 90 prizes of 25,000 francs for the heads of families of at least nine children. The donor of these awards accumulated his wealth in the operation of a large department store in Paris and during his lifetime it was a constant source of concern to him to note the dwindling birth rate of his country.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

Edited by Miss Grace M. Burt

From mid-December until after New Year's the club activities for the most part are marking time. It is, however, a good opportunity for a mental stock-taking—a time to look both ways. Has the rush and fatigue of holiday preparations left us a bit fagged? Are we a bit disheartened at seeming lack of interest, or are we dissatisfied with previous achievement? Have we faltered when we should have stood firm? Or acted when we should have done nothing? Whatever has discouraged us,—our own shortcomings or those of our clubs,—this brief respite on the eve of the New Year should bring refreshment, for now as at no other time of the year may we wipe out old scores, and start forth with fresh vigor and courage. What a boon that old scores can be wiped out and fresh starts made! With the lengthening days comes gradual re-awakening along many lines. May these days be ones in which to think straight, to take the broad view and the far look! Whatever the clubs attempt, may this New Year be to each the best yet!

Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, president of the State Federation, in her January letter to the clubs reviewing the task before the clubs and Federation, says:

"One of our big meetings is over. With its success came certain problems to be solved. How to eliminate the long annoying wait to get credentials stamped? Must we limit the number of visiting club women at such meetings? Both of these questions need thought and discussion."

"We are on the eve of the legislative work of the year. Let us approach it sanely. May we be very before it that our endorsement is wise and that our study carefully all sides of an issue before we, as Federation, work for its adoption. It is not so much a question of law-making as law-keeping these days, and that is where we should put the emphasis. We who preach law and order should practise it not only in the big things, but in the little things as well."

Newton Centre Woman's Club Presents Musical Play

For beauty of scenic effect through stage setting, costuming, and lighting, it is safe to say nothing better has been done on a Newton stage than that achieved by the Newton Centre Woman's Club in its first activity in the new club house last week, when "The Awakening," was presented by a large cast of Newton Centre young people. Thursday afternoon the performance was particularly for the school children, though there was also a goodly sprinkling of grown-ups, and very vacant seats greeted late-comers. It was repeated on Friday evening with dancing afterwards.

The play was written by C. Hassler Capron of Newton Centre, and the lyrics and music by Walter C. Rogers, and it was staged and produced under the personal direction of Mr. Capron. The story is a simple one: a group of girls in a boarding school, under the leadership of two girls who both love nature, decide to give up their "annual party" and instead take a group of orphan children into the country for a day's pleasure, where they see the fairies and have the best of good times, both the party givers and those to whom it is given, while Mrs. Hamilton, the head of the school, who has cared previously only for society and social things, has the "Awakening," and is completely converted into a nature lover. How well the thing was done is evinced by a chance remark overheard upon the sidewalk afterwards: "Those children put across a lesson we older people may well take to ourselves."

As may easily be imagined the setting gave full opportunity both for individual and group fancy dances and to opportunity for beauty of effect was allowed to slip. Wonderfully lovely was the dance of the Fairies of Woods, who were seen coming, coming, through the forest and then melting away far, far in the distance, until completely lost to sight.

Those in the cast were: Dorothea Tichner, Lucile Wright, Mildred McKee, Helen Stuart, Margaret Barry, Eleanor Phillips, Mary Wright, June Wilbar, Katherine Collins, Dorothy Barton, Harriet Van Dusen, Ann Stratton, Sylvia Riley, Rosamond Edwards, Helen Dearing, Marion Blackman, Mrs. William Hodges, Mrs. John Bergeron, School Girls: Barbara Hills, Mary Agnes Holbrook, Sallie Collins, Harriet Fitz, Catherine Lotz, Virginia Beatty; Fairies of the Woods, Doty Rising, Hannah Bond, Elizabeth Marston, Priscilla Speare, Mary McKee, Betty Follett; Children from the Orphan's Home, Virginia Davis, Jane Cobb, Catherine Bailey, Lois Martin, Catherine Hayden, Betty Murphy, Dorothy Osgood, Betty Muther, Merle Sawyer, Norma Morgan.

The costumes were designed by Miss Louise Stuart and executed under the direction of Mrs. Phil M. Riley. Mrs. Hazel Sands Welch originated the dances and Miss Dorothy Saver trained the dancers. The program cover, showing a girl scout meeting the Fairy of the Birds and Flowers in woods, was designed by Miss Margaret Hastings, Mrs. John Capron was general chairman of the affair and was assisted by the following committees:

Christmas Party

One could hardly believe that so much fun, and Christmas joy and cheer for all could be crowded into one afternoon, as there was at the Christmas Party at the West Newton Women's Educational Club Friday, Dec. 22, when Mr. George Carragan, the magician, arrived. Players Small Hall was filled with eighty-five children and others to greet him. They were greatly entertained with tricks and magical wonders. Refreshments of sandwiches, cocoa, ice cream and cake were served to the children from twenty-five homes visited by the district nurse, and then cake and ice cream were served to all the children present and tea and cookies to the ladies.

Soon after the appetites were satisfied, the stamping of feet and the jingle of bells was heard, and who should appear but dear old Santa Claus (Mrs. Josiah Whitney) who tumbled right down the chimney into the fireplace as gracefully as if she had done it for years, ready to distribute the gifts from an immense Christmas tree loaded with gifts of new shoes, rubbers, stockings, other clothing, games, toys, etc. How delighted each of these little children were. Each child present was given a candy bag. A wonderful Christmas spirit prevailed and Mrs. Joseph McDonald and her committee did everything possible to make this Christmas the merriest and best that these little ones ever had.

DAVIS-PRATT

On Wednesday of this week, Miss Marion Louise Pratt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Pratt of Bridgewater, became the bride of Mr. Arthur Wellington Davis of West Newton. The service was held at the Church of the New Jerusalem, Bridgewater, Mass., and was performed by the Rev. Harold S. Conant.

The bride's gown was of white brocaded taffeta with a lace bertha, and side paniers, and she carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Her tulle veil with its coronet of duchess lace was caught up with orange blossoms.

The bridesmaids, Miss Marion B. Hunt of Swampscott, Miss Esther C. Ayer of Winchester, Miss Grace K. Faden of Waltham, and Miss Pearl Calep of Haverhill, wore, two of them, gowns of orchid taffeta with full skirts and waists with silver lace collars, and two, yellow taffeta gowns trimmed in a similar way.

The gown of the maid of honor, Miss Marjorie Westing of Watertown, was of brilliant blue taffeta with side paniers, and she carried Ophelia roses.

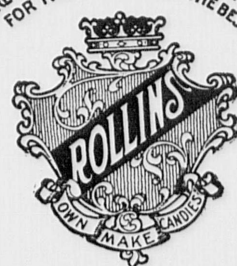

The best man was George S. Fuller of West Newton, and the ushers, Messrs. Russell D. Chase of Springfield, Arthur E. Pratt, brother of the bride, of Bridgewater, Harry P. Fowler of Washington, D. C., and Harold B. Smille of Newton.

A reception in the church vestry followed the ceremony, the bride and groom being assisted by their parents, the bridesmaids, and maid of honor.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, Mr. and Mrs. Davis will make their home in Belmont the last of January. The bride is a graduate of the Bridgewater Normal School, and former teacher at New Rochelle, New York, while the groom is a graduate of the Newton schools, and at present is engaged in the bond business. He served for 18 months during the war in France with the 101st Engineers, Yankee Division.

PAGEANTRY

While the Christmas season is still uppermost in our thoughts comes the timely announcement that a course in "Bible dramatization and pageantry" will be given at the Norumbega District Community School of Religious Education, during the second term, which begins on January 8, 1923. (The sessions of the school take place, as usual, in the Central Congregational Church, Newtonville.)

The course is to be given by Dr. Priscilla H. Fowler, of Newton Centre, who has made an enviable name for herself in this line of work. Dr. Fowler is a graduate of Vassar and has taken her degree at Radcliffe. For three years she has been Superintendent of the Junior Department at the Newton Centre Baptist Church, where she has co-operated with the pastor, Dr. Arbuckle, in putting on many effective pageants. At the summer school at Ocean Park, Maine, Dr. Fowler has taught pageantry and done a very successful piece of work in pageantry direction.

She is now Dean of Women at the Newton Theological Institution, and is instructor there in Child Psychology, Pageantry, and other subjects. Dr. Fowler will put great emphasis in her course on the fact that drama and pageantry in the church should be used to present a spiritual truth in a beautiful and dignified way. A pageant is an opportunity, when rightly conducted, to allow the young people to express a religious message to others. Church pageantry is not primarily for entertainment, but more for the spiritual uplift of those who participate and who learn, through their rehearsals, how to for the part and express the religious meaning.

Those who heard Miss Fowler speak on "The Spiritual Values of Pageantry" at the Waltham institute last year, conducted by the Norumbega District, will realize how well qualified she is to instruct and inspire leaders along this line of work.

DOUBLE ACCIDENT

Last Saturday night, Harold R. Jeffords of 265 Austin street, West Newton, was driving his machine along the Fellsway toward Wellington bridge when suddenly a horse and wagon appeared in front of him. Mr. Jeffords swung aside to avoid hitting the wagon, and as he did so the wheels swerved in the snow and slush and his front right wheel was smashed against a pole.

No sooner had the first crash occurred than Mr. Jeffords was almost thrown out through the window by a crash in the rear. Another machine coming along at a good rate of speed bumped into the rear end of his car, breaking off the number plate and badly damaging a rear mudguard.

The driver of the rear car backed away and sped along before it was possible to get his identity. No one was hurt as a result of the double crash.

THE VALUE OF A SMILE

It cost nothing, but creates much. It enriches those who receive, without impoverishing those who give. It happens in a flash and the memory of it sometimes lasts forever. None are so rich they can get along without it, and none so poor but are richer for its benefits.

It creates goodness in the home, fosters good will in a business, and is the countersign of friends. It is rest to the weary, daylight to the discouraged, sunshine to the sad, and Nature's best antidote for trouble. Yet it cannot be bought, begged, borrowed or stolen, for it is something that is no earthly good to anybody till it is given away!

For nobody needs a smile so much as those who have none left to give!

CITY HALL

City Hall celebrated Christmas in fine style with a Christmas tree in Legion Hall, Santa Claus in the person of Joseph Edwards had presents for all. Everybody from the Mayor down attended the party, more than 75 being present. The gifts were drawn from a grab bag held by Santa Claus. Refreshments were served. For more than an hour the gathering returned to childhood days; Mayor Childs and everybody present, played drop the handkerchief, going to Jerusalem and all the other games that some of those present played as far back as 40 years ago.

TRICKS USED BY JUGGLERS

Apparently Marvelous Feats Are Made Easy by the Use of Specially Devised Apparatus.

Not all the tricks you see performed by professional jugglers on the music hall stage are genuine, says a writer in a London paper.

Take, for instance, the familiar one which consists of rolling a ball backward and forward along a round, smooth walking-stick.

Apparently this is a marvelous feat of balancing, but really it is quite simple. The stick, a professional "prop," is slightly grooved, so that the ball will not fall off. Needless to say, the stick is held so that the groove is invisible to the audience.

Sometimes an "umbrella" is substituted for a stick. But it is not the real thing. It is an imitation umbrella made of wood and grooved like the stick. Two kinds of these fake umbrellas are used by jugglers—one for ball rolling, the other, more deeply grooved, for balancing the brim of a top hat.

Another balancing feat that often excites wonder and amazement is that which consists in keeping two billiard balls placed one above the other on the top of a billiard cue. This feat, it may be said at once, cannot be done without resort to trickery. It never has been done, and it may safely be asserted that it never will be done with genuine billiard balls and cue.

Most jugglers use imitation billiard balls for this trick. These are made of boxwood and enameled so as to look exactly like the genuine article. But when they are being made they are either slightly flattened or else weighted in such a way that they almost balance themselves. If real billiard balls are used, as they are sometimes—they are "doctored" in a similar way.

Bottles for balancing on the edge of a plate are made of wood, grooved, and weighted at the bottom. The Indian clubs used by jugglers are specially made of a very light wood, and hollow at that. Even the lighted candles with which they play all sorts of tricks are not really candles.

Of course, this does not mean that there is no skill shown in juggling, even after making all allowances for faked "props." In fact some tricks, such as "cascading" or "showering" a number of balls in the air, or performing a similar feat with plates, cannot be faked at all.

Romance Hard to Kill

A lumpy chin is the fabled banner of youth. Every woman knows it—or, if she doesn't, men do, which is more and worse. As the woman at the library corner had a lumpy chin, you could tell that she had kissed a romance good-bye. But her vanity was wearing French heels. You could tell that, too, by the way she flaunted her head and laughed—a somewhat strident laugh for so public a place—and otherwise registered excitement at the news another woman was broadcasting.

"Now, don't fall to be on time. I want you to meet him. He owns his own home and a fine radio set."

"Has he got real car? I won't look at a bean that flutters."

Foolish? Of course it was foolish, but wouldn't this be one prosy old world if everybody in it was as wise as you and I and the gate post?

Besides, wise folks do foolish things when they get ready. Note the three wise men of Gotham who went to sea in a tub.—Washington Star.

Explaining the Garden of Eden.

At irregular intervals the controversy over the existence of the Garden of Eden is revived. Sometimes it gets warm, but in later years it seems to have lost much of its bitterness.

It recalls the remarks on the subject attributed to John Wesley Woodin, a preacher of much originality, well known to Clevelanders of forty-odd years ago. As nearly as his words can be recalled Mr. Woodin said:

"Some say there wasn't no Garden of Eden. The Bible says there was. Some say we don't understand what the Bible means when it says there was. As for me, all I got to say is, if there wasn't no Garden, where are we goin' to look for original sin? So I listen to 'em talk this way and I listen to 'em talk that, and when they get through I say, 'What's all this fussing got to do with the plan of salvation anyway?' And that's where I stand, and I stand fast!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

No Pulse.

Thomas, Jr., just five years old, living on the North side, was worried on account of his auntie's poor health. She was lying down resting the other day when he came up and tried to find her pulse as he had seen the doctor do. She said to him:

"Do you think my pulse is good today, Doctor Me?" He solemnly replied: "No; you are dead."—Indianapolis News.

The Mood of the Time.

"I have no doubt that you could write a very interesting book of reminiscences," remarked the admiring friend.

"I might," replied Senator Sorghum. "But I am not going to attempt any such thing. At present people are not so much interested in what has happened as in what is going to happen."

Golf.

The trouble with golf is that to play it well requires more patience, self-control, willingness to practice and devotion to a delicate, and complicated maneuver than the average man possesses. Hence the few good golfers and the many dubs.—Exchange

TELEPHONE NIGHT

Under the auspices of the Eliot Church Men's Club of Newton, of which Benjamin S. Hinkley is the President, a Community night for the members of the club and their friends, and also members of other Men's Clubs in Newton and friends, will be held in the Eliot Church parlors January 17th, at 7.45 P. M. The entire program will be in the nature of a "Telephone Night," with an instructive and entertaining program furnished exclusively by employees of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company.

By arrangement with George R. Grant of Newton, who is General Attorney of the Telephone Company the Club has indeed secured a novel evening's entertainment. The Telephone Orchestra of 25 pieces, composed entirely of telephone employees, will furnish music. Two reels of moving pictures about the telephone business will also be shown.

For the first time in New England, the Telephone Company will present its Demonstration Board, which is a complete section of a regular central office switchboard, and at which young women operators of the Newton District will give actual demonstration of how telephone calls are handled, explaining, as the call is completed, just how it is done. This feature enables subscribers to better understand what happens when you make a telephone call. Included in the demonstration are many side-lights of comedy and human interest that make the demonstration a delightful one.

During the evening community singing will be enjoyed. Admission to the Community Night will be by tickets only and tickets may be secured from Presidents of the Men's Clubs of Newton, or from Pastors of the churches.

Puzzled Her Patient.

What odd questions children ask. A lady writes that her little girl wanted to know what God does with all the old moons. On another occasion she asked: "Does God make Jesus help light up the stars?"

Thought for the Day.

Looking after a husband is like playing a game of cards. You must play with what is dealt you, and the glory consists not so much in the winning as in playing a poor hand well.—London Opinion.

THE CHILDREN'S TWO FOOT BOOKSHELF

As a means of developing constructive discussion on the possibility of having a general bookshelf in every schoolhouse, the American Library Association and the School Library Association undertook to have a vote among those who attended the two recent conventions as to what twenty-five books should be first put on such a shelf. This bookshelf was not intended to contain either reference books or textbooks, and the Bible and the dictionary were excluded as being part of every school's equipment. In order to make the voting easier, the ballot was prepared with 100 suggested titles on it with blanks where other titles could be added. This list included not only accepted classics for children but many books of information and history and nature that had proved their worth. It is as follows:

1. Alcott, "Little Women."
2. Carroll, "Alice in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking-Glass."
3. Defoe, "Robinson Crusoe."
- 4-5. Stevenson, "Treasure Island."
- 4-5. Twain, "Tom Sawyer."

WAR NEVER ENDS

Mankind Dare Not for a Moment "Let Up" on Germs.

Sanitation Advances, but the Ingenious Microbe Invariably Bobs Up In Another Way.

If you studied arithmetic from one of those old-fashioned textbooks, you will remember the famous hunter who pursued the rabbit and gained during successive equal periods of time one-half the distance that separated him from the rabbit. If you later developed a taste for allegory, it probably occurred to you that this unending pursuit was appropriately symbolic of humanity, in pursuit of its ideals. The goal is never reached, even though constant progress is recorded.

There is, for instance, man's struggle to subdue his environment to his own ends. The beasts of the field are no longer a general menace; savage tribes are largely subdued; men are endeavoring now to prevent armed clashes between civilized nations. But the enemies of mankind are unwearily in their attacks upon him. If the birds, for example, should for some reason cease for a season to perform their mission of destroying insects, it is stated by some scientists, man would give over the planet to the thousand-and-one varieties of insects that war against him.

There are some individuals in this world who take this struggle seriously—some who take it more seriously and some who take it most seriously. You have met, perhaps, some of the third class. These use their napkins to wipe the silver at a social dinner table, spread newspapers over the parlor car seats and hold their handkerchiefs over their noses when they ride in the subway. They are those who fear that some germ will get 'em yet.

The germ peril and its avoidance is one of the triumphs of modern thought. It has developed into a science, called sanitation. Through its findings many old friends have met disaster. Yet as we study its dicta, many old and close friends seem doomed to destruction and the pursuit of health and happiness, pestered all ways by the wolf pack of germs, becomes longer and longer and more and more perilous.

The public drinking cup, the public towel, the public brush and comb, dear to our grandparents, are doomed by the sanitation expert. The individual laundered towel, fresh from a cabinet, seemed to answer his demand. But the individual towel had been in use only a short time when it was discovered that the ironing that was supposed to sterilize the towel did not kill the germs that carry boils.

Paper towels were soon thereafter introduced, and the public was once more convinced that the last word in sanitation had been said. But again some inquisitive scientists made an investigation and found that the knobs and handles which one had to touch to obtain a paper towel were occupied by millions of germs.

To cope with this situation a cabinet holder was invented which made it unnecessary for the user to touch any sort of a knob or handle in order to get his towel. Now, some one says there is probably a germ in the wood from which the cabinet is made.

There's no rest for the weary. So far as any one knows, that hunter is still pursuing that rabbit and still gaining on him. He has all of humanity's irrepressible optimism. And so far as any one knows it will probably take the ingenious microbes only a year or two to hit upon some method of rendering any sanitary device archaic.

Size and Sense.
A shoe dealer, near Monument circle, insists he has a clerk who is a genius. He can handle even the most difficult of women customers. The worst of all came in the other day and demanded a No. 6 shoe for a size 10 foot. Finally the clerk managed to squeeze on a No. 9. "How much are they?" she asked.
"Six dollars," he said.
"And you're sure they are size 6?"
The clerk assured her they were; and all went well until he started to wrap them up and she saw the No. 9 inside. Indignantly she started to refuse to take them. Then, to every one's amusement, the genius succeeded in making her understand that he had made a mistake in the price, and smilingly she paid him $9 for the $6 pair of shoes. "It's not a matter of price with most women," he assured his employer, "but size and sense, you see."—Indianapolis Star.

The Burnt Child.
"You should not be so grouchy, so resentful," said the visitor to the prisoner. "When society has chastised you, you should endeavor to cultivate a new spirit. You should develop a spirit of affection, of kindness. You should learn to love your neighbor."
"Yeah," grunted the bigamist. "me lovin' my neighbor's what got me in here, lady."

Coins Pronounced All Right.
Our 1921 metal money is all right, the annual assay commission has just reported to the President. The commission puts its O. K. on last year's coin after testing a number of pieces of each quantity of metal melted for coinage. All coins were found to be fully within the law's requirements. We can now take genuine 1921 money without worrying about its quality.

DEATH OF MR. LAWRENCE

Mr. Charles McKelvie Lawrence, general manager of the Thomas G. Plant Shoe factory in Jamaica Plain, died suddenly of pneumonia last week Thursday, at his home on Centre street, Newton Centre, in his 51st year.

Mr. Lawrence was born June 14, 1872, at Council Bluffs, Iowa, and spent the first six years of his life there. He was a son of Elijah C. Lawrence, formerly president of the American Boot and Shoe Reporting Company, and Juliet M. Lawrence, who survives him. His early education was received in the public schools of Boston, including the Boston Latin School, and in study abroad as a youth in Switzerland, Germany and France.

Upon his return to the United States, he entered the Massachusetts Institute of Technology with the intention of becoming an electrical engineer; but he abandoned this purpose before he completed his course, and entered the Thomas G. Plant factory shortly after it was removed to Jamaica Plain. Starting as an assistant foreman in a small department, he worked his way up during the quarter of a century he was connected with the factory until he reached the position of responsibility which he occupied at the time of his death.

For many years, Mr. Lawrence had made his home in Jamaica Plain, and had established his residence in Newton Centre a little more than a year ago.

Mr. Lawrence was a member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, a vice-president of the Boston Boot and Shoe Club, and a former president of the Employers' Management Association.

He survived, besides his mother, his wife, Clara (MacDougal) Lawrence; a son, Arthur M. Lawrence of Jamaica Plain; a brother, Van Courtland Lawrence of Belmont; and a sister, Mrs. Clara L. Blair of Fitzwilliam, New Hampshire.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon, in the chapel at Mount Auburn Cemetery. Because of the illness of Rev. Edward T. Sullivan, rector of Trinity Church, Newton Centre, where Mr. Lawrence was an attendant, the service was conducted by Rev. Theodore R. Ludlow, rector of the Episcopal parish at Newton Highlands.

FUNERAL OF MR. WILSON

The funeral of Edward B. Wilson, twelfth mayor of Newton and long prominent in the wholesale drygoods trade in Boston, was held Friday afternoon at his home, 204 Otis street, West Newton. It was attended by a number of his former business associates, bankers, representatives of the Newton city government, the Masonic fraternity and many of his neighbors, while flags on all public buildings throughout the city were at half-staff. The service was conducted by Rev. J. Edgar Park, pastor of the Congregational parish at West Newton, who was assisted by Rev. Frederick A. Wilson of Andover, a cousin of the former Mayor Wilson. The Beethoven Quartette sang "Rock of Ages," "Eternal Goodness" and "Nearer My God to Thee."

Mayor Edwin O. Childs, headed the group of honorary pallbearers, other members being former Mayor George Hutchinson, Mayor Charles E. Hatfield, Judge Almon R. Wood, also a former mayor of the city; Henry B. Day of R. L. Day & Company, Arthur P. Smith, John A. Potter, and Henry M. Putney of Brookline.
Burial was in Newton Cemetery.

The attendants of the bride were her sister, Mrs. Harry F. Friedman of Grafton street, Newton Centre, as matron of honor, and Miss Jessie Samter of Scranton, Penn., as maid of honor.

During the past year, Miss Abrams, who is a graduate of Smith College, has been engaged in Psychological research in Boston. During the war she served in the Red Cross Motor Corps. During the war, the bride groom served as First Lieutenant in the 14th Field Artillery "Sunshine Division."

After February 20, Mr. and Mrs. Bornstein will be "at home" to their friends at 14 Hammondwood road, Chestnut Hill.

POLICE NEWS

John J. Sullivan, 29, of 18 Avon street, Natick, was before Judge Bacon Tuesday morning charged with operating an automobile while he was under the influence of liquor. He was arrested by patrolman Gaquin in West Newton square, at 2 o'clock Sunday morning, after he had driven up to a West Newton bank. He told patrolman Gaquin he was going to draw out a little money for Christmas. Sullivan was fined $100 by Judge Bacon.

Patrolman John E. Greene was walking along Highland avenue, Newtonville, last Saturday night, when he saw a man running along the street with a bicycle. Greene grabbed him, and the man admitted that he had stolen the bicycle from in front of a store in Newtonville. He was taken to Police Headquarters, where he gave his name as James F. Murphy, 32, of 172 W. 8th street, South Boston. On being searched he was found to have a quantity of narcotic drugs in his pockets. He was booked on the charge of having narcotics in his possession unlawfully. The bicycle which was owned by T. J. Gusmini of 11 Austin street, was at headquarters when the owner called up an hour after the arrest to report the loss.

MUCH ROMANCE IN CHINA

Mistaken Idea That All Is Prosaic Concerning Weddings in the Flowery Kingdom.

It has been the custom to think of the Orient as the place of the marriage of convenience, the place where it is believed that the circumstances and training of the parties concerned have more to do with happiness than the mere matter of their personalities. But odd sidelights are thrown on this tradition in the survival of legends of romance and stories of remarkable exceptions to the rule.

Two of these tales concern the butterfly in the mandarin's garden and the white rooster. These figures enter into many Chinese betrothals and marriage feasts.

Instead of a pair of ear-rings or a bracelet a Chinese swain, smitten on the lady who has been selected for him in one way or another, is apt to give her a carved jade butterfly to wear as a jewel.

This commemorates a legend of a most remarkable exception to the rule of marriages of caste and convenience.

A youth, sometime, somewhere, was chasing butterflies. Following a particularly lovely one he jumped over a wall and landed in the garden of a mandarin. The mandarin had a daughter. He caught the butterfly. His head was not chopped off and he married the lady who matched the butterfly in the garden.

Then there is the story of the white rooster. These fowls are favorites in China and are considered ornamental objects for a first-class garden of peach blossoms and pine trees.

The Chinese maiden loses her lover, who goes to the wars or is taken from this earth in some romantic fashion. She goes to the garden where she used to meet him. She thinks about him. She looks down the well. She admires all the birds that are in the garden. They all leave her except her white rooster. She jumps into the well. So does the bird. They both drown. But both are faithful through life and in death.

So at each wedding where proper attention is paid to old customs the bride and groom drink wine from a carved jade cup which is a sentimental statue to the faithful bird.

Steel Used in Umbrellas.

All umbrellas contain steel as a necessary component. Just how much, however, has been a subject of some interest. While the umbrella industry is not a large user of steel, its total consumption of wire and sheets is substantial considering the light weight of the finished product. A maker of umbrella frames on a large scale in Philadelphia is reported to use 2,500 tons of high carbon steel rods, 350 tons of soft basic rods and 300 tons of sheet steel each year. The entire industry uses about 1,500 tons of sheets and about 1,500 tons of rods. Wire for the manufacture of ribs and stretchers is made from high-carbon rods, while the runners, notches and various other small parts used in the frames are fashioned from soft basic rods. The steel rods are made from Bessemer sheets. Four companies make practically all the umbrella frames in the United States. Of these three are in Philadelphia and one in Newark, Philadelphia, therefore, may be said to be the home of the umbrella industry of this country.

Built Train for Wales.

A letter from Tokio telling of the visit of the prince of Wales emphasizes that the Japanese know how to do things well. The special train that carried the prince around the country was composed of three coaches which were built especially for his exclusive use. The royal compartments are all upholstered in pure Japanese style, a restful tone of green being the predominant color. The woodwork is mahogany, with panels of silk carrying a chrysanthemum design in white and gold.

The mantelpiece masking the radiator at one end of the observation car was made of mahogany imported into Japan some 60 years ago, it is said. Some highly prized wood supplied the material for the writing table in the prince's private salon. The third coach was reserved for the members of the reception committee, at the head of which was a prince of the blood, who accompanied the prince of Wales throughout his journey.

Oh, Yes, He Liked It.

An Englishman, newly arrived in this country, was taken home to dinner one night by a friend. There was corn on the table, and the host, knowing that most Englishmen are not familiar with this vegetable, asked if he liked it.

"Oh, yes," replied the visitor, apparently not wishing to appear discourteous; "I like it."

But when the platter of Golden Bantam was passed he did not take any.

"Why," said the host, "I thought you said you liked corn."

"I do like it," explained the Englishman; "but I don't like it well enough to eat it."—Everybody's Magazine.

Sound Box With Perforated Disks.

Anything that eliminates sound waves that are disturbing to those produced by the action of the record itself, in phonographic devices, will naturally improve the reproduction of instrumental and vocal music, remarks Popular Mechanics Magazine. This is said to be done in a patented phonographic sound box of the usual shape having the usual vibratory diaphragm at one end, and between that and the outlet a series of disks with registering openings, gradually decreasing in number toward the outlet, so that the sound waves are not affected by the sound box itself.

EASY TO TRACE EVOLUTION

Probably That of the Horse Is the Most Perfect of Which There Is Evidence.

There is on record no more perfect example of evolution than the horse. Under the able direction of Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborn, the distinguished president of the American Museum of Natural History, the greatest collection of fossil horses in the world has been brought together in the museum. We have so detailed a record that the complete evolution of the horse, from the tiny, five-toed, forest-living, cretaceous ancestor, to Man o' War, the most perfect living horse, is there for all to trace, writes Roy Chapman Andrews, in Asia Magazine.

The horse, we know, originated in Wyoming and adjacent parts of the West. At first he was a shy, retiring creature, no larger than a terrier, with five toes on feet adapted to the soft, springy ground of the forests. As the wooded area began to decrease in extent, the horse perforce changed his habits, becoming more and more a plains-living animal dependent upon speed to protect him from enemies. Since his five-toed feet were not adapted for swift running on hard ground, the middle toe gradually developed the hoof, and the side digits disappeared, except for the so-called "splint-bones" in horses as we know them today. The causes that forced the evolution of the horse are in certain respects similar to those that we see effective in human evolution.

Many theories concerning the evolution of man have been advanced by eminent scientists. That proposed by the late Prof. Joseph Barrell of Yale university has much to give it support.

Professor Barrell believed that, as the forests decreased and the anthropoid apes could no longer retreat southward because of the great barrier of the Himalaya mountains, they were forced to adapt themselves to a life upon the ground. Whether or not they did this from necessity or choice, it seems almost sure that the progenitor of man was a "ground ape"—a creature living on nuts and roots and, when in danger, running to the trees for safety. As he gradually lost the shelter of the forest, he had to acquire the means of protecting himself and of combating the enemies of the ground. This led to a communal life, hands with an opposed thumb with which to grip sticks and stones to be used in defense, an erect posture and a foot adapted to swift and sustained running. These bodily changes, which were of profound importance, must have taken place very slowly—in hundreds of thousands of years. The physical adaptations carried with them a mental development correspondingly remarkable. Thus it was, says Professor Barrell, that man diverged from the parent ape-stock.

Age of Discretion.

People of mature years, not old people, understand, but simply people out of the first flush of foolish youth, do occasionally get their innings. To be sure, they sometimes read in the public prints about "an old lady of fifty-five," which, though admittedly evidently absurd, is nevertheless disturbing to the morals. And once in a while there is a manifestly erroneous head line about the death of an old man who turns out to be a person just in his prime; sixty-two, say.

But, as we started to say, observes the Kansas City Star, there is balm in Gilead. Pictures of A. J. Balfour, no Sir Arthur, no Earl Balfour, are now in circulation, showing him in an active game of tennis at Cannes. Tennis, as every one knows, is a game for youngsters. No elderly person can dubut with the Boston Stock Company. With Miss Bushnell will be seen Walter Gilbert in the Wallace Eddinger role, Houston Richards, Viola Roach, Lucille Adams, Edward Darney, Ralph Remley, Harold Chase, Mark Kent and Anna Layng.

The days of our age are three score years and ten. . . Hush! That was long ago. We are doing much better than they did in the time of Moses. When we reach seventy, we are only at years of discretion. Ask Earl Balfour.

Physical Chemistry.

Lectures given recently at various American centers of learning by Dr. F. W. Aston of Cambridge made a notable contribution to the general knowledge of the remarkable advances of the moment in physical chemistry. More and more it is coming to be taken for granted that the chemical elements are made up of identically the same stuff, and that they differ only in their structural arrangements. More and more the passage from one element to another, which so dumb-founded science when it was first observed taking place spontaneously, is coming to be a matter of course and something which we may ultimately hope to control.—Scientific American.

More Work for Windmills.

The old farm windmill will be given a new job if the engineering experiments that are now being made at the Iowa station prove to be successful. Turning a dynamo to produce electric lights on the farm is the idea being tested by F. C. Fenton, agricultural engineer, and E. C. Kurtz, electrical engineer, at the Iowa State college. The test is being made with an ordinary windmill which turns a generator, and the electricity is stored in batteries until used. If it proves to be practical, engineers see the possibilities of making cheap lights available on the farm.

No Other Lights Needed.

The beautiful motorist, stopped by the traffic cop on account of headlight trouble, turned her gaze full upon him. "Your 'lamps' are all right," said the susceptible young officer. "Drive on!"—Boston Transcript.

The Standard of Comparison

Driving Comfort in Winter

The Buick "Model 45" Six Cylinder—$1195

As complete as has been the development of the enclosed car, Buick designers have not neglected to improve the open type of car, building into it a measure of comfort, convenience and weather protection surpassed only by the more expensive closed vehicle.

Protection against wind and snow is assured by the snug-fitting storm curtains that open with the doors. The Buick design of storm curtains with a special weather strip provides a coziness, comparable to that of any closed car, while windshield wiper and tight fitting windshield, adjustable from within, make driving safe and comfortable.

Added to this, and equally important in winter driving, is the splendid performance that a Buick car always produces—its constant and surplus power—its roadability and perfect balance and its unquestioned dependability.

For cold weather driving there is no superior to the Buick open cars.

The Buick Line for 1923, comprises Fourteen Models:

NEWTON Y. M. C. A. NOTES

Five young men under the leadership of Philip Horne played Christmas cards Sunday evening around the Community Christmas tree.

Donald Cunningham and Ernest Woodworth played trumpets, and Abbott Gotshall, Irving Lewis and Philip Horne, saxophones.

The Newton bowling team won first place in the first division in the Greater Boston Bowling League. Boston Y. M. C. A. was second. The high average was won by Mahoney of Boston "Y" but the high single and high three strings were won by Cooper and Bemis of Newton. The second round will be between Boston, Newton, Everett and Chelsea.

The Salesmanship Class under the leadership of Mr. Herbert Saul begins Tuesday evening, January 9th. Mr. Saul has had experience both as a salesman and a teacher, a combination which well qualifies him to lead this group of men. It is not too late to enrol in this class.

A big map has been put up in the lobby showing the world-wide work of the Young Men's Christian Association. Pictures of the work in China are attracting special attention.

All friends of the Association are invited to the New Year's Reception on Monday evening, January 1st. There will be a concert by the Newton Constabulary Band, an entertainment in the Assembly Hall by Pearson, the Impersonator, exhibitions in the swimming pool, and games in the gymnasium.

Boys' Division Notes

On Tuesday morning a contest in billiards and cue rone was held. Frank J. Perry, Jr., was the winner in cue rone, and Frederick Becker won in billiards. The games were all very evenly matched.

Tuesday night was Old Timers' Night for the Hi-Y Club and many of the fellows who are away at school who were home for the Christmas vacation were present. Some of the guests were Mr. Dickinson, Newton High School coach, and Mr. Sears, formerly Secretary of the Boys' Division. Mr. Carl Kenner, and "Jake" Stafford. After the dinner a social hour was enjoyed in all present.

Wednesday afternoon a group of boys took a trip to the Bunker Hill Boys' Club where they were taken over the different class rooms and the gymnasium and watched the swimming class. Much interest was shown by the boys in this trip as there was a large Radio room and many other electrical devices which were very interesting.

OLD QUARRY TO BE STADIUM

Miniature California Mountain Can Be Put to Good Use at Comparatively Small Expense.

A short distance from Oakland, and marking the terminus of a popular driveway along the eastern shore of San Francisco bay, is a miniature mountain covering an area of about 5 acres and 135 feet in height. It has furnished a large amount of material for building purposes, its bowels being quarried out in such fashion as to leave only a shell of the original hill.

About a million and a half cubic yards of stone have been removed by quarrying from the inside of the hill, which has been thereby converted into a sort of roofless amphitheater, with a flat, smooth floor and an entrance through one side, represented by a straight and narrow tunnel, this passage of entrance and exit being used for carrying out the blasted rock in small cars on rails.

To some ingenious person the idea occurred that the hollow hill might be utilized for a stadium, and the scheme is soon to be carried out, title having been obtained by purchase from the quarry company. It has cost the company $1,500,000 to create the amphitheater as it stands (which is so much to the good from the buyers' point of view), and the expense of putting it in shape for the contemplated purpose will be relatively small.

The above-mentioned tunnel is to be converted into an ornamental entrance, with concrete columns. Directly opposite it is a vertical cliff more than 100 feet high and 200 feet wide, against which a concrete stage will be built. The floor (providing for a great arena) will be encircled by a concrete wall, from which concrete seats will rise in tiers, with six concrete stairways.

Everything about the Stone Bowl, as it is to be called, will be extremely Greek. It will have seating capacity of 125,000 persons, and the arena will be large enough for football and baseball games, with a running track around it.

Spaniards Liked Nick Carter.

The death of the creator of Nick Carter will very probably cause more widespread grief in Spain and Latin-America than in Nick's native land. More thousands of readers, juvenile and elders, were regular followers of Nick's exploits in the Spanish translations than there have been in English-speaking countries for more than ten years at least. Traveling through the Latin countries, you find the famous weekly still prominently displayed on nearly every news vendor's stand. The large Spanish publishing house of Sopena, in Barcelona, has conducted an immense and profitable business in making regular translations of Nick Carter's Weekly and publishing them. Whatever may be the literary quality of the original, the Spanish translations are such that people of presumably finer tastes are not ashamed to be seen reading them. A professor of romance language in the State university of Maine was in Havana about three years ago polishing up his Spanish conversation. He openly admitted his great fondness for the Spanish Nick Carters, and recommended them to all students of Spanish for the acquisition of facility in conversation.

Pilings Now Made of Paper.

Piles, for submarine supports are now being made of paper in California, the chief recommendation of which is the fact that they are not subject to attack by the teredo which ruins wooden piles in a short time. On a long wooden cylinder a long roll of tinned paper with glued edges is wound and covered with cord. Over this another band of paper, much narrower, is wound diagonally like the bandage on a wounded arm. The cylinder is revolved while it is bound with more cord, hot glue being applied continuously. After three layers of paper have been put in place, the wooden cylinder is removed and the paper cylinder is reinforced with a coarse mesh.

A mixture of cement and sand is squirted all over the cylinder, and several cylinders are joined end to end with the same cement so as to make a pile 60 feet long and from 18 to 30 inches in diameter. A square steel head is fitted over the top to receive the shocks of the pile-driver.

Christian and Pagan Speakers.

A strange mark of approach is given by a new enterprise in Japan. The Japanese paper Mainichi brings the information that the Christian school "Kwansei-Gakuin" in Kobe, and the Buddhist "Koyasan College" have entered into an agreement according to which Christian preachers are to lecture to the Buddhist students on Christianity, and the Buddhist lecturers are to speak on their religion in the Christian school. The initial lectures have already been given.

Motor to School.

Every day in the school year 14,000 children motor to school in North Carolina. Consolidation of the one-room rural schoolhouses into high grade central schools is going forward rapidly in this state. Ninety-three per cent of children carried to school at state expense are transported in motor vehicles.

Unmarried Americans.

Upwards of 1,600,000 men and women over forty-five in the United States are unmarried. More than 100,000 men about 76 are listed as bachelors, and nearly an equal number of women 64 years or more, also are unmarried.

How Came the Word Academy.

Away back in the fifth century before the present era, the Athenian philosopher Plato carried in his philosophic teaching in a training park for athletes. This park was owned by a man named Akademos. Hence the park was called Akademia. The word Akademia gradually came to be applied to the place where Plato trained minds, and its use as the designation of Akademos' physical training quarters fell into the limbo of forgotten things. Thus the word Akademia (or academy, as we have it) took on the meaning of a place where minds are taught how to think. Despite the sweep of many centuries and races over the original Greek stock, the place where Plato taught, near Athens, is still called Akademia.

Mount Ararat.

Mount Ararat is a high mountain of western Asia, in Armenia, on the border line of Russia, Turkey and Persia, to each of which it partly belongs. It consists of two peaks, designated as Great Ararat and Little Ararat, one 17,000 feet high and the other 12,840 feet high. Ararat is also the ancient name of the district in which it and other mountains are situated, and the biblical narrative of the flood says the ark "rested upon the mountains of Ararat," not on Mount Ararat. James Bryce, later Lord Bryce (1838-1922), ascended Mount Ararat in 1876, a marvelous feat, and published a volume on Transcaucasia and Ararat in 1877.
